SATISFACTION

with oneself—the consciousness of having done well, the knowledge that you have succeeded where others have failed—such satisfaction is good. But the difference between success and failure is not always discernible. A bright, optimistic temperament and calm mental poise fit an individual for doing his or her best.

Such a sound, healthy state of mind is rendered difficult, if not impossible, when a person is troubled with digestive disturbances. Nothing does more to put one off mental and physical effort. Tiredness, that languid, heavy feeling, nervous irritability, with disinclination to concentrate the mind, are some of the results of stomach, bowel and liver irregularities. A few doses of Beecham's Pills will regulate the organs and stimulate them to healthy activity. You really cannot do better than take

WOMAN AND HER HOME.

SOME SUMMER FROCKS.

JULY has given us some real summer weather. Girls have been seen moving about in diaphonous frocks, wide-brimmed hats of organdi or lace, and very often they have added a touch of the picturesque by carrying a gaily-painted Japanese parasol over their dainty heads.

Rumours wafted from Henley whispered of lovely gowns, composed of organdi, painted voiles, then silk crêpe and white China silk, showing raised silk embroideries in the far-famed cherry-blossom design. Strange to say, that design, although as old as the hills, never palls on the beholder, possibly from the exquisite artistry shown by the Chinese designers in all their work of that kind.

Some very charming dresses were seen on the river banks and in the boats. A few, indeed, could easily have passed muster at a garden party, but the majority were delightfully simple and cool-looking. Yet their elegance could not be questioned.

For example, an almond-green linen frock was cut so as to display all down the front a simulated underdress of grey and dull purple striped linen; the green was loosely laid across the front with green cord on a line with the hips, and after three lacings was tied in loops to hang down. A wide-spreading green straw hat was trimmed at one side with two bows of grey and purple ribbon.

A frock of white washing silk was made with a plain bodice, having a panel of pleated silk running straight down from neck to hem. From the hips the skirt was of the pleated silk, and a gipsy-like touch of colour was given by the handkerchief collar of bright orange crêpe. A squash hat of white felt, with an orange scarf, was used.

A pretty young girl presented a Gainsborough effect by wearing a white organdi frock, with a plain bodice encircled with a blue sash, the skirt showing a lattice sort of arrangement of tucks. A leghorn hat tied with blue ribbons was the only possible wear with such a gown. A green organdi had a straight bodice and short plain sleeves. The bodice ended at the natural waist-line with a little Victorian peak in front. The skirt was made with numerous little frills, which gave it a full appearance, though by no means bunchy.

Another fabric that shares the popularity of organdi is alpaca. One comes across it continually, and it always excites approbation. It is cool to wear and repudiates dust in every way, so that it is an excellent material for travelling or motoring. In beige, pale grey, almond-green and biscuit it is equally charming. An almond-green alpaca, fashioned with a pleated skirt, and cross-over bodice finished at the open neck with an organdi collar, edged with a tiny frill, forms a pleasing harmony on a summer's day.

THE WARFARE WITH TIME.

THE other day while walking down Grafton street I saw ahead of me a girl of about nineteen years of age, as I thought. Her short skirts, tripping gait, and general appearance of youth completely deceived me, for when I caught up on her I realised with a shock that she could not have been a day under forty-five.

Women, since the days of Eve, have for ever been engaged in warfare with that arch-enemy, Time. Paint, powder, rouge, and a host of other accessories are her chief weapons for the fray, but, alas, the result is always the same. Some women, however, seem to think that youth has the sole monopoly of beauty. The beauty of maturer years is often far more attractive than that of the flapper.

I think there is hardly anything more tragic than a woman over forty who dresses and acts as if she were eighteen. She fails to realise that woman has more than one age of beauty, and that beauty is largely harmony. No amount of powder and pencilling can disguise the impress of the inexorable hand of Time on the face of a woman, but if a woman wants she can make that impress one of beauty.

In my opinion, a woman is at the height of her glory at about twenty-eight, for by then she has acquired a deep knowledge of human nature and human affairs that makes her an excellent companion and valuable friend, a knowledge which is lacking in the girl of eighteen.

Many women think that a man prefers a very young woman. They are mistaken. Of course, we all know of cases where men have made fools of themselves over pretty young girls; but, on the whole, men care more for the deeper experience and sympathy that can only come as the years advance than for the light comradeship of youth.

When we think of Cleopatra, we do not imagine to ourselves a young girl of about eighteen, but rather we see with our inward eye a noble specimen of mature womanhood, in all the beauty and dignity of her sex. I am sure that had she been ten years younger when she met Antony, there would not have been any wars on her behalf.

If we look down any list of celebrated actresses and society women we notice that those who are most famous for their charm and personality are nearly all out of their 'teens and "flapperdom." Many of them have long passed the days of their youth, yet no one thinks them too old or too unattractive to be sought after.

No, the woman of forty who tries to pass herself off as a flapper is doomed to failure and disappointment, for, as the old proverb says: "Old sheep should not dress lamb fashion." Instead of accepting things as they are—and this is the true philosophy of life—she rebels against "Kismet" and lays up for herself an old age of misery and discontent.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE.

LIVERPOOL CUP.

SUN CHARMER WINS A GREAT RACE.

SOME THRILLING RACING.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.
LIVERPOOL, Friday Night.

Just before the Liverpool Cup this afternoon, which Sun Charmer won from Moabite, there was a most thrilling race for the Windermere Handicap between the three Irish horses—Rath Duth, Red Crest, and Ecila. Mr. McCann's three-year-old had run such a fine race in the Molyneux Cup here on Wednesday, when only just beaten out of a place by Hunting Song behind Crowdennis, that he appeared to have a good chance, and, as he had the assistance of Donoghue in the saddle, he was made a good favourite from Red Crest. There was no support in the market for Mr. Leahy's five-year-old, Ecila, but he ran a splendid race under his big weight, nevertheless.

The race between the three of them really began when they had gone half-way. Rath Duth then had taken the lead from Desperation, but Red Crest and Ecila were pressing him very closely. A tremendous finish resulted in Rath Duth beating Red Crest a short head, with Ecila only another head away, third. Jack Leach, who rode Red Crest, was very confident that he had just won it, but the judge decided otherwise. No one on the course would have been surprised had the decision been given as a dead-heat, so close together were the pair at the finish.

SUN CHARMER'S SUCCESS.

The value of supporting a penalised horse in a handicap when he is at the top of his form was shown once again when Sun Charmer won the Liverpool Cup. He was putting up an extra 8lb. for his fluent victory at Haydock Park last Saturday, and when the market settled down he was the best backed of all the candidates, though there was plenty of money for Clochnaben, Rock Fire, and Moabite. It may be said at once that Clochnaben had all the bad luck of the race. Donoghue jumped off in front, but he was cut off when making for the rails, and had to pull his horse right up, and settled down last, with the exception of Sir Greysteel. Later on he became involved in a general scrimmage. When he returned to weigh in he reported Smirke, who rode Set Off, for interfering with him and several other horses, with the result that this young hopeful was severely reprimanded.

Sun Charmer had settled down in front, but Set Off took the lead from him, and six furlongs from home he was out lengths in front on his own. He could not retain the advantage, however, and Sun Charmer, going all over like the winner, passed him when they were half-way up the straight. Moabite put in a strong challenge, but was hampered a little for room, and was beaten off a length. After the race Weston, who rode him, lodged an objection for crossing, but it was overruled. Silver Band slipped when they had gone half-way, and Jones came off. He was knocked out, but is not, I learn, seriously injured.

INKERMAN WINS ATLANTIC STAKES.

The only other race of note was the Atlantic Stakes, in which the lightly-weighted Inkerman made nearly all the running, to beat Tricky Aunt by a length and a half. Silurian was unplaced in Lord Derby's colours. This owner ran Eulalia in the last race, but she was beaten by Our Mollie, and Lord Derby has had the unwonted experience of seeing a Liverpool meeting pass without having had a winner in his colours.

It was a far better afternoon's racing than the previous two, and there was a very big crowd present. All the winners during the afternoon were well-backed horses. It has, indeed, been a great meeting for the professional backers, who have smitten the members of the Ring hip and thigh. One well-known professional kept on backing Crowdennis on Wednesday until the bookmakers could hardly gasp, and was giving his winnings a run on the favourites throughout this afternoon.

HURST PARK FANCIES.

The racing to-day is at Hurst Park, where the Lambton Gold Cup is the principal event. It is said that Groomsport is fancied, and on his running against Puttenden at Salisbury he has a very good chance. I prefer, however, that of MIZZEN MAST, who ran his best race this year on this course and over the same distance. The Duchess of York Stakes may be won by CHOSROES, and, in the absence of Druid's Orb, SIRIUS has a chance in the Henry VIII. Two-YEAR-OLD Stakes.

Rock Fire was the first to show in front, but on settling down, Sun Charmer cut out the work from Ulula, Set Off, Moabite and Rock Fire, the rear being brought up by Sir Greysteel. After going three furlongs, Set Off drew out well clear of Sun Charmer, Ulula, Moabite and Clochnaben. Soon afterwards Silver Band slipped up and unshipped his jockey. Entering the straight Set Off was still in front, his nearest attendants being Sun Charmer, Ulula, Dry Toast, and Moabite. A quarter of a mile from home, Set Off weakened, and Sun Charmer, racing to the front followed by Moabite, won by a length; two lengths separated second and third. Ulula was fourth, Dry Toast fifth, Clochnaben sixth, and Sir Greysteel last. Time—2 min. 15 4-5 secs.

At the distance Tricky Aunt took second place, but failed to get on terms with Inkerman, who won by a length and a half; the same distance separated second and third. Silurian was fourth.

PHŒNIX PARK.

TO-DAY'S SELECTIONS.

Although there is no event of outstanding importance down for decision, the programme arranged for Phœnix Park should yield an enjoyable afternoon's sport. The welcome rain of yesterday has benefited the going, and if, consequent on the hard state of the ground at the principal training quarters, fields are not as strong as usual here, runners will be forthcoming in sufficient numbers to render the proceedings interesting. Selections are appended:—

HURST PARK.

CLOSE FINISHES.

Wonderfully fine weather favoured the opening of the Hurst Park meeting yesterday, and it was surprising that the fields were as small as they were, for the going was all that could be desired. The sport, however, was excellent. In four of the six races only a head divided first and second.

In the Vyner Handicap the regulars declared for Pondoland and George Drake. At no time did they flatter, and after Tibet had made the most of the running Heliaster came through to win comfortably by three-parts of a length. Odds were betted on Beresford to beat four oponents in the Stakes, and the Friar Marcus colt must be accounted lucky to have got the best of the Aga Khan's grey filly, Teheran. The last-named came with a rattle at the distance, and looked a good winner as they passed the post, but the judge decided otherwise. The victory of Rackway in the last event saw Leach score a popular double. But he was lucky, as but for a bad swerve close home Galway Prince must have won.

TO-DAY'S SELECTIONS.

Chief interest to-day will centre in the Lambton Gold Cup, for which Newmarket has sent dangerous candidates in Sorrel and Piccadilly. A poor field is likely to contest this event, and in this connection I think that Tharros has a capital chance. Mizzen Mast, Sangrail, and Adorna would make a race of it, but their appearance is unlikely. Selections:

Wimbledon Handicap—Regulator.
Duchess of York Stakes—Persse's selected.
Bushey Plate—Click.
Lambton Gold Cup—Tharros.
Henry VIII. Stakes—Vivid colt.

SPORTING PARAGRAPHS.

The objection lodged by R. Moss against Ballinacurra Boy being declared the winner of the July Handicap Steeplechase at Powerstown Park on the 13th inst. has been withdrawn, by permission of the Stewards.

The crack stayer, Little Marten, did not meet his engagement in the King's Plate at the Curragh on Thursday, because he is in reserve for the £500 Hibernian Handicap at headquarters next month; its distance is a mile and a quarter. The son of Marten is also engaged in the Ebor Handicap at York, and the present intention is that he shall run for both races.

The alterations in and additions to the Rules, as proposed by the Stewards, were passed at the meeting of the Turf Club held at the Curragh this week.

The Mallow Race Meeting fixed for September 21 and 22 has been abandoned, and a new fixture has been granted to Ennis for September 21.

Punchestown Meeting will be held next year on April 29 and 30.

Epinard, the Stewards' Cup favourite, has, in company with his trainer, arrived from France at Clancy's stable at Singleton, Chichester, for Goodwood.

H.H. the Maharajah Jam Sahib of Nawanagar (popularly known as "Ranji") has lodged a certificate of contingency to Mr. W. Walters in the five-year-old Ruysdael. He has registered his colours under the Rules of Racing—light blue, pink sleeves, black belt.

The steeplechase mare, Fly Rose, has been purchased by Mrs. O'Malley-Keyes, and Carton (2 yrs.) by Mr. A. B. Coyle.

Den Cruchan, Maureen Bawn, and Southern Gleam have been struck out of the Baldoyle Steeplechase, and Magic Ring and Bachelor's Bubble out of all engagements.

Subsequently to the race for the Liverpool Cup Donoghue reported C. Smirke for interfering with Clochnaben and other horses. The Stewards severely reprimanded Smirke for reckless riding, and cautioned him.

LAWN TENNIS.

COUNTY DUBLIN CHAMPIONSHIPS.

Beyond the fact that it slowed down play for an hour or so yesterday, what rain fell at Carrickmines had no effect on the Championships. The courts were occupied practically all day, and, in consequence, the finals will be played this afternoon. Starting at 3 o'clock, both classes, open and handicap, are expected to furnish some interesting tennis.

In yesterday's play the outstanding feature was the defeat of L. A. Meldon (holder) in the Open Singles, by B. Haughton.

The latter was expected to make a close match of it, but it was generally thought that Meldon would pull through. Quite the contrary proved to be the case. The opening set was close, but in the second Haughton took the upper hand at once, and, with the loss of two games, squared the match. The final set ran on the same lines, and Haughton qualified to meet E. S. Hornidge to-day. The last-named just got the better of a hard three-set match with M. H. Toppin. Details:—

Few farmers in County Monaghan have yet commenced to dig potatoes, despite the fact that the season is so far advanced. The crop will be very late. A month ago the prospect for the potato crop was very bad, but recently signs have improved so that now there is promise of an abundant crop. Blight is reported in one district in the county, but there is no general appearance of the disease and all farmers have sprayed.

GAELIC PASTIMES.

TO-MORROW'S FIXTURES.

The Leinster Councils have an interesting programme at Athy to-morrow, in connection with which special trains will be run from Kingsbridge and Birr. Dublin junior hurlers meet Offaly in the Leinster semi-final, and the Metropolitan men should win and qualify to meet Meath or Kilkenny in the next round. The junior hurling will be followed by a challenge football match between Kildare and Carlow. These counties have been getting near each other's level recently; for Kildare has fallen from its high estate, whilst the Carlow men have come along by leaps and bounds. They drew with Louth recently, and next Sunday's match against the all-whites will give them experience for the re-play.

Dublin Championships are suspended at the moment. Croke Park will be occupied by Athletic fixtures and inter-county games for August and September. The Senior League games, however, will continue. Two brisk games are listed for The Thatch to-morrow. At 12.30 Civic Guards meet Geraldines, with Mr. P. McCullagh as referee. Though the Guards were beaten by O'Tooles at Croke Park last Sunday they are a force to be reckoned with in any League game. As opponents to-morrow they have the reorganised Geraldines. That once powerful club fell on evil days; but Messrs. Kelleher and Barry have got an earnest committee behind them, and the club are coming back rapidly. The second game is another attractive one. The neighbouring clubs, St. Mary's and Emeralds, meet at 1.30. At Malahide and Ballygriffin the tournaments will be continued; and at Inchicore Fête to-morrow evening the semi-finals and finals of the seven-a-side tournament will be played.

We are in the middle of the athletic season, and the entrance of the Army Athletic Association into the field is a welcome feature. This afternoon the Tramway Sports will be the attraction. This annual meeting has a big reputation for value of prizes and efficient administration. To-morrow at Croke Park the enterprising C. J. Kickham Club are reviving the Drapers' Sports under a new name. Established at the G.A.A.'s initiation, the "C.J.'s" have had a wonderfully successful history, and are still going strong in hurling, football, and athletics. Organised last spring, the athletic team has been very successful, winning against Dublin University and drawing with University College, Dublin, on points, whilst their members have many wins to their credit at sports meetings in Dublin and in the country. The presentation of a valuable silver cup by the Governor-General has given a great fillip to to-morrow's meeting, and the half-mile race between our leading Irish half-milers should be a capital one.

We shall have the All-Sports Week upon us immediately, with the N.A.C.A. and D.M.P. Sports over Bank Holiday week-end. As trials for the Tailteann Games and next season's Olympics this week is very important. The challenge tug-o'-war events at the D.M.P. Sports promise to be a big attraction. This event appears to be coming back to popular favour. When the ground is kept clear a good pull between well-trained, evenly-weighted teams is an exhilarating event.

Many Dublin hurling enthusiasts are preparing to make the journey to Limerick City on August 12th, where the re-play between Tipperary and Limerick hurlers is the topic of the hour. Not since 1914 has so much interest been taken in a hurling game. Kilkenny's hurling in the Leinster final last Sunday was neither as finished nor clever as usual. With two or three exceptions the players need continued "ball-practice" before getting smooth control, which is the hall-mark of the hurler's art.

According to official statistics just issued, the population of Belgium increased from 7,482,133 at the end of 1921 to 7,539,568 at the end of 1922.

LEINSTER V. EXMOUTH.

In glorious weather Leinster played Exmouth yesterday. The visitors opened the batting, but a bad start was made, five wickets falling in the first over for four runs. Carter bowled in fine form, his nine wickets costing only 39 runs. Exmouth passed the Leinster total for the loss of only two wickets. Campbell and Jones batted soundly. The innings closed after two and a half hours for 185 runs. Ryan came out best of the Leinster bowlers with six wickets for 28 runs. Score:—

MUNSTER V. LEINSTER.

Before a fair attendance at the Mardyke, Cork, yesterday afternoon, the Munster v. Leinster match opened. The home province batted first, and, though they lost 7 wickets for 70 runs, the remaining 3 wickets contributed 69. King and Allen were the most successful bowlers, each capturing 4 wickets, the former for 45 and Allen for 52.

Bookman and Robinson opened Leinster's innings, but the first-named was bowled by J. O'Sullivan when he had scored 6. The visiting batsmen, of whom Maher was the only one to reach double figures, found run-getting difficult owing to the keen fielding of the home province, and the side was out for 76. Parry took 6 wickets for 18 runs and J. O'Sullivan and Williams 2 each for 33 and 5 respectively.

Munster opened their second innings, and when stumps were drawn for the day were 35 for the loss of 1 wicket. Score:—

Subsequently, however, in 55 minutes they lost seven wickets for 33, so that the visitors won by an innings and 18 runs. Score:—

GALWAY.
Admittedly one of the most beautiful counties in Ireland, Galway City, with its old-world Spanish memories, has annals well worth the reading; its future is a subject to conjure with. There are many who hold that some day Galway, with its unrivalled position on our Western shores, will become one of Europe's greatest ports. Meanwhile, there are mills in Galway turning out tweeds that cannot be surpassed by the tweeds of any other nation. These tweeds, cross-woven, are extraordinarily hard-wearing. The designs and blending of colours are really wonderful. All the beauty of Galway's hills worked into a yard of cloth. NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

We print to-day a summary of recommendations of the Departmental Committee of Northern Ireland on the salaries and conditions of employment of secondary teachers.

The conference convened by the Ministry of Labour between representatives of the dockers and the shipping companies in an effort to settle the dispute at the Free State ports met yesterday, and, after a short sitting, adjourned.

The Land Bill passed its second reading in the Senate yesterday. The Dail discussed the case of Noel Lemass, who was kidnapped in Exchequer street, Dublin, on the 3rd inst.

GREAT BRITAIN.

ABROAD.

A Reuter Paris telegram states that an Irish Military Mission has visited the military school at Saint Cyr, and that Major-General MacMahon, in thanking General Tarant, who received the Mission, expressed the hope that the Free State soon would send her officers to Saint Cyr.

Over a ton of paper marks was required to pay the British troops in Cologne.

The French and Belgian comments on the British Note to Germany are to be despatched during the week-end.

SPORTING.

At Liverpool yesterday Sun Charmer won the Liverpool Cup.

At Hurst Park Heliaster won the Vyner Handicap.

Landlords and Settlement.

Yesterday the Land Bill passed its second reading in the Senate of the Free State Parliament, where the landlords are represented in a fair proportion and by excellent brains. The Bill's reception was less cordial than the readers of Mr. Gorry's speeches might have anticipated. The large majority of landowners in the Free State are anxious to help the Government in every possible way. Their spokesmen in the Senate yesterday recognised that the land question must be removed from the path of national progress, and recognised also that Mr. Hogan had made a very honest and not wholly unsuccessful effort to safeguard their interests. He will admit, we think, that much of their criticism was fair and sound. Nobody can deny that this Bill benefits the tenants at the expense of the landlords. Nobody can deny that by its operation a very considerable number of landlords and of persons who have charges on their estates will suffer grave hardship and in many cases will be reduced to actual poverty. Yet Mr. Hogan will have been quick to notice that this aspect of the matter—the personal aspect—was not the only, or indeed, the chief, subject of the landlords' criticism. Their principal speakers took a larger view. They are anxious that, since they must be sacrificed for the sake of settlement, the settlement shall be complete and final. Therefore, they regard with alarm the provisions of the Bill that seem to open new vistas of contention. Under this Bill the Land Commission takes powers to acquire any land anywhere in the Free State. It may tell a tenant-owner of six hundred acres under the Act of 1903 that it requires two hundred of his acres for public purposes. As Sir John Keane said, this provision substitutes insecurity for settlement. Mr. Hogan explained that these powers would be applied strictly to the relief of congestion, and was inclined to scout the menace of the "landless men." That menace will abide, however, so long as a Government which is subject to popular pressure retains unlimited powers of confiscation over the soil of twenty-six Irish counties. We hope that the Senate will not allow these provisions to pass through the Committee stage without the strictest scrutiny. It must refuse to be "rushed" by a Dail which yesterday was "counted out" for lack of a quorum.

Another aspect of this question was raised by Senator Bagwell. Modern agriculture is a scientific business in which the requisites of success are education and enterprise. These qualities will not be found—at any rate, during our time—in a community of small and struggling farmers. If the big farmer is bought out in whole or part, the loss to the nation will be very real. Of course, Mr. Hogan does not propose to cut up the lands of all the big farmers; but for every one whose property is thus seized a dozen may be frightened or disgusted out of the business, and, naturally, when the process has begun, the "landless men" will assist it by a variety of means. If the solid farmer whose tenure dates from 1903 is to follow the landowner whose tenure dates from Tudor or Stuart times, the resulting bleakness of Irish life is not likely to be relieved by any increase of material wealth. The exodus of either class would be a grave misfortune; the exodus of both would be a national calamity. Since the Free State is a Dominion of the Empire, the British Government has a direct interest in safeguarding not merely the welfare, but the quality, of its people. The Southern landlords have ceased to be the backbone of "the British garrison in Ireland"—they have ceased even to be "Unionists." They have not ceased, however, and do not want to cease, to enrich their country with their inherited gifts of loyalty and leadership and their trained capacity for public service. The British Government has promised to consider the possibility of help for those landlords who will be hit hardly by the present Bill. If it helps them, it will not only honour its own pledges, but will serve the Free State by enabling these men to stay in Ireland and to work for Ireland.

The German Mark.

On Thursday the German mark was quoted at three million to the pound, and yesterday the nominal rate was four and a half million. So far as ordinary trade relations are concerned, the mark has ceased to have either value or meaning. The man in the street simply cannot keep pace with its fantastic career. A few weeks ago its value fell by thousands daily; now the diurnal slump is measured in millions. A traveller who buys marks in Dublin or in London on his way to Berlin may find that his capital has halved itself within a couple of hours. Business contracts in German currency are out of the question, while international dealings of every kind, such as railway freights, postal charges and the like, have been reduced to an absurdity. Inside the country, of course, the matter has a far more serious aspect. Tradespeople of all descriptions have only one defence against the tumbling mark; they increase their prices by hundreds per cent. from day to day. Naturally, however rapidly the printing presses at the Reichsbank may turn out fresh batches of paper money, wages cannot possibly keep level with prices, and the inevitable result is that misery and privation are spreading quickly even among those classes of the population which hitherto have contrived to keep abreast of the fatal race. The middle classes are in a pitiable plight. Their savings have vanished completely, and thousands of the best type of Germans must be perilously near the brink of sheer starvation. The scrip of a man who put, say, £1,000 into German war loan eight years ago is hardly worth the equivalent of a box of matches to-day; and to-morrow it may not be worth half that amount.

The avalanche has gathered so much strength during the last few weeks that virtually nothing can check it now, and the mark, like the Russian rouble, seems to be doomed. The effects of a financial crash in Germany will be widespread, apart altogether from its political consequences, which are incalculable. Russia's case was bad enough, but Europe survived the disappearance of the rouble from its markets, chiefly because Russia never belonged really to the European group. Germany, however, is the very core of financial and economic Europe. Her railway system alone is one of the Continent's greatest assets, while her mines, factories and forests, coupled with the technical skill and productive capacity of her population, are almost as valuable to the rest of Europe as they are to herself. These things will not be destroyed by the collapse of her currency, but they will become ineffective. The most perfect machine becomes useless when it is deprived of its motive power, and finance is the essential fuel not only of the industrial machine, but of the whole plant of modern civilisation. For the moment there seems to be no way of escape. The mark has fallen to such an absurdly low level that a few millions one way or the other to the pound cannot make much difference; and, if the process of disintegration continues for another week, German currency must cease to be quoted on the world's exchanges. Subsequent events are matters for speculation. Germany may be forced to tread the road along which Russia is toiling in agony. She may, or may not, fall a prey to the forces of social disruption which are hovering greedily over her; but one thing is certain. Germany's downfall will bring the pillars of Western civilisation crashing about the ears of Europe.

A Dublin Mystery.

The mystery of Mr. Noel Lemass's disappearance, which was discussed in Dail Eireann yesterday, raises a very important public issue. According to the statement of the Minister for Home Affairs, this young man was walking with a friend along Exchequer street, Dublin, during the early afternoon of July 3rd, when the pair were approached by two armed men, who marched them off in custody. Since that time Mr. Lemass's relatives have had no news of him, and all efforts to trace his whereabouts have failed. The whole business is extremely obscure. Apparently, Mr. Lemass's friends made no attempt to establish touch with him until thirteen days after his disappearance—presumably, as Mr. O'Higgins suggests, because he was an escaped prisoner and his parents were under the impression that he had been arrested "officially." Mr. Devine, who was taken away in his company, but was released in a laneway near Lincoln place, seems to have held the same view, with the result that the authorities knew nothing about the affair until it was nearly a fortnight old. The most exhaustive inquiries have been made since Mr. Lemass's disappearance was reported, but no traces of him have been found. We are glad that inquiries are being pursued without ceasing, because the credit of the Government demands that the mystery of this young man shall be solved. Dublin now has returned to virtually normal conditions, and the kidnapping of a man in broad daylight in one of the city's busiest streets ought to be impossible. There can be no place for affairs of this kind in the new Ireland.

Humour in Art.

There is an old and true saying that the world likes people who can make it laugh. Indeed, with so much grim reality round about us, it is pardonable that we should desire the lightest kind of antidote as often as possible. Everybody, therefore, who has any claim to be a humorist receives the warmest of welcomes. The artists have realised this fact, and the present generation has produced a great crop of really clever jesters and caricaturists with brush and pencil. Those who imagine that, because a drawing is funny, it cannot be a work of art are making a grave error. The most amusing of Mr. Max Beerbohm's cartoons are works of artistic value. Who, for instance, would deny that his drawing of "Wordsworth at cross-purposes in the Lake District," which hangs in the Dublin Municipal Gallery, is a picture of real charm, apart from its joyous absurdity? One of the foremost comic artists of our day, Mr. H. M. Bateman, has brought out a new book of drawings. Nearly everybody can appreciate the almost uproarious fun of Mr. Bateman's line. He rarely depends upon a written "joke"; nearly always it is through the eye alone that he appeals to our sense of humour. To our humorists hardly anything is sacred. They are ready, armed with their pencils, to show us the ridiculous in all things and to help us to preserve a healthy sense of proportion.

COURT AND PERSONAL.

The Royal garden party was favoured by the weather, which was fine and bright, but not too hot. The picturesque dresses of some of the Indian guests introduced a distinctive note into what was a very brilliant scene. The Queen wore a pale lavender mauve dress, embroidered in mauve and blue, with a deep wreath of flowers in similar colouring bordering her chiffon toque. The Duchess of York wore silk lace of a pale golden beige tone, and a white hat, with pink roses, and Princess Mary was attired in cream silk muslin, with a blue and silver girdle, and a cream silk hat, with a long ostrich feather to match.

After a short visit to San Sebastian the King of Spain returned to Madrid yesterday, and the Queen motored to Santander, where her children are staying. The Prince of Asturias, though still very delicate and unable to take any exercise, is deriving much benefit from the air at Santander, where he and his brothers and sisters will remain for the next two months.

• • •

The Duchess of Oporto has arrived at Blickling Hall, Norfolk. The Duchess of Algeciras and her husband, the Marquès de Hoyos, have arrived in London from Paris. The Marquès de Pous, Equerry to the King of Spain, and the Marquèsa de Mos, are also in London.

The Earl of Iveagh will entertain a large party at Thornhill for Cowes week, and also will entertain on board his steam yacht, The Sea Fay. Viscount and Viscountess Gort will have a large party for the regatta at East Cowes Castle. Lord Gort has returned from the Clyde on board his cutter, Carlotta. Lady McCalmont left Moorfield, County Kildare, on Thursday for Marienbad, with her sister, the Hon. Mrs. Barry. Lord Rossmore arrived in Dublin on Thursday, en route for Rossmore Park, Monaghan.

• • •

The Earl and Countess of Kenmare have arrived at Ruthyn, Denbighshire, and will return to London in a fortnight. Sir Horace Rumbold, High Commissioner at Constantinople, and Lady Rumbold are staying in London with Mrs. Arthur James. Mr. and Lady Winifred Pennoyer have arrived at St. Donat's Castle, Glamorganshire, where they will remain till the autumn. They will have with them the Earl of Shrewsbury and his sisters, Lady Ursula, Lady Audrey and Lady Joan Chetwynd-Talbot, and Lady Winifred's little son by her second marriage, who is now two years old.

CONSECRATION OF BISHOPS.

The consecration of the Bishops-elect of Clogher and Tuam is appointed to take place in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Armagh, on Monday, August 6th (Feast of the Transfiguration), at 12 o'clock. CENTRAL LEEDS.

CONSERVATIVE VICTORY IN BY-ELECTION.

The result of the Parliamentary by-election in the Central Leeds Division was yesterday declared as follows:—

Sir Charles Wilson (Con.)	13,085
Mr. H. H. Slesser (Soc.)	11,359
Mr. Gilbert Stone (Lib.)	3,026

At the General Election the result was:—Mr. A. Willey (Con.), 14,137; Mr. H. H. Slesser (Lab.), 7,844; Mr. R. Armitage (N.L.), 6,260.

A large proportion of the votes lost by Mr. Stone, as compared with the votes cast for the Liberal candidate at the last election, went to the Conservative candidate. It is to be noted that Mr. Stone forfeits his deposit, as he has not polled the requisite one-eighth of the total votes.

The result was received with both cheering and booing from the crowd gathered in the gallery of the counting room. Socialists continued to boo for sometime after the cheering had subsided.

Sir Charles Wilson, proposing a vote of thanks to the Lord Mayor, said that the result showed that Central Leeds stood firmly behind the Government.

Mr. Slesser, seconding the vote of thanks, said that he could not agree that the vote cast for the Conservative candidate signified approval of the Government.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

TRIAL BY JURY.

DULL DAY IN THE COMMONS.

FROM OUR PARLIAMENTARY CORRESPONDENT.
WESTMINSTER, Friday.

For the first hour and a half there was a very slumberous atmosphere in the House. The first subject for discussion was Scotch education, of which the English members either knew nothing or cared nothing, for they carefully kept away, leaving some twenty Scottish representatives to rail at the Government for their alleged indifference to all that concerned the intellectual welfare of the rising generation beyond the border. The bill itself embodies certain administrative changes originally contained in the Economy (Miscellaneous Provisions) Bill, and it came under the lash of Sir Henry Craik, who expressed the view that it was calculated to kill local enthusiasm in education.

• • •

Mr. Westwood, Sir Donald Maclean's successor in the representation of Peebles, was concerned not so much with what the bill contained as to what it did not contain. The measure, he said, did nothing to remove rating anomalies, contained no provision for the feeding of necessitous children, and restricted the powers of the school management committees. These were all matters of high import, and he indicated that he and his friends would provide the Solicitor-General for Scotland much food for consideration when the bill got into Committee. The bill was read a second time.

The Administration of Justice Bill, the second reading of which was moved by Sir Douglas Hogg, the Attorney-General, dealt with matters of more general interest. He explained that the short purpose of the bill was to render the course of justice more efficient, more economical and more certain. It proposed to do away with the necessity for holding Assizes when there was practically no business to be transacted, and carried out a number of other administrative changes. But the real bone of contention was the provisions relating to trial by jury. The Opposition contended that the bill restricted the right to trial by jury. The Government declared that it increased it, and, judging from the discussion, there were no means of bridging the gulf created by the conflicting opinions.

Mr. Harney argued that trial by jury had been the palladium of British justice; it was the nearest approach to justice they could get, because it represented as nearly as possible what the rest of the country would do in given circumstances. Strong claims for the pre-war position with regard to trial by jury were advanced by Sir Kingsley Wood, Sir Ryland Adkins and Sir John Simon. They differed in toto from the proposition that it should be left to the discretion of a judge whether there should be a jury or not. It was, they submitted, the inalienable right of litigants to have their causes determined by a jury of their fellow men.

The Solicitor-General endeavoured to assure hon. members that the rights of litigants were in no way infringed. The bill certainly did not restore the pre-war position, but there were good and sufficient reasons why it should not.

Mr. Pringle would have none of it. He was all in favour of trial by jury, as the ordinary citizen was much more capable of determining questions of fact than a judge, who spent the best part of his life on the bench, cut off from all the ordinary associations of mankind. The bill was read a second time by 149 votes to 92, and the House then rose.

At the commencement of the sitting a new writ was ordered for South Portsmouth, to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Colonel Leslie Wilson on his appointment as Governor of Bombay.

IRISH ENTERTAINMENT AT THE GAIETY.

The outstanding feature of last night's entertainment at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, was the delightful rendering of Irish airs by Mr. Arthur Darley's quartette. Mr. Darley played first violin, Miss Dowdall second violin, Mr. Brett viola, and Mr. Joseph Schofield 'cello.

The pieces which they interpreted with such musical taste and feeling included "The Derry Air" (arranged by Mr. Frank Bridge) and "Molly on the Shore" (arranged by Mr. Percy Grainger). The instrumentalists were warmly applauded at the conclusion of their performance.

Mr. Neill McLean sang "Caol Muile, Enniskay," a Hebridean folk song, and, by special request, a Scottish boat song.

The vocal side of the entertainment was well supported by Mr. E. Fitzgerald and Mr. Denis Cox.

Violin solos by Mr. Arthur Darley, "Viva La," "Cnoc an Eire," and Brian Boru's March were much appreciated.

A comedy in three scenes, "Cluiche Cartai" (a game of cards), by Major-General Beasley, M.P., and a Scottish drama, translated into Irish by Mr. Richard Foley, completed an enjoyable programme.

OBITUARY.

RIGHT HON. J. C. WHITE.

The death of the Right Hon. J. C. White, who was Lord Mayor of Belfast in 1919, took place in a nursing home in Belfast yesterday afternoon, following a serious operation.

The deceased was the head of the firm of White, M'Millan and Wheeler, solicitors, Belfast, and was one of the best known men in Ulster. He was High Sheriff in 1915, and also a member of the Privy Council.

A son of the late Rev. Robert White, Presbyterian minister of Milford, Co. Donegal—who was a pioneer of the tenant-right movement in Ulster in the middle of the nineteenth century—Mr. White was born at the manse, Milford, in 1854. After a distinguished scholastic career he was admitted a solicitor, with honours, at the age of 21 years. He entered into practice at 45 Arthur street, Belfast. Mr. White acted in numerous Parliamentary election contests in the counties of Londonderry, Donegal and Down. He entered the City Council about 1909, and in 1915 succeeded Alderman Tyrrell in the Shrievalty. Four years later he was called to the Mayoral chair. In the following year his public service was recognised by his appointment as a Privy Councillor for Ireland. Mr. White retired from the Corporation two years ago, and in view of his many public services in October, 1922, the citizens presented him with handsome gifts, which embraced a portrait bust of himself in marble, together with silver plate and an illuminated address; also a rope of pearls to Mrs. White.

He was a member of the Committee which inquired into the Irish Water Power Resources, and was recently identified with the scheme to establish an electricity generating station on the River Bann and utilise the resources of Lough Neagh.

LONDON LETTER.

AN AIR FORCE CONTROVERSY.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

There is much talk to-day about a crisis at the Admiralty over a division of opinion between the Admiralty experts on the air service and the Air Force experts. The Admiralty is most anxious to retain control of aeroplanes operating with the fleets during a war; but, though such a step seems necessary, the Air Force thinks that the full use of our air fleets for protective purposes may be lost to the country in time of need. This phase of the question has been discussed by the Cabinet and the Sub-Committee of the Imperial Defence, and the Sub-Committee decided for the broad view against localisation of air forces. It is said that Mr. Amery does not take the same line on the question as the Sea Lords, with the result that the Sea Lords threaten resignation.

I doubt very much whether it will come to any such sensational development. The controversy probably will be determined, as most British controversies are, by a compromise, under which the Admiralty will retain substantial control of its own air forces. This is not the first dispute of the kind that has arisen in our history. There was a similar controversy not very many years ago over the question of naval ordnance. The Admiralty's point of view has usually, but not always, carried the day, because it has been ultimately recognised that, as the Navy is our first line of defence, it must have full control over all that it needs to conduct that defence.

One Way Out.

Theoretically the best solution would be to set up a Ministry of Defence to control and co-ordinate the movements of all three forces. The difficulty, however, is to find a civilian capable of undertaking such widespread functions, and in the end, I anticipate, matters will be left very much as they are.

The British Note.

It now seems almost certain that the French and Belgian replies to the British Note will be in the hands of Mr. Baldwin by Sunday or Monday, and in this event there may be some kind of discussion in the Commons next week. A potential factor in the situation is that Mr. Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the United States Treasury, is to go down to Chequers to-morrow with the Prime Minister and spend the week-end. In view of the common knowledge that this country accepted the idea that a United States expert of high financial standing should be included in the proposed Commission to assess Germany's capacity to pay, the visit becomes of importance. It may be only a friendly and private meeting, but there can be little doubt that the Prime Minister and his guest will not entirely refrain from discussing international questions.

The Autumn Recess.

Before the Houses of Parliament rise for the autumn recess next week the Prime Minister has several matters to deal with in the House of Commons. He hopes to be able to make a speech on the European situation on Tuesday or Wednesday on the second or third reading stages of the Appropriation Bill, which permits almost any subject to be discussed. He will also make a statement of Government policy concerning Imperial defence, and this pronouncement will be of the greatest importance. The Prime Minister also may make one or two shorter speeches on other matters.

Unemployment.

Sir Montagu Barlow is shortly to announce the plans of the Government for dealing with the unemployment problem during next winter, and there will be general disappointment if the Minister of Labour is not able to outline a far more comprehensive scheme than has been arranged for the last three winters. The plans of the Coalition Government did very little to relieve the situation, and the industrial members of Parliament have performed a real service in drawing attention to the vast amount of work which could reasonably be put in hand. Fortunately, schemes of railway development are reaching the practical stage, and there is at last a prospect that endeavours will be made to bring the number of unemployed below the present total of 1,180,000.

The Leeds Election.

The Leeds election has been won by a staunch Conservative in the person of Sir Charles Wilson, who refused to water down his convictions in any way, and this fact alone may have helped to give him such a satisfactory majority over the Labour candidate. The Labour poll was very good; and, if the Liberals had not put forward a candidate, it is possible that Mr. Slesser might have won. The Liberal vote has fallen away by fifty per cent., with the result that the Liberal candidate forfeits his nomination fee.

The Holidays.

With the breaking up of the schools the rush to the seaside has set in, and to-day the London stations were overrun with crowds of boys and girls returning from school, or setting out for the seaside. The railway authorities state that the holiday traffic during the week has shown a steady increase, and everything points to a "record" holiday traffic next week and over the August Bank Holiday. It is interesting to hear that the railways generally are much busier this week than they were a year ago. The summer excursions particularly attract patronage.

The Dock Strike.

The dock strike in London is still unsettled, but the food supply continues to come in. Many consignments, which would normally come to the London docks, are being unloaded now at provincial ports and sent to London by rail. In such cases there is always a tendency for temporary arrangements to remain in operation for a much longer period than the emergency which necessitated them, and some of the trade which has been diverted will be a long time before it comes back. London docks were beginning to show a satisfactory increase in tonnage discharged, and the dispute must in any case seriously retard the recovery which had begun to show itself.

Taxi Fares.

Quite a controversy exists on the question whether it is not time for a reduction in taxi-cab fares. On the one side, most people have an idea that the recent cut in the price of tyres, followed by a fall in the cost of petrol, should show itself on the taximeter. On the other hand, the cab proprietors assert that the increased cost of the cabs, heavier garage charges, and the high vehicle tax do not permit of cheaper fares, while the Home Office, apparently, supports their view by stating that the recent drop in petrol only works out at a sixth of a penny a mile. When the fares were increased by 50 per cent. above pre-war level to a shilling a mile many people cut down their use of the taxi-cab to a considerable extent, and it is quite possible that cheaper fares would in the end prove more beneficial than harmful to the taxi-owners.

It was stated some time ago that a higher efficiency would be demanded from London taxi-cabs, and it is now announced that from next September every cab presented for licensing must pass a test at twenty miles an hour on the level, and prove itself capable of mounting certain test hills at six miles an hour.

SENATE AND LAND BILL

DANGER OF INSECURITY OF TENURE.

LANDLORDS' CRITICISMS.

COMMISSION'S POWERS TOO WIDE.

In the Senate yesterday the Land Bill passed its second reading after a discussion in which some of its provisions were criticised severely.

Great uneasiness was expressed about the Government's proposal to give the Land Commission almost unlimited power over both tenanted and untenanted land.

The Senators argued that, if this proposal were accepted, it would imperil the farmers' security of tenure; for Governments always would be susceptible to pressure by the "landless men." Mr. Hogan explained that these provisions would be applied only to the relief of congestion.

In the Dail the chief business was the consideration of the report of the Committee that was appointed a few weeks ago to examine sites for a Parliament House. The report contained no definite suggestion, and the Committee was reappointed to inquire into the question of temporary premises.

THE SENATE.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

AN END TO "SPLENDID ISOLATION."

Lord Glenavy took the chair at 3 o'clock.

The House, without any discussion, passed through all its stages the Dyestuffs Bill. This provides for the unrestricted importation of any dyestuffs into the Saorstat.

Mr. James G. Douglas introduced a bill to authorise the Executive Council, in the name and on behalf of Saorstat Eireann, to give certain guarantees to the League of Nations, and to accept regulations prescribed by the League. In view of the resolution of the Seanad some time ago, he was particularly glad that the Government allowed the bill to be initiated in that House.

Colonel Sir Hutcheson Poë said that he supported the motion, because the League of Nations aimed at a great brotherhood of the nations. He feared that there was no other way to secure the peace of the world but by the realisation of the ideals of the League.

Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald, Minister for External Affairs, said that the bill was introduced to allow the Oireachtas to register its opinion as to the advisability of joining the League or not. Prior to the matter being discussed in the Seanad some time ago application had been forwarded for admission to the League. The actual joining of the League was an Executive act, but the Executive had no desire to do anything except according to the wishes of the Oireachtas. The Government considered that it was in the interests of the country to join the League.

Ireland was now a free country of Europe, and she could not exist in splendid isolation. The League was the only body where the various nations of Europe, and of the world, could meet to discuss matters relating to themselves and to each other.

"We believe that we will be able to establish ourselves in the respect of other countries by being there. Unfortunately during the past year we went out of our way to confirm all that our enemies ever said against us. We believe that the impression left on the world is unjust to us. We do not want to be considered anything better than we are, but we want to be recognised for what we are. Further, we believe that this association with other countries will establish us as a beneficent power in the world."

Answering the Earl of Mayo, the Minister said that the general system of representation on the League was that each country should send six representatives—three delegates, and three substitutes.

Leave to introduce the bill was granted, with one or two dissentient voices.

LAND BILL.

MINISTER CONGRATULATED

The second reading of the Land Bill was then taken.

The Earl of Mayo congratulated the Minister for Agriculture on the manner in which he had carried the bill through the Dail. It was a most intricate and difficult measure, and from all his (speaker's) experience of land bills in another place across the water, he could sympathise with the Minister in the task he had to perform, and congratulate him on his overcoming of its many difficulties.

He agreed with the principle of the bill. That principle was that those tenants who had not purchased, and those landlords who had not sold their land, were, if they did not come to terms, compelled to do so. He hoped that after their accession of land bills they were at last approaching finality. Those land bills had given rise to more heartburnings than anything else in this country.

The principle of compulsion in the sale of land had been recognised by the Imperial Parliament in the bill introduced in 1920, and now, if finality was to be reached, some sort of compulsion was necessary. The parties concerned could no longer stand haggling before the world. But compulsion could be carried too far; injustice to some extent could be done to one of the parties or the other.

The bill provided for the acquisition free of all costs to the landowner of the landowner's interest at a price varying from 15 to 16½ years' purchase of the gross rental, and it gave him a permanent and undiminishable net income of from 67½ per cent. to 73 per cent. of his present gross rental. English landowners would jump at those terms, especially with the present taxation.

The bill gave powers to the Land Commission which would require the most careful scrutiny. He was not going into detail as to those powers, but he would point out that it should be realised that the Land Commission were to get absolute power to take any land at any time and anywhere. That included the land of annuity-paying tenants under the Act of 1903. It was in the bill, but he doubted if the country had realised it.

He had read every line of the debates on the bill in the Dail, and had come to the conclusion that the Minister had kept an even keel throughout without listening to one side or the other.

Some people in this country seemed to believe that the millenium had come; that when this bill became law they were going to have as much land as they had a desire for. But the Irish farmers would have to compete with farmers the world over, some of whom farmed on a huge scale. The Irish farmers would have to work, and not waste time in finding fault with others. There would be competition in cattle, in grain, and in dairy produce.

BRITAIN'S PLEDGE.

Sir John Keane said that undoubtedly the Land Bill had been received very favourably. The Minister of Agriculture had been congratulated, and rightly so, on the tact and ability with which he brought the bill to its present stage.

There were many in a humble position who regarded the passing of the landlords as a loss; many who regretted it deep down in their hearts, realising that landlords were the expression of culture in this country.

The terms of the Land Bill would mean a loss of income to many who could ill afford it. There was a pledge from the British Government that before the political question was finally disposed of justice would be done to the landlords. There was still time to redeem that pledge, and honour demanded that it should be redeemed by making the price more just to the landlords from non-Irish funds.

The attitude of the general body of unpurchased tenants was unwarranted. Rents were reduced by Government tribunals. The refusal to pay followed on a period of great agricultural prosperity, which was evidenced by the large increase in banking deposits. Landlords in England increased their rents during the war, but the Irish landlords were excluded from share in the general prosperity. The unpurchased tenants had obtained a reduction of 25 per cent., but at a far greater loss in honour and prestige. In this connection the Government was faced with a position only less difficult to handle than irregularism.

The far-reaching powers conferred by the bill were a colourable imitation of nationalisation. They would only partially relieve bona fide congestion, and, on the other hand, there would be a feeling of insecurity on the part of the existing occupier. Some of the provisions of the bill would deter occupiers from putting their savings back into the land. Under the cloak of relieving congestion one congest could be put in on the land, and after that landless men could be put on it at random.

MAN AGAINST MAN.

Sir John Keane, continuing, said that if the bill were administered in the sense he had indicated, instead of having class against class they were very likely to have man against man, and the new order would be worse than the old. What they should try to do was, by their laws, to bring about good-will and good relations between all classes. If he might say so, they should bring the principle of the Tenth Commandment into their daily life and exclude from their laws any principle that did not tend to peace and prosperity.

Mr. Bennett said that he approached this bill from the same standpoint as Sir John Keane. To his mind, this bill if amended, if given the consideration it deserved, would, he believed, sweeten social relations and induce good-will and increase production. He believed that the Government had approached the question from a very proper attitude, but he would call attention to points which to his detached mind needed amendment. The period of the annuity claims was indefinite, and definition would be useful. He held that the matter of the costs of collection of arrears should be stated, instead of being left to the Land Commission. He thought that land might be acquired for other matters than relief of congestion.

Any farmer owning land value for £3,000 could have his land taken from him—they were told only for the relief of congestion; but they had other reasons than congestion for which land could be appropriated, and he objected to farmers living with a sword of Damocles hanging over them. They should have security of tenure.

It was also essential, he held, that a definition should be given to the term "watercourse." To his mind a danger to every farmer in Ireland lay in Section 67. The appointed day might be to-morrow, it might be in five, ten or fifty years, it might be never; but until that day the Government retain all powers.

"GROSSLY UNJUST."

Colonel Moore said that he did not agree with Lord Mayo that it was a very generous bill. He did agree with Sir John Keane that it was a grossly unjust measure.

The Earl of Mayo intervened, and explained that what he had said was that if these figures were proposed and passed on the other side of the water English landlords would jump at them.

Sir John Keane protested that he had no recollection of saying that this measure was an unjust measure.

Colonel Moore said that he would speak for himself, and he thought that it was a very unjust measure. In many cases it would mean a loss to landlords to the extent of 30 per cent., and in many cases it would cause the loss of all their incomes. He thought that it was a very stiff measure to bring before a very unrepresentative Dail, but he thought that the Minister was obliged to do it. It would be noticed that at one sweep all the settlements that had been made in regard to the land for the last fifty years were swept away. He did not think that the bill provided any safeguard against wholesale confiscation without reason. He would welcome any amendment that would limit the power to take over land.

CARE NEEDED.

Mr. Bagwell said that they should examine the provisions of the bill very carefully. That part of it dealing with congestion was calculated to undo completely everything that the rest of the bill might do in the matter of establishing greater security. Without security they could not expect to get increased production and increased prosperity. If the bill passed in its present form there would be no security for anybody in the matter of land. On the economic side it was possible that the attempt to relieve congestion might result in far worse congestion than before.

The tendency would be to establish a greater number of smaller units. The small farmer owed an enormous debt to the big farmer, and he did not think that the debt which the agricultural industry as a whole owed to the big farmer was fully realised. They knew that there had been a tremendous advance in the country owing to the high-class farming that had been carried on by big farmers. Who was going to buy high class bulls and make the experiments that resulted in improved methods? These things were being done by the farmer who worked on a large scale. They should do all that was possible to remove from the bill everything calculated to create discontent.

The Earl of Kerry touched upon the disposition of sporting rights dealt with in Clause 44. He believed that these could be made an important national asset. It was laid down in the bill that the fishing rights should be taken over by the Land Commission at their own price. It was not stated exactly what the Land Commission should do in the matter. He would like, where fishing rights were taken over by the State, that the former owner should have the first refusal of them. It was necessary that someone should be responsible for the preservation of various small rivers which were at present almost denuded of fish through the use of nets, explosives, and poison.

SPORTING VISITORS.

He next referred to the question of the sporting rights on bog and mountain—rough shooting. He asked that some provision should be made to preserve from extinction snipe and similar game that provide such enjoyable sport in the midst of beautiful scenery. With the restoration of peaceful conditions there would be a large influx of visitors to enjoy this sport, and he asked that some steps be taken not to destroy this potential national asset. There was no reason why all the sporting rights should not be taken over by the State, as had been done in some cases by the Congested Districts Board, and was the practice in some countries such as France, where the letting of those rights brought in a very considerable national income.

Mr. Irwin supported the bill, and congratulated the Minister on accomplishing a task that had beaten many eminent statesmen. He would like to see the landlords accepting 4 per cent. and allowing the remaining ½ per cent. to be added to what the purchaser had to pay towards redemption. That would ensure greater security by an earlier redemption of the bonds. He asked for some arrangement that would give the purchasing tenants decadal reductions as under previous Acts.

Mr. Counihan said that the measure was not the great thing it was said to be. Had the Government confined themselves to legislation for the graver concerns of the moment they would have had a greater claim on the grati-

NOEL LEMASS.

POLICE UNABLE TO TRACE HIM.

STATEMENT IN DAIL.

In the Dail yesterday, Alderman Byrne asked the President if the Government had instituted any inquiries that would throw light on the circumstances surrounding the disappearance of Mr. Noel Lemass, which took place on 3rd inst. "in broad daylight in a much-frequented thoroughfare."

The question was answered by Mr. O'Higgins, who said that inquiries from official sources had failed to throw any light on the kidnapping of Mr. Lemass, or to confirm the recent rumour that his body had been found near Chapelizod. Everything possible was being done, but so far no trace of the missing man had been found.

Mr. Johnson asked if the official inquiries included the calling on or the examination of Mr. Devine, the gentleman who had been in the company of Mr. Lemass when the latter was kidnapped.

Mr. O'Higgins said that he had been in touch with the three police departments—the D.M.P., the Civic Guard, and the C.I.D.—with a view to having the fullest inquiries made. He did not know the exact steps that those departments had taken in making those inquiries. He had asked them, however, to make the fullest inquiry with a view to having some light thrown on the case. The inquiries had failed to confirm the rumour that the body of Mr. Lemass had been found.

Mr. Johnson again asked if the Minister knew whether the gentleman who had been temporarily kidnapped with Mr. Lemass had been seen by anyone connected with any of the detective departments.

Mr. O'Higgins—I did not say that he has not been seen.

Mr. Johnson was understood to ask if the Minister was aware that that was the case.

Mr. O'Higgins said that he did not contradict the deputy's statement. The fact was that the inquiries made failed to confirm the rumour of the finding of the body of Mr. Lemass.

"EXTRAORDINARY."

Subsequently, Mr. Johnson raised the matter on the report stage of the Estimates. He said that he desired to bring forward the question of the failure of the C.I.D. to pursue certain inquiries into the alleged arrest and detention of Mr. Lemass. The information that had reached him was that Mr. Devine, the gentleman who was accompanying Mr. Lemass when the latter was kidnapped, had not, up to Tuesday last, been approached by the C.I.D., though it was publicly known that Mr. Devine had been "arrested." He had been taken through the streets as far as Oriel House, and there directed in another direction.

One would have thought, commented Mr. Johnson, that the most obvious and immediate concern of a Criminal Investigation Department would have been to see Mr. Devine, and find out about the circumstances of his arrest, and the arrest of his companion. Up to the early part of the present week he had not been approached by any police authority, detective department, civic force, or any police official.

"That," declared Mr. Johnson, "is an extraordinary state of affairs." One could only say that there was some blindness or deafness and dumbness somewhere. In view of the failure of the police to interview Mr. Devine what could they think of the inquiries that the authorities had been making about the detention of this man? He asked the Minister to give an explanation of the matter.

[Last night we received the following letter from Mr. Johnson:—

I desire to correct a slight mis-statement I made in the Dail to-day.

I said that no one representing the police had approached Mr. Devine up to Tuesday last. The fact is that Mr. Devine was approached on Saturday last by a representative of the D.M.P. The authorities were informed by letter through Mr. Lemass, senior, on the 9th inst., and the D.M.P. was informed by a personal call on the 16th. The interview with Mr. Devine took place on the 21st inst.]

THE PRESIDENT.

President Cosgrave said that the Minister for Home Affairs had made inquiries about this case, and he was not in a position to give any further information, except to say that from the first moment they were informed of this incident they realised the necessity for taking action immediately, and getting all possible information. He interviewed the two departments immediately concerned, but there was not naturally much to go on.

He deprecated, and the Executive deprecated, and he was sure the House deprecated the arrest of, or interference with, any citizen of the State, except in the manner prescribed by law. He had hoped that, with the development of the more orderly conditions of the past few months, that they might pass through this semi-normal stage without any of these incidents. If there were such occurrences the Government would exercise all the resources of the State to bring the persons responsible to justice. He hoped that every citizen would lend his aid to make life possible and normal and peaceable in the State.

MINISTER'S STATEMENT.

THE POLICE REPORTS.

Some time after the Dail rose, Press representatives waited on Mr. O'Higgins at his request, and received the statement which (he explained) he was to have made on the adjournment about the kidnapping of Mr. Lemass.

Mr. Johnson had suggested that the police had been remiss in their investigation of the matter, said the Minister, and it was because of that that he wished to make his statement. The first information that they got concerning the matter was on the 16th inst., when Mr. Lemass's father reported to the Detective Department of the D.M.P. that his son, while in company with Mr. Devine, Superintendent of the Cleansing Department of the Dublin Corporation, had been taken away about midday on the 3rd inst. from Exchequer street by a man in plain clothes, and that he had not since been heard of.

"I can only assume," said Mr. O'Higgins, "that the delay of thirteen days in reporting this matter to any official quarter was due to the fact that Noel Lemass was an escaped prisoner, and the incident in Exchequer street was assumed to be an official arrest."

MR. DEVINE'S STORY.

The Minister then gave the text of the report of an interview which a sergeant of the Detective Department had with Mr. Devine.

In the latter's statement to the sergeant it was mentioned that after leaving the Wicklow Hotel at 2.40 p.m. the two men went along Exchequer street towards Great George's street. Mr. Devine, who was walking on the inside, was caught suddenly by the collar from behind by a man who produced a large revolver. Mr. Lemass was treated in a similar fashion by another armed man. Mr. Devine was taken to a laneway at the junction of Lincoln place and Westland Row.

In the laneway he was searched by the armed man, who examined papers and documents belonging to him. At the time of his arrest Mr. Devine had no opportunity of seeing the man who had Mr. Lemass in custody.

The sergeant's report, said Mr. O'Higgins, was forwarded to the Superintendent, who sent it in due course to the Commissioner.

"The Commissioner forwarded it to me on the 24th inst., with the comment that inquiries were being continued," said Mr. O'Higgins.

ORIEL HOUSE INQUIRIES.

The Minister then referred to the report which he had received from the Director of Oriel House. It stated that exhaustive inquiries had been made in the case, but without any success so far. The first information that Oriel House had of Mr. Lemass's disappearance was when an advertisement appeared in the daily papers on the 16th inst., and the first information they received about Mr. Devine having been in Mr. Lemass's company was contained in a letter from Mr. Lemass's father.

The Director of Oriel House then interviewed Mr. Lemass, sen., and obtained what information he was in a position to give.

All possible steps were taken to trace the missing man, but without any success so far, and they had failed to get any confirmation whatever, concluded the Minister, of the rumour that the body had been found.

For the third time since April Hungarian railway rates were increased on July 25. Passenger fares were increased 100 per cent. and freight rates 50 per cent.

SHIPOWNERS MEET DOCKERS.

FRANK DISCUSSION.

CONFERENCE TO RESUME TO-DAY.

MR. LARKIN PRESENT.

At the instance of the Ministry of Industry and Commerce, a conference between representatives of the Shipowners' Federation and those of the Transport Workers' Union was held in Government Buildings, Dublin, yesterday.

After over an hour's exchange of views—with Professor Whelehan, Deputy Minister for Industry and Commerce, presiding—the conference adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

Shortly after 11 o'clock, the hour fixed for the meeting, a small party of men, presumably dockers, called at Government Buildings, and intimated that there would be no settlement unless Mr. James Larkin were admitted to the conference. This was at once agreed to, but nearly two hours elapsed before Mr. Larkin arrived and the discussion started.

Mr. Larkin, it is understood, demanded that, as a preliminary to a settlement, the "cut" of 6s. 6d. a week made last April in the seamen's and firemen's wages should be restored. The Transport Workers' Union would not accept any reduction in the wages of dockers at present, and the rates that obtained up to July 16th should remain in force until January 1, 1924. In the meantime the employers would have the opportunity, if they wished to use it, of producing their balance sheets to show whether or not they were losing money. Upon the result of that would depend whether the men would be willing to accept a reduction.

The employers' representatives put their case for the necessity for the "cut," and after a brief discussion the conference adjourned until this morning.

MR. LARKIN AND THE SPLIT.

Touching upon the dockers' strike, in the course of a speech in the Mansion House, Dublin, last night, Mr. James Larkin said that he very much regretted that there was a split in the Transport Union. The organisation was torn apart, but, even so, he was quite confident that the men would never submit to dictation, nor yield to the demands of the employers.

The shipping companies' case was that business could not be continued economically if the workers' wages were to remain unchanged, but it could be proved that the employers all along the line were making greater profits than they had previous to 1914. They had decided long ago to "cut" wages. Now they wanted another pound of flesh, and wished to be "masters in their own house."

BUSY QUAYS AGAIN.

By yesterday morning several more steamers with cargoes had arrived at the South quays and commenced to discharge. From Butt Bridge to near the end of Sir John Rogerson's quay the vessels lay almost bow to stern, and the quayside presented quite a lively appearance. There seems to be a lot of sugar and any amount of bacon coming into Dublin by the chartered vessels. These are manned by crews from the National Sailors' and Firemen's Union, and the unloading is carried out by Transport Workers' Union dock labourers. The latter refused to work at the British and Irish Steam Packet Company's boats before the Ship-owners' Federation demanded a "cut" in dockers' wages. The result is that Irish-owned steamers are tied up, while outsiders are reaping a little harvest.

The British and Irish steamer, Lady Wimborne, was getting up steam yesterday. No information was to be got at the company's offices, but quayside opinion saw in this development a sign that a settlement would be reached at the conference. Saturday was the vessel's regular sailing day.

This morning the express steamer, Arvonia, is due to arrive at her old berth at the North Wall with hundreds of passengers from Holyhead on board. These are holiday folk.

CATTLE EXPORTERS' VIEWS.

At a largely attended meeting of the Cattle Exporters' Association, held last evening, Mr. Hugh Cassidy (Chairman), presiding, the question of freight and rail charges was under consideration.

The Chairman pointed out the disabilities under which the trade was at present labouring, not the least of which were the excessive rail and shipping rates. With the advent of Canadian cattle in growing numbers to the English markets, these rates placed the premier trade of Ireland at a grave disadvantage. Of course, the question of rates hinged to a great extent upon the working conditions obtaining here, as compared with the more advantageous conditions prevailing across Channel, and that was a factor in the comparison. Nevertheless, the main fact emerges, as far as they were concerned, that freights and charges must be brought into line with other countries if they were to hold their markets, and the sooner that was realised the better.

A resolution in the following terms was passed unanimously:—

"That this meeting, representative of the cattle trade, views with concern the present high rate of carriage and transport charges prevailing in the Free State, which are considerably in excess of those obtaining in Great Britain, and, consequently, place the premier industry of Ireland at a grave disadvantage with their competitors, and they earnestly call upon the authorities to take the requisite measures to procure early relief."

EMPLOYERS MEET.

UNITED DEMAND FOR WAGES REDUCTION.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon an adjourned meeting of employers, called by the Advisory Committee of the Dublin Employers' Federation, was held in the Shelbourne Hotel. There was a large attendance, which included representative employers from Cork and Waterford.

We understand that the labour situation was further discussed and that the meeting was unanimous in the determination to take up a firm stand on the necessity for reducing wages all round.

Further, we understand that it was promised that the different trades in Cork and Waterford would join with the Dublin employers in a demand that was to be made for an all-round reduction in wages, of which notice would be served on all the trades unions in the near future.

VAAL RIVER BARRAGE.

MILLION AND A HALF POUND SCHEME.

JOHANNESBURG, Friday.

Prince Arthur of Connaught, Governor-General, to-day formally opened the new Vaal River barrage of the Rand Water Board at Vereeniging. The barrage will ultimately provide twenty million gallons of water daily to the communities of the Witwatersrand. Consisting of thirty-six sluice gates, the barrage creates a lake forty miles in length and with a surface area of six and a half square miles. The entire scheme will cost over one and a half million pounds.—(Reuter.)

THE TREATMENT OF PRISONERS.

We have received a communication from Dr. E. L. Fleury, in which she complains of the treatment of the women prisoners in the North Dublin Union, where she was imprisoned for some months.

DUBLIN OFFICE RAIDED.

The Sinn Fein Reorganising Committee, of 15 College Green, Dublin, in a communication to the Press report that their "office was raided on Thursday night, and a file of correspondence stolen."

THE BOUNDARY COMMISSION.

OFFICIAL LETTERS.

FURTHER STEPS AFTER THE ELECTION.

F. 305. DESPATCH No. 206.

(Signed) T. M. HEALY.

His Grace the Duke of Devonshire, K.G., Secretary of State for the Colonies, Downing street, London, S.W. 1.

3. I am communicating your despatch, together with reply, to the Government of Northern Ireland.—I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

(Signed) DEVONSHIRE.

Governor-General T. M. Healy, Esq., K.C.

TRAINING OF OFFICERS

IRISH MILITARY MISSION TO PARIS.

PARIS, Friday.

The Irish Military Mission, composed of General MacMahon, Commander of the Curragh Camp; Colonel Bennett and Major O'Byrne, accompanied by Captain Lacassie, of the French Ministry of War, on Wednesday visited the military school at Saint Cyr.

The Mission was received by General Tanant, Commander of the school, who showed it everything that there was to see, and explained the organisation.

Major-General MacMahon, in thanking General Tanant, expressed the hope that Ireland would soon send her officers to Saint Cyr, where so many illustrious Frenchmen of Irish origin, such as Marshal MacMahon, had received their military training.

The Irish Mission also visited the artillery barracks at Versailles, where they were greatly interested in the training courses for infantry officers.

BALKAN RUMOURS.

"REPUBLICAN REVOLUTION IN GREECE."

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.
ROME, Friday.

Unofficial advices reaching Rome from Athens confirm the rumours of a coup d'état in Greece.

It is rumoured in diplomatic circles, however, that serious trouble is looming in the Balkans. The assertion is made, but cannot be officially confirmed, that Great Britain has ordered several naval units to gather with all despatch at Malta.

PARIS, Friday.

Reports are current in Paris that a Republican revolution in Greece is imminent. M. Venizelos is said to be favourable to the movement.

General Pangalos, at Salonica (recently removed from the command of the Army in Western Thrace), and Admiral Hadjikirakos, in Crete, are named as the active organisers of the movement to overthrow King George.

The Greek Legation deny these persistent reports.

MOTOR DRIVERS AND BORDER CUSTOMS.

A CONVENIENT ARRANGEMENT

The Royal Automobile Club has just completed an arrangement with the Customs authorities of Great Britain and Northern Ireland which will be the means of saving car-owners an infinity of trouble. Members, whose business takes them across the border from the Irish Free State to Ulster, have, in the past, been compelled to deposit customs duty varying from 22.2 to 33 1-3rd per cent. with the authorities every time they made the journey, and to recover it on their return. It is easy to imagine the annoyance that this caused to professional men, such as doctors and others, whose business frequently takes them over the border. Residents in Southern Ireland can obtain these facilities from the Royal Irish Automobile Club.

The Royal Automobile Club has overcome this difficulty by the simple expedient of designing a new form of triptyque, which has been approved in its entirety by the Customs. By using it, members and associate members of the club now only have to guarantee the amount of the duty with the Royal Automobile Club, or the Royal Irish Automobile Club, and they are then free to cross and recross the border to an almost unlimited extent on production of the triptyque, which is merely stamped by the authorities. This method obviously means a big saving of time and temper.

IRISH LAND STOCK.

NEW ISSUES TO NATIONAL DEBT COMMISSIONERS.

The London Gazette of last night gave notice that under the Irish Land Acts (1903 and 1909, 3rd Edward 7, c. 37, and 9th Edward 7, c. 42), the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury, pursuant to Section 2 of the Irish Land Act, 1909, and Section 28 of the Irish Land Act, 1903, have directed the creation of £500,000 Guaranteed Three per Cent. Stock, which stock has been issued to the National Debt Commissioners.

MRS. MACSWINEY AND THE FREE STATE.

An enthusiastic demonstration in the Mansion House, Dublin, last night, marked the first public appearance, since her return from America, of Mrs. Terence MacSwiney, the widow of the late Lord Mayor of Cork, who died on hunger strike. Speeches were delivered welcoming her, and selections were rendered by the band of the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union.

Expressing thanks for a warm reception, Mrs. MacSwiney recounted her experiences in America, where, she said, the supporters of the Free State had no influence, and could obtain a hearing only in one or two centres.

Mr. James Larkin delivered a panegyric on the life of the late Lord Mayor of Cork.

TONS OF MONEY.

BRITISH ARMY'S PAY DAY IN COLOGNE.

50,000 MILLION MARKS.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
COLOGNE, Friday.

Cologne Banks—British and German—closed their doors this morning, announcing that payment was temporarily suspended owing to the shortage of currency.

The Reichbank day's supply of paper marks proved completely inadequate, and only early callers could be supplied.

An official of the Reichbank told me that the bank's supply of paper marks intended for the payment of weekly wages, which were due to-day, arrived a few days ago.

The story of how the British Army's pay was received is like a fable out of the Arabian Nights. It was brought from Berlin in sacks, which, filled with marks, weighed altogether over a ton.

The official of the local pay office who went to Berlin to collect this colossal amount of money was escorted to the Occupation frontier by German detectives.

At the border he was met by a strong military guard, under whose charge the sacks were brought to Cologne. The smallest amount paid to a British soldier this afternoon was 4,000,000 marks, which means that the Army's requirements amounted to nearly 50,000,000,000 marks.

In 1914 this would have amounted to £2,500,000,000.

Officers and British civilians were unable to change their sterling into marks before the closing of the banks, and many had to borrow marks from better supplied friends in order to buy the ordinary necessaries of life.

Many more shops closed to-day, and business is almost at a stand-still.

BERLIN FOOD QUEUES.

SHORTAGE OF MARKS AT THE BANKS.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
BERLIN, Friday.

The average worker's wage in Berlin is now 30,000 marks hourly. Hamburg dockers get 2,200,000 marks this week, and will next week receive 3,000,000.

Small banks to-day received one per cent. of the money they asked for. The bank which numbers the British and American Embassies among its customers got 5,000,000, instead of 500,000,000.

The shortage of vital articles of food caused intense anger among the housewives, who thronged the markets and shops. In the poorer quarters of the city women rose early, and carried kitchen chairs and camp stools to the market places, or to the pavements outside the shops, hoping to get a share of what supplies there were.

Even in the west-end of the city there were long queues waiting to get margarine and eggs. At one market, which I visited, 200 people, marshalled by the police, waited in a queue to buy potatoes at 35,000 marks for 5 lbs. It is impossible to buy butter and sugar.

The food shortage is, probably, only temporary, and is explained partly by the delayed harvest, partly by the peasants' fear of their foodstuffs being confiscated by the police or by the angry crowds, and partly by their unwillingness to exchange them for useless paper marks.

In view of the strong attitude adopted by the police and the Prussian Government, the Communists have called off their much-advertised Potsdam anti-Junker demonstration on Sunday.

THE FRENCH REPLY.

QUESTION OF ALLIED DEBTS RAISED.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
PARIS, Friday.

The French reply will show that the attitude of M. Poincaré's Government has not changed in any essential points.

There is still the same insistence on the necessity of Germany abandoning passive resistance before negotiations can begin; there is the same refusal to accept the appointment of any international committee to replace the Reparations Commission, and there is the same refusal to consider any proposal which might cut down the German payments to France, unless it can be coupled with a proposal to wipe out the Allied debts.

A copy of the French reply to London is already in the hands of the Belgian Government. The Belgian text this morning still awaited the finishing touches, but it is assumed that within forty-eight hours, perhaps earlier, the Comte de St. Aulaire and M. Moncheur should be in a position to hand the Notes to Lord Curzon.

M. Poincaré is reported to have been in excellent spirits when he left for Tampigny. Indeed, during the past week, he is understood to have displayed a buoyancy which is certainly not inspired by the known difference between the British and French standpoints, but which may possibly be attributed to the firm hope that Britain will ultimately be converted in a large measure to the French view.

Presumably the French count on the Cuno Government breaking down in the face of the chaotic situation, and giving place to a Ministry which would readily co-operate with the Allies towards the reform of Germany's finances, and the payment of debts.—(Reuter.)

DEATH SENTENCE COMMUTED.

DUESSELDORF, Friday.

M. Millerand has commuted the death sentence on Herr George to one of penal servitude for life. The prisoner was sentenced to death on 13th inst., having been found guilty of sabotage by a French court. He was an engineer in the employment of Badische Aniline Works.—(Reuter.)

THE SIXPENNY RATE.

WESTMEATH CO. COUNCIL MAY BE SUPERSEDED.

In the Dail yesterday, Mr. Sean Lyons asked the Minister for Local Government if he were aware that the Westmeath County Council had refused to strike a sixpenny rate required to be levied under the Damage to Property (Compensation) Act, and if he would state what action he proposed to take.

Mr. Blythe replied that he was aware that the Council had not made the rate mentioned. He had full powers, and if necessary the Council could be superseded. Machinery was provided for the collection of the 6d. rate in the event of the Council's refusal to raise it. The necessary rates would be assessed and collected.

WING COMMANDER W. F. MACNEECE.

At the Investiture which was held at Buckingham Palace on July 25th, Wing-Commander W. F. MacNeece, C.B.E., D.S.O., D.F.C., eldest son of Colonel MacNeece, of Castle Cary, Co. Donegal, was invested by His Majesty the King with the C.B.E. (Military Division).

NORTHERN CIVIL SERVICE.

Last night's Belfast Gazette contains an Order by the Governor, the Duke of Abercorn, in reference to the appointment of the Right Hon. H. M. Pollock, M.P.; Sir Ernest Clark, C.B.E., and Mr. Lewis M'Quibban, as Civil Service Commissioners for Northern Ireland, and also regulations for appointments in the Northern Civil Service.

SUDDEN DEATH IN DUBLIN.

TO-DAY'S LONDON PAPERS.

THE ADMIRALTY AND THE AIR MINISTRY.

RIVAL POINTS OF VIEW.

"THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY SAYS:—

The long-standing difference of opinion between the Board of Admiralty and the Air Ministry has clearly come to a head at last. The question between the two Services is primarily one for professional experts. It is hedged round with technical considerations, and an imperfect understanding of them may easily give rise in the mind of the public to an unconscious exaggeration of the gravity of the dispute. But it is a question which, in the opinion of both parties, may vitally affect the security of the country, so that its wise and proper settlement cannot fail to be a matter of deep public concern.

In arriving at their decision, it may be taken for granted that the Cabinet will judge the whole case on its merits, without fear or favour; for they, even more than the Lords of the Admiralty, are responsible for the defence of the country. Whether they adopt the report in its entirety or not, they will doubtless take into consideration the belief that during its preparation the members of the Cabinet have not always taken the same view as that which they have now finally reached. There is, in fact, on merits, very much to be said for the Admiralty point of view. But, however strong their case for separate control of the small Air Force on which the Navy depends, it can only have been weakened by the tactics which have been adopted, with or without their knowledge and approval, in the effort to force their convictions on Parliament and the public. Their mistaken partisans, who have been getting up petitions against the report in the House of Commons, or have spread rumours that the members of the Board had threatened to resign in case of its adoption, have injured, instead of helped, their cause.

What the Lords of the Admiralty themselves may properly claim is a sympathetic appreciation and understanding by the Cabinet of their point of view, and this the country will expect and demand that it shall receive. But we are convinced that if the decision should go against them, it will be accepted in that spirit of loyalty and obedience to the call of duty of which the Royal Navy of this country has for centuries been a standing example to all the world.

THE BELGIAN REPLY.

The Times Correspondent at Brussels writes: Notwithstanding reports to the contrary, I am in a position to state that there are some points raised by the British draft Note on which agreement has not yet been reached between France and Belgium. Paris and Brussels will reply separately, and it appears very probable that on certain points the two replies may not be concordant, although the door will not be closed to subsequent negotiations.

CHINESE ANARCHY.

A MATTER OF DEEP CONCERN.

In a leading article on Chinese anarchy and foreign interests, The Times says:—Apart from all question of humanity, apart even from consideration of the actual and the prospective dangers of a political order which are inseparable from the rapid descent of a huge Empire into the abyss of utter lawlessness, the present state of China is of deep and immediate concern to all the commercial and trading peoples of the world. China is the greatest undeveloped market in the world, and never were new markets so necessary to these peoples as they are to-day. In the present condition of Europe and of our trade they are particularly necessary to ourselves. The unlimited possibilities of this market are shown by the expansion of the Customs revenue. Business in the interior is at a standstill; native capital has been hoarded for safety; in the Treaty ports the trade in piece-goods has been dull, and Japanese imports have been boycotted.

At present treaties designed to protect foreigners in their lawful business are openly disregarded, and foreigners themselves are treated with increasing contempt. The prevailing chaos cannot continue; it must end in a return to order, or in such a dissolution of society as will be fatal to the welfare of the Chinese masses, and fatal to the interests of all foreigners who have commercial or financial relations with China.

FOREIGN SQUAD OF DOCKERS.

EFFECT OF ENGLISH STRIKE.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.
FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
PALERMO, Friday.

The dockers' strike in England is seriously affecting many Sicilian exporters, and fruit shipments from Palermo, Catania, and Messini are at a standstill.

The Italian Consul-General in London has telegraphed to the President of the Palermo Chamber of Commerce, stating that he has been unable to obtain any special concessions. He is, therefore, organising an Italian squad of 100 men, under police protection to unload Italian goods.

MR. WILSON'S APPEAL.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
BOSTON, Friday.

Ex-President Wilson, writing in the Atlantic Monthly, under the heading, "The Road Away from Revolution," says that the present day civilisation cannot survive materially unless redeemed spiritually.

This is the first time since his illness that Mr. Wilson has made public his views on the present day problems. He makes what is essentially a religion appeal for better understanding between capital and labour.

ORANGE AND BLACK LOYALISTS.

MR. WILLIAM COOTE'S ACTION

In the King's Bench Division, Belfast, before Mr. Justice Brown, a case was mentioned in an ex-parte application, in which Mr. William Coote, M.P., is the plaintiff and the Executive of the Orange and Black Loyalist Defence Association are defendants.

The proceedings were initiated by the plaintiff, Mr. Coote, against the Right Hon. W. H. Lyons, D.L., and others, as the Executive Committee of the Association, to recover money had and received by the defendants for the plaintiff's use, also a like sum of money payable by the defendants to the plaintiff for work done and services rendered at defendants' request, and for breach of contract in connection with his recent visit to America.

Twelve names were cited in the writ, and Mr. George H. Hanna (instructed by Mr. George McCracken) applied for liberty to add the names of eighteen others.

The application was granted.

The Prince of Wales, as President of the British Empire Exhibition, yesterday said that the organisation of the exhibition was now on a sound basis, and they could reasonably hope that there was now no obstacle to hinder its progress to a brilliant success.

Rakovsky, the recently appointed head of the Russian Trade Delegation, has left Moscow for London.

Speaking at Edinburgh yesterday, the Prime Minister said that the Unionist Party was as anxious as anyone speaking in the name of Socialism to do all in their power for the betterment of the people. He wanted to see better feelings and unity among all classes. He wanted to be a healer, and leave office with the country in better heart.

Mr. Justice Horridge, in the Divorce Court yesterday, granted Roland Donne Bentley, of Leicester, a divorce from his wife, Fanny Elizabeth. Albert Pemberton, the co-respondent, who conducted a Mission at Melton Mowbray, was ordered to pay £1,000 damages.

JOCKEY TO PAY £300 DAMAGES.

MR. JUSTICE DARLING ON HORSEMANSHIP.

ROMAN RACES.

A verdict, with £300 damages, was obtained in the King's Bench Division, London, yesterday, by Mr. H. J. Boam, of Hove, Sussex, against the Irish jockey, Michael Beary.

Mr. Justice Darling heard the case, which arose out of the death of plaintiff's mare, Ironore, at Kempton Park, in the Fulwell Plate, which, Mr. Boam declared, was caused by the negligent riding of Beary on Golly Eyes. Plaintiff claimed £800 damages.

THE EVIDENCE.

MICHAEL BEARY'S STORY OF THE ACCIDENT.

Mr. Sidney Gaultrey, "Hotspur," of the Daily Telegraph, said that just before the accident there were a number of horses bunched together, and he could not tell which horse had fallen until some time afterwards.

In an article after a photograph appeared he wrote:—

The photograph had it been available earlier might have confirmed the statement of Beary that he was forced on to Ironore by the pressure of the outside horses. The published photo does much to increase some doubt in my mind that Beary was not so guilty as his suspension would make him out to be. There is no doubt about the fairness of the Stewards, but the scene depicted by the photo puts an aspect on it which would not be forthcoming except by this instance of instantaneous photography.

Captain Ernest Alfred Elgee, a racehorse owner, said that Beary lay right down on the horse, so that it was difficult to follow him.

His Lordship—I wonder they don't go to sleep.

Witness added that all the horses were so bunched together that he could not see the actual position.

Michael Beary, giving evidence, said that last year he was third in the list of winning jockeys, riding 73 winners. He had been before the Stewards of the Jockey Club several times. He had also been before the Stewards of the Turf Club in Ireland. All jockeys were.

The last year he was in Ireland he rode for the Stewards of the Turf Club and headed the winners' list.

Dealing with the race at Kempton Park, Beary said that after going a furlong he was lying second from the rails. There were three horses on his outside crowding on to him, nearly bringing him down, and forcing him on to th inside horse, Ironore.

As Ironore dropped back he was forced on to the rails. The bumping continued until they got into the straight. Ironore was forced out and he did not see her again. He did not see her fall, and did not know that she was down until he returned to the paddock. The jockeys all round him were shouting. He supposed because they had not enough room. His own horse was nearly down.

"MERELY A PASSENGER."

Mr. Hastings—Could you have prevented being pushed on to the rails? No; I was merely a passenger; my horse was nearly down.

Do you blame Ingham or any of the other boys? No; I blame no one.

Do you make any complaint about the Stewards of the Jockey Club? None whatever. I abide by their ruling. I gave them my account, just as I have given it here, that I was merely a passenger.

Mr. Thomas (cross-examining)—Your mounts seem very unfortunate. You don't seem to be able to manage them, although you are such a skilful jockey? No more so than other jockeys.

Mr. Thomas—Still less manage the judge.

Mr. Thomas—You seem to be very unfortunate. It is always the horse's fault and not yours, but the Stewards punish you? They do what they think right.

A BALDOYLE EPISODE.

Further cross-examined, Beary said that at Limerick he was called on to explain why he did not start on Juvenile, and he was suspended for the rest of the year. He was also suspended at Baldoyle in 1919.

You are what they call in France an experienced hand at attending Stewards' meetings? Why did you not ask the Stewards to call other jockeys to show that you were crowded? If I had known that this action was coming I would have done so. Witness said he did not understand when he was before the Stewards at Kempton that he was accused of foul riding. He was asked if he knocked down Ironore. At the Newmarket inquiry Beary said that he called Victor Smyth, Mr. Cottrill, and Colonel Whitburn attended to make statements. Neither of them was at Kempton.

At the Newmarket inquiry he told Lord Jersey that he had not been notified, and that Ingham was the jockey outside who crowded him on to Lane, and was a most essential witness. He had no notice of the Newmarket inquiry, and went to the Turkish baths to try and find somebody to give evidence.

TRAINER'S EVIDENCE.

Herbert George Smyth, trainer, of Epsom Downs, gave evidence that Ironore was previously trained by him for the plaintiff. He valued her at about £250. She had been bought in at Folkestone after winning a race for 250 guineas. Witness said that when asked what he thought was her value he replied that the plaintiff knew that he authorised her to be bought in for 300 guineas at Folkestone.

The plaintiff replied—"That will not do me any good."

In cross-examination, witness said that he had no feeling against the plaintiff. Mr. Boam at one time had eight horses in his stable, and had removed them all.

Mr. Thomas—That made you feel pleased? Very pleased.

Mr. Hastings—Why were you pleased that he took them away? Because he was a nuisance, sir.

Mr. Thomas—Do you know that Mr. Boam is prepared to devote every penny of what he gets in this case to racing charities, jockeys, and otherwise? I should be surprised.

His Lordship—It comes to this, that people are far more generous with what they have not yet got. (Laughter.)

LORD DURHAM RECALLED.

Mr. Justice Darling recalled Lord Durham, and said—I want to know your experience of jockeys riding with a different seat. What is the object of riding in the fashion they do now? It has been discovered that by placing weight more upon the horse's withers there is a 10lb. advantage. The old seat has no chance against the modern seat.

His Lordship—In the matter of managing the horse in a crowd or if the horse misbehaves in any way, in your opinion, has the jockey the same chance of controlling it as he had in the way Fordham and his contemporaries rode?

Lord Durham—Fordham himself used to ride very much in the present style of seat, but not quite so accentuated. He used to ride, it was always said, like a monkey; but he was a very great rider, and could place a horse anywhere. Horses are so accustomed in training to this style of riding that I don't think it makes much difference.

Does it make any? Well, a weak jockey may not be able to keep him straight. If a jockey could not control a horse they would never licence him.

"A WICKED THING."

Mr. Hastings, addressing the jury, said that the plaintiff came there posing as a sportsman, and alleging that the defendant had been tried and convicted. It was a wicked thing to do. The proceedings before the Stewards were merely of a disciplinary character, and their decision was not in the least binding on the jury, though the defendant had to abide by it.

Mr. Thomas, addressing the jury for the plaintiff, said that the action was brought by Mr. Boam to stop this foul and dishonest way of riding in a race. What would have happened to Beary if this young man Lane, who was riding Ironore, had had his neck broken, and it was found, as the Stewards of the Jockey Club found, that Beary deliberately crossed when only a neck away? He would have been indicted for manslaughter.

It was to prevent his getting into such a position as, that by killing somebody by foul riding Mr. Boam had taken this matter up, and because he did so he was subjected to the sarcasm of Mr. Hastings. With reference to what Mr. Hastings said about Mr. Boam's intention to give the damages to charity, Mr. Thomas said that his lordship had remarked that some people were very generous in giving away what was not their own.

Mr. Justice Darling—That was not what I said. You will see it to-morrow. (Laughter.)

Mr. Thomas said that Mr. Boam had to stand Mr. Hastings' jibe about putting the money into his own pocket. But what he was to do with it had nothing to do with the case.

Defendant's counsel had said that it was a disgrace to bring the action, but the disgrace was not the plaintiff's. Defendant had certainly been very unfortunate in his experiences. He had appeared before the Stewards in Ireland between 1917 and 1920, and been convicted time and again, of not merely running at the tape, but for bumping and boring and foul riding. And this was called "keenness to win" the race.

This man was an expert in foul riding and boring and an expert in going before the Stewards.

This was not an accident, and, if it had been, Mr. Boam was the last person to bring an action of this kind. It was the climax of a long course of foul riding, and Mr. Boam had taken it upon himself to say it was time it was stopped.

Mr. Thomas further said that the value of the mare was amply proved by the cheque, which was in Court of the amount which plaintiff paid for her and another horse to Mr. Bell. He said that the defendant's case was characterised by reckless and misleading statements and insinuations.

Mr. Justice Darling, in summing up, observed:—This is a remarkable action, and it appears from what has been said, to be the first action of the kind that has been brought, but although that is so there is no reason in law why it should not be entertained, and why you should not give your verdict upon it. It is an action for negligence, and any person who owes a duty to anyone, and perform that duty negligently and improperly, in such a way that somebody else is injured, is liable in law. What is said here is that the defendant Beary, the jockey, was found to ride this horse negligently, and it was said that he ought not to be guilty of negligence by doing something he could avoid, or not doing something he could do, so that somebody else suffered."

His lordship pointed out that Beary was skilful in riding horses, and Lord Durham, than whom they could not have a better judge, had said, on being asked, that Beary was a good rider, and could ride properly if he liked. If a jockey could not, he would not be licensed or people willing to pay sums of money to him for riding their horses.

Dealing with the question of the race in which the accident happened, his lordship reminded the jury that in the old arenas the Romans held races round the arena, when the populace could sit round the amphitheatre and see the whole race. In these races the horses went round a number of times, and it not only demonstrated their speed, but the skill of the rider in guiding them round the bends as well. There was a bend at Kempton Park, and in race riding it was a great advantage to get on the inside near the rails.

It resulted in having a shorter distance to go, and the jockeys—they all admitted this—desired to get on the rails; and it was not only at Kempton Park that this was so. Those who got to the rails as a rule won, and that was what the jockeys wanted. But the jockey must do it rightly, and not do it wrongly. What was said here was that the defendant did what he ought not to have done, and crossed in front of plaintiff's horse, and consequently the plaintiff had suffered from his action.

His lordship proceeded to deal with the evidence and the manner in which races were run. It was not a bit like hunting or polo. It was only a question of sitting a horse for two or three minutes at the outside. It did not look like horsemanship at all. When Henry V. bewitched the world with horsemanship it was pretty certain that he did not sit his horse like Tod Sloan or any of his successors.

When Whyte Melville wrote of riding and said: "Sit down in your saddle, and send him along," he was speaking of a very different thing. Jockeys could, sitting as jockeys did, manage a horse for the short time of a race if they were competent. What was charged against the defendant was that he was negligent.

His lordship said that it was proper that every jockey should have anxiety to get in front of another. That was what he was there for. But it was essential that jockeys should only try to get in front of each other by legitimate and proper means, and not by foul. Foul riding must be discouraged. The jury were not to find for the plaintiff because the Stewards of the Jockey Club said that the defendant was guilty of foul riding.

It was for the plaintiff to prove his case, and, if the plaintiff satisfied them that defendant did not ride properly—they need not come to the conclusion that he rode into Ironore on purpose—then they would find for plaintiff. But if they were not so satisfied they would find for defendant.

If there was negligence, they found for plaintiff. With regard to the question of damages, they had to consider the value of the mare, and must bear in mind that she had been sold once for £364, and on another occasion for £300.

The jury, after retiring for half-an-hour, returned a verdict for the plaintiff, and assessed the damages at 300 guineas.

Judgment was entered accordingly for this amount with costs.

AMERICAN CONFIDENCE.

That strong belief in the future prosperity of the Irish Free State is widespread is demonstrated by the purchase by Americans of residential property in the country. A case in point is afforded by the sale to Mr. W. E. Melbourne, an Irishman well known in the United States, of the picturesquely-situated residential holding of Annfield, Brannockstown, Co. Kildare, which was for many years in the possession of the Kennedy family. The sale was effected through Messrs. Garvey and Good, chartered surveyors, valuers, and auctioneers, of Dublin.

PROPERTY AUCTIONS.

In our auction columns to-day Messrs. Battersby and Co. announce that at their next auction, on Thursday, August 9, they will sell Killarney Wood, Bray, a charming residential property, with 36 acres; valuable building site, 27 Henry street; Griffeen Lodge, Lucan, with 2 acres; Emscote and Ardmore, Westfield road, Rathgar; Carmel House, Drumcondra; and 144 Leinster road, Rathmines. SECONDARY TEACHERS.

NORTHERN SALARY SCALES.

REPORT OF DEPARTMENTAL COMMITTEE.

The report was issued yesterday afternoon of the Departmental Committee appointed by Lord Londonderry, Northern Minister of Education—over which Mr. R. J. M'Keown, M.P., presided—to fix, in conjunction with the Ministry of Finance, a scale of salaries for secondary teachers.

The rules embodying the scales are provisional, until sanctioned by Parliament in the autumn, but, if approved, they will come into operation in respect of the school years 1922-3, 1923-4, and 1924-5. The scale marks a considerable advance upon the present rates, and while it does not reach in all respects the Burnham scale in Great Britain, it provides minimum salaries higher than some of the present maximum rates.

Preparatory teachers will, in the future, be recognised, and the State is, therefore, making itself responsible for the education of all children from the age of six years. The schools, in order to obtain the education grants, must pay the minimum salaries provided, and the Ministry will be responsible for all increments in the teachers' salaries. The scales will be retrospective to the 1st of August last in the case of secondary teachers, but will not be retrospective in the case of preparatory schools, as they were never before recognised.

TEACHERS AND SALARIES.

The rules state:—

There shall be two classes of recognised teachers in secondary schools:—

I. Those recognised as teachers in the higher classes normally composed of pupils approximately over the age of 12 years called "secondary teachers."

II. Those recognised as teachers in the preparatory classes normally composed of pupils up to approximately the age of 12 years—called "preparatory teachers."

(a) The scales of salary for full-time registered teachers on the authorised staff of a recognised secondary school are the following:—Men, £210 - £12 - £270 - £15-£450; women, £200-£10-£325. For teachers who have obtained a degree with first or second class honours in a British or an Irish University, the maximum in the case of men shall be £500, and in the case of women £375. Similar maxima shall be granted for other qualifications recognised by the Ministry as equivalent to a first or a second class honours degree.

(b) All full time registered teachers who are on the authorised staff of a recognised preparatory school or the preparatory department of a recognised secondary school shall be placed on the following salary scales:—Men—£160, £12, £220, £15, £400. Women—£150, £10, £300.

(c) An increment shall only become payable when the Principal (or in the case of the Principal the Governing Body) and the Ministry's Inspector certify that the teacher is in all respects efficient. An efficiency bar shall be introduced at the point £360 (for men), and £280 (for women), in the case of teachers in secondary schools, and £310 (for men) and £230 (for women), in the case of teachers in preparatory schools. No increments shall be allowed which will raise the salary beyond the bar figures until a certificate, signed as above, is received by the Ministry, testifying that the service of the teacher concerned is in every respect satisfactory, both as regards efficient teaching, general conduct, zeal and qualifications.

(d) Those scales will be fixed for a period of two years, beginning on 1st August, 1923.

(e) The incremental portion of the scales for secondary teachers will be paid by the Ministry, retrospectively, in respect of the school year ending 31st July, 1923, in accordance with the provisions of Regulations No. 32.

In addition to salaries on the general scales the following grants from State sources will be paid in respect of principal teachers:—£50 a year in the case of schools where the attendance of pupils warrants salary grants from State sources for not more than four teachers, including the principal; £100 a year where the attendance warrants such grants for more than four, but not more than seven, teachers; £150 a year where the attendance warrants such grants for more than seven, but not more than ten, teachers; and £200 a year where the attendance warrants such grants for more than ten teachers.

This grant shall, in the case of the teachers of secondary schools, have retrospective effect as from 1st August, 1922.

The Governing Bodies, out of the funds at their disposal, shall be required to pay the following minimum rates of remuneration to teachers who are employed by them, but who are not on the authorised staff of the school:—

Full-time teachers, Secondary Schools—Men, £160 a year; women, £150 a year. Preparatory Schools and Departments—Men, £150 a year; women, £140 a year.

Part-time teachers, Secondary Schools and Preparatory Schools and Departments—5s. 6d. per hour for men and 5s. per hour for women.

PLACING OF TEACHERS.

In placing existing teachers on the new scale one increment shall be granted for each two years of past service ascertained in accordance with the provisions of paragraphs 10 to 13 of these regulations. The provision in (2 c) above in regard to increments and the efficiency bar will also operate, the certificate of the present principal (or governing body, as the case may be) being accepted, countersigned by the Ministry's Inspector.

(a) In secondary and preparatory schools conducted by religious communities, while no salary scale shall apply to any member of the community, there shall be paid to the community, in lieu of the increments, in respect of each member of the community who is registered and recognised as on the authorised staff of the school, and who teaches at least 18 hours a week, a grant equal to the average amount paid in increments to lay teachers of the same sex and class throughout Northern Ireland.

(b) All lay teachers in such a school who are registered and recognised by the Ministry, and who teach 18 hours a week, shall be placed on the authorised staff of the school and on the appropriate scales of salary, and paid in the same manner as in other schools, provided always that their number does not exceed that of the authorised staff.

(c) The total number of teachers placed on the authorised staff shall be in accordance with the provisions of Regulation 15; the grant in respect of the head teacher shall be in accordance with the provisions of Regulation 7.

MOTOR CYCLING.

"ALL SPORTS WEEK" COMPETITIONS.

A meeting of the representatives of the Dublin and District, Leinster and Ramblers' Motor Cycle Clubs, convened by Mr. S. L. Hutchinson, was held last evening at the Dawson street Club for the purpose of forming a committee to carry out the motor cycling events in connection with the All-Sports Week. A committee was constituted, consisting of five representatives from each of the clubs.

It was unanimously agreed to abandon the original intention of holding a road race in the Phœnix Park on Friday, August 10th, and it was decided to hold a series of speed trials on the Main road of the Park, starting from near the Phœnix Monument. The events will be run in the direction of the Gough Monument; a course of one mile from a standing start, with 350 yards to pull up before the Gough Statue is reached is available. The competing machines will be divided into classes according to their cubic capacity, and no machine will be allowed to compete except in the class of which its engine size qualifies it. The classes will be framed on the Brooklands model, and will be as under:—Solo machines under 250 c.c.; 250 c.c. to 350 c.c.; 350 c.c. to 500 c.c.; 500 c.c. to 750 c.c., and 750 c.c. to 1,000 c.c. Sidecar machines under 750 c.c.; 750 c.c. to 1,000 c.c. In each class there will be a handicap and a scratch race. The handicap will be run on the knock-out principle. Mr. R. Humphreys, 79 Dame street, was appointed hon. secretary of the committee, and Mr. D. Allen, 27 Bachelor's Walk, hon. treasurer.

SWIMMING.

SANDYCOVE GALA.

The annual gala of the Sandycove Club will be held to-day at Sandycove. In addition to the usual events associated with a gala, there will be the Pier Race, which should prove a strong attraction; and another interesting item on the programme is the Leinster Diving Championship.

DUBLIN CLUB (Ladies' Branch).—Result of 50 Yards Handicap, held in the Blackrock Baths on Thursday:—Mrs. E. Prentice (8), 1st; Mrs. E. Benson (11), 2nd; Miss S. Gifford (2), 3rd. Time, 44 seconds. Six entries. The 33 Yards Junior Race resulted in a dead-heat for first place between Miss Newell and Miss Smiddy, Miss Maire O'Neill being third. Seven competed. Next Thursday—50 Yards' Championship for Healy Cup and Junior Race.

FREE STATE PARLIAMENT.

tude of the country. The greatest cause of the dispossession of the small holders within the past seventy years was that they could not live on their small holdings. That could be repeated again, especially with the free import of Canadian cattle into Great Britain. There was going to be no paradise for the small holder. There were several clauses in the bill which savoured of Karl Marx. Those were strongly resented by certain classes of farmers, and unless amended they would lead to absolute chaos and ruin.

Sir Nugent Everard said that he had expected such a speech from a purchased tenant farmer as that which they had just listened to. The State could already take land anywhere for public purposes, and all that was asked for in the bill was power to take land from those who had more than was necessary, even purchased tenants, for a national purpose—the relief of congestion. He asked the Minister, however, to define a "congest."

In that assembly were three members of the Land Conference of 1903, including himself, and he could speak for all three when he said that the strongest support of the bill would come from them. "We all hope to God that we have now heard the last of the word landlord." (Hear, hear.)

A FRIEND INDEED.

It was asked why the landlords did not sell under the 1903 Act and subsequent Acts. He knew of several cases in which the tenants were suspicious of what sort of landlords the Land Commission were going to be; they preferred the devil they knew to the devil they did not know, and that generally happened in the neighbourhood of the landlord's residence. In a time of distress the landlord proved himself the tenant's friend, and it was an injustice to assume that the collection of rents was a difficult process.

There were certain ways in this bill by which matters could, indirectly, be made easier for the landlord. He hoped that the Minister would tell them that he was going to deal with congestion by organising colonies on the ranches in a systematic way and on a co-operative basis.

Mr. McGloughlin supported the bill as a business man, and described it as a measure which would operate very fairly between landlord and tenant. The farmers, he said, were treated as generously as the finances of the country would permit.

Sir Hutcheson Poë dealt with previous Land Acts and with the improved relations between landlord and tenant. He mentioned that twenty-five years ago he was one of those who represented the landlords at the Conference which led up to the passing of the Wyndham Act—"a most beneficial piece of legislation" so far as Irish tenants were concerned. He described the present Land Bill as a bold and conscientious effort to settle a difficult problem. The majority of the landlords whose properties were unsold were, he was afraid, heavily encumbered, and under its terms there was no doubt that for many of these men the bill would spell ruin. He hoped that when the bill came into Committee the Minister would meet the landlords' objections to some of its clauses, more especially those which gave the Land Commission virtually unlimited power over both tenanted and untenanted land.

Dr. Oliver Gogarty raised points concerning fisheries rights. He said that he had discovered that the inland fisheries were more important than the deep sea fisheries, and that the rivers were of more value than the lands through which they flowed. He feared that the Land Commissioners' powers would overlap those of the Fisheries Ministry. He would like to have clear notion as regards the extent to which these fisheries would fall into the hands of the small holder.

MINISTER'S REPLY.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION.

The Minister for Agriculture said that he knew the bill would not settle the land problem. The land question in one form would never be settled. He knew, of course, that land purchase was not going to bring about the Millennium. The bill was only a foundation; it was necessary to lay the foundation, and it was essential to build. The real problem was to relieve congestion. There seemed to be a lot of confusion as to what they meant by congestion, and what measures they proposed to take to deal with it. There seemed to be an idea among some of the Senators that they had taken measures which were absolutely unheard of. He had, in fact, been accused of being animated by Cromwellianism, and with being a very enthusiastic and very young man; but he would point out that the main provisions were already in previous Land Acts, and in the Land Bill of 1920.

Colonel Moore—That did not pass.

Mr. Hogan said that he would remind Senators that this bill bore extremely favourable comparison from the landlord class's point of view with the bill drafted by the Convention of 1918. He had been asked what was meant by a "congest." I had been said that congests might be landless men. That was not so. There was not one word to that effect in the bill. He could reassure Senators on that point. Section 75 showed that the bill was to be read as one with previous Acts not expressly repealed. The Congested Districts Board had a rule that a congest was a man whose valuation was under £10. That was a rough and ready rule, but it was an unfortunate one.

It had been pointed out that they took the power to acquire land anywhere for the relief of congestion. It was suggested that such a proposal was monstrous. Similar proposals were, however, made in the Land Bill of 1920, which did not pass, and which was promoted by a Conservative committee. They could only touch demesne land, or land already purchased for the relief of congestion, where the amount of untenanted land was insufficient.

In reply to Sir John Keane, Mr. Hogan said that the relief of congestion could not refer to landless men, but to tenants whose holdings were not economic.

THE PROCEDURE.

The sequence would be that the Land Commission in dealing with the relief of congestion would acquire all untenanted land in the congested districts counties, and all untenanted land outside the congested counties as required.

The Minister proceeded to give the sequence of the effects of the bill with regard to vesting in the Land Commission. He pointed out that demesne lands and lands already purchased were, except in the congested counties, excepted from compulsory acquirement by the Commission. Where there was congestion, and where there was no other land in the neighbourhood to relieve it except demesne land or purchased land, they should have powers to take such land compulsorily. Congestion was the one serious cancer in the body politic, and they would have to make a serious and courageous effort to remedy it before, in the old British way, it was too late.

In Galway and Mayo there were purchased tenants with 500, 600, 700 acres of land, with many tenants close by under £5 valuation. The Land Commission would have power to take 100, 200 acres from the former if there were no other land available in the locality.

Answering Mr. Bennett, he said that the sections dealing with the acquisition of tenanted land were taken word for word from the bill of 1920.

MIGRATION.

It was necessary to give the Land Commission the powers needed to relieve congestion, and if they were to relieve congestion in the West and elsewhere they must have power to migrate large tenants, because they were more suitable for migration than smaller tenants. In most cases large tenants were willing to migrate.

The question for the Government was whether they were going to tinker with this question or make a real genuine attempt to settle it. He thought that they could hardly do worse than the 1918 Conference, notwithstanding what had been done in the meantime. He did not think that it was seriously suggested that they were perpetuating congestion by this bill.

Mr. Bagwell asked if there were anything in the bill that would reduce farms to any particular size.

Mr. Hogan replied that if the bill was so drafted as to give the Land Commission complete arbitrary powers of that kind, it should not be passed. The Land Commission could only take tenanted and demesne lands for one specific purpose—the relief of congestion. It must show a High Court judge, if a case were brought to him by any interested party, that they were taking lands for the relief of congestion, and that they could not get untenanted land of any other description.

SPORTING RIGHTS.

With regard to fishing and sporting rights on untenanted land, he was asked by the Earl of Kerry if mountain or bog were regarded as tenanted or untenanted. That was a question of fact, which he could not answer in a general way. Where tenants had certain rights of grazing, it was not part of the holding, and was not tenanted land. Fishing and sporting rights were vested in the Land Commission, and they could lease them or develop them as the State might think fit.

Mr. Hogan, continuing, said that there was no Fisheries Department as present. He suggested that they could not do anything more effective than to vest fishing rights in the State at this moment. Regarding questions raised as to the purchase and re-sale of demesnes, the Minister said that they had gone as far as they could in relieving the position of landowners who were encumbered. Several provisions had been inserted in the bill which were of great advantage to landlords.

Referring to the question as to making advances in connection with land worked co-operatively, the Minister said that under Section 31 machinery was provided so that in three or four years' time there might be sales of land to a "body," and it might be a potent factor in relieving congestion.

Replying to Senator Bagwell, Mr. Hogan said that he had already said that there was no chance that congestion would be solved for a number of years. The principal reason was that "congests" would not migrate. But that did not absolve them from their duty of dealing with it. They had taken powers to migrate larger holders compulsorily, but even with these powers they would not go near solving the problem. They had approached the whole question as dealing with an Irish problem, a dispute between two sections of Irishmen. It was a bitter dispute that, by general admission, ought to be settled immediately. It was attempted to settle it in 1920. He did not want to see this problem suffer the evil which nearly every problem in Ireland had suffered from—namely, that of being dealt with too late. They had endeavoured to deal with it in equity, and approached it only from that point of view. (Applause.)

The bill was then read a second time.

NEXT WEEK'S BUSINESS.

It was decided to take the second reading of the Electoral Abuses Bill, the League of Nations Bill, and the Civil Service Regulations Bill next Monday at 12 noon. The Committee stage of the Public Safety Bill will be taken on Monday at 2.30 p.m.

The Committee stage of the Land Bill will be taken on Tuesday, when the Senate will sit at 11 a.m.

The Senate adjourned at 7.50 p.m. until next Monday, as agreed.

THE DAIL.

PARLIAMENT HOUSE.

COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

The Speaker read the following report by the Committee which was appointed a few weeks ago to examine sites for a Parliament House:—

"Meetings were held on Tuesday, July 17th; Thursday, July 19th; and Thursday, July 26th. The Committee discussed various possible sites where accommodation for the Oireachtas might be found, and visited the Royal Hospital, Kilmainham.

"The Committee considered that the question of accommodation for the Oireachtas divided itself into two distinct branches—(1) permanent premises and (2) temporary premises.

"With regard to a permanent home for the Oireachtas, the following resolution was passed:—'This Committee, without desiring or intending to prejudice in any way the decision as to the permanent site for the Oireachtas, recommend that a Commission, including experts, should be appointed at an early opportunity to inquire and report to both Houses as to suitable and available sites for the permanent housing of the Oireachtas, including the probable expense and time involved in the acquisition and conversion to this purpose of the old Parliament House in College Green.'

"Since Dail Eireann had named July 27th as the latest date on which the Committee was to report to the Dail, the Committee found it impossible adequately to consider the question of temporary premises, and is, therefore, unable to make any recommendation regarding temporary accommodation."

THE OLD HOUSE.

President Cosgrave said that the accommodation there was entirely inadequate. On more than one occasion the Speaker had directed his attention to the fact that he had insufficient accommodation for his staff, and they had been unable to provide the members and, in addition to that, there was the essential to the proper carrying out of their duties. He had observed that in some of the election addresses attention had been directed to the advisability of securing what was called "the Old House in College Green" as the home of the Oireachtas.

If they decided to get possession of the Old House, it would not be possible to have the necessary accommodation for work there provided within the next three or four years, and, in addition to that, there was the question of the cost of alterations. He had received an estimate of £1,500,000. More than once attention had been called to the necessity for conserving the national resources. On these grounds he was not satisfied to make any proposal to the House for the huge expenditure of money necessary for the provision of a House of Parliament, and plans that were prepared on the direction of the Executive Council were prepared having that in mind, and having in mind also the necessity for suitable accommodation for the Oireachtas to discharge its duties to the public.

He quite understood that this Committee had not had much time to concern itself with the subjects put before it. The Government had this question under consideration for some time, and it appeared to them that the least possible inconvenience would be caused by taking over the premises of the Royal Hospital, Kilmainham. They were not committed to it: it was a case of making a virtue of necessity.

They were sitting there in a rather important institution, imposing limitations upon the museum and the public.

If the sense of the country was for College Green, he would accept it; but he pointed out that the present condition of their finances did not warrant their taking up that proposal—he did not know that they could continue in the present building for three or four years, even if College Green was decided upon.

In suggesting Kilmainham the Executive had in mind that it was the most suitable place in the circumstances that could be made available at the minimum of expense, and with the maximum of accommodation. He took it that the opinion of the House was that nothing could be done in this matter now, until after the elections, and he suggested that the report be marked "received."

COMMITTEE NOT TO BLAME.

Mr. Johnson said that the blame, if any, could not be placed on the Committee. They only got a few weeks to consider the matter, whereas the President could have called the Committee into existence three or four months ago. It was only when there was talk of a general election that the Committee was formed, and directed to report by the end of July. They should have got an opportunity of considering alternative sites, besides the Royal Hospital, and he thought that the President should not feel hurt that the Committee did not fall into immediate agreement with the wishes of the Government on the matter.

Professor Magennis said that he did not think that anyone was to blame in the matter. He thought it would be better to leave over the question for the new Parliament.

The President said that if there was an alternative place to Kilmainham, which would provide suitable accommodation, he would prefer it. A great deal of criticism had been directed at the Government on the score of delay in dealing with the matter. The delay was rather necessary. They had been obtaining and providing information which, he was sure, was placed at the disposal of the Committee. He would say that there had been no unreasonable delay.

If the House desired that a commission should be appointed the Government had no objection.

Mr. Johnson pointed out that the two main proposals before the Committee were the finding of a temporary home for the Oireachtas, and the providing of a permanent one. It was quite clear that the latter would not be possible for five years at any rate. Plans of one place only had been submitted to the Committee. They were examined, and it was the intention of the Committee to examine other plans if any were submitted. If the Dail extended the time of the Committee for a fortnight or three weeks they might be able to come to a definite conclusion, having had alternative plans and information before them, and they might be able to make a report to the Dail before the dissolution.

Mr. Cathal O'Shannon supported the suggestion.

The President said that he would be satisfied if the Committee sat again and met representatives of the Royal Dublin Society to discuss the question of Leinster House.

The Speaker, in the course of a lengthy statement, dealt with the negotiations with the Royal Dublin Society that had taken place in regard to the continued occupation of Leinster House, and remarked that the present accommodation was not nearly sufficient.

Most of the Speaker's remarks were inaudible in the Press gallery.

President Cosgrave suggested that the Committee should be given a further opportunity of considering the matter.

Mr. Blythe moved that the Committee be asked to continue its deliberations with a view to making recommendations as regards temporary accommodation for the Oireachtas.

This was passed.

SWEEPSTAKES.

Mr. O Maille moved that the report of the Committee on the Public Charitable Hospitals (Temporary Provisions) Bill be received, and that the bill as amended be considered on report on Wednesday, 1st August.

Mr. Johnson called attention to the fact that a quorum was not present, and the House adjourned until next Monday.

CIVIC GUARD BILL.

The Civic Guard Bill contains 24 clauses. The schedule provides for the appointment by the Executive Council of a Commissioner, Deputy Commissioner, Assistant Commissioners (of whom there shall not be more than two), a Surgeon, and Chief Superintendents (of whom there shall not be more than 25). The bill also provides that there shall not be more than 140 superintendents and inspectors, 950 sergeants and 4,400 Guards in the force.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE DOCKERS' STRIKE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Your correspondent's letter in to-day's issue regarding the price of porter and stout deserves the attention of the Government. Commissions have been sitting inquiring into the cost of almost every commodity, but so far the products of our breweries have escaped. There must be gross "profiteering" somewhere, as farmers received less for their barley last autumn than in pre-war years, while the price of porter and stout has been quadrupled. We may look on it as a luxury, but the dock labourer must have his pint, and until he is able to get it cheaper there will be trouble.—Yours, etc., "RATEPAYER."

Dublin, July 27th, 1923.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Your correspondent "Pro Bono Publico" hits the nail on the head. I have been conversant for nearly forty years with Dublin riverside conditions of labour, and I am satisfied that the question of "pints" lies very close to the difficulties of this dispute. Two or three pints a day are really regarded as moderate, and when even that quantity means at least 12s. per week, the economic relation ought to be very easily realised.

On the other hand, I most emphatically assert, as an earnest social reformer, that the men engaged on both sides of the river are not catered for from the legitimate refreshment point of view as they ought to be.—Yours, etc., "SOCIAL REFORMER."

THE LAND ACT AND ANCIENT MONUMENTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In his reply to the deputation from the Society of Antiquaries the Governor-General referred to his connection with the clauses in the Land Act of 1903 which served to protect our ancient monuments. It is a cause of regret to many Irish antiquaries that these clauses, which, I believe, are repeated in the present Act, were so ineffective. When reporting to the Land Commission on the proposed purchase of any farm, the surveyor was supposed to see that all ancient monuments were reserved, and offered to the Board of Works or County Council for preservation, under the clauses of the Acts of 1882 and 1898 applying to the same. In most cases the surveyor's knowledge of archæology was very slight, and he was unable to identify such remains. In the case of ancient buildings, portions of which might be useful to the tenant and enhance the value of the land, neither landlord nor tenant referred to them. I know of a most interesting old church transferred by purchase to the tenant, the vaulted chancel of which is used as a shelter for cattle, and the refuse covers the richly-carved tombstones of the ecclesiastics buried in the chancel.

It is to be hoped that it may be possible, even at this stage, so to amend these clauses of the Act applying to ancient monuments as to render the failures of the past impossible.—Yours, etc., P. J. LYNCH, M.R.I.A.

"ADVERTISEMENTS FOR IRELAND."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—When I saw the heading "Advertisements for Ireland," etc., in "Books of the Week" I hoped that your reviewer had said something about the spelling "Bourgchier." The name is spelt "Bourchier" in the inscription on the tablet in Kilkenny Cathedral—alluded to in Doctor O'Brien's introduction to the book—as given in Graves' and Prim's History of St. Canice's Cathedral. The dates on the tablet are 1584 and 1587.

People are wont to think that antiquarian books must be "dry"; but this three hundred year old manuscript, lying peacefully in the Library of Trinity College, Dublin, whose writer was a Master of Arts and a Fellow of that University, is full of interest. The son of an Englishman, but born himself in Ireland, Doctor O'Brien points out that he never failed to proclaim himself an Irishman, and in his letters to Ussher he refers to "our countryman, Florence MacCarthy," "Wadding, our countryman," "our own poor country," etc. In this manuscript he dwells on the ancient glory of Ireland and foretells her future happiness and prosperity. The members of the Irish Government would do well to read this book.

Here we find that in 1623 Ireland exceeded England in all customable commodities of nature, save only in wool and woolfells, which were then beginning to be as fine as in England, and would soon be in as great plenty: Ireland uttered abroad double more yarn, meat, fish, hides, and tallow than England. Some years before the MS. was written Norwich had bought in one year a hundred thousand pounds worth of Irish yarn, and never received more yarn from Ireland than Bristol, Manchester, and other towns did. 2,000 tons of salmon yearly, of other fish more, sold at £20 the ton. Consider these sums in our present money. Ireland had infinite store of beef and pork above most nations. All Spain and most of France were supplied by Ireland with the pipe-staves for their wine. The mineral wealth of Ireland is dwelt upon, its woods—alas, much timber was consumed in iron works and in building foreign navies—and planting to restore the ancient plenty is urged. Vessels built of Irish timber received no hurt or detriment by consuming vermin or moths in the long India navigation, while a huge Spanish ship built of other wood could scarcely hold out a second voyage to America. In the large woods were great store of great hawks, wild deer, wild boars, and wild swine. Pearls of value were found here then, and a great plenty of "ambergrease" was gathered. The size of the horses is mentioned. There was great plenty of wild swans, partridges, and pheasants. The wolf and the stag dog are spoken of. It is shown how Waterford might outgo Dublin in two years. Orchards, gardens, hop yards throve better than in England.

The MS. was written in England, but the writer's heart was in Ireland, I think. "There lives not a people more hardy, able, active, and painful when once they break off from sluggishness; neither is there any will endure the miseries of war, as are famine, watching, heat, cold, wet, travel and the like, so naturally, and facility and courage that they do. The Prince of Orange, his Excellency used often publicly to deliver that the Irish are soldiers the first day of their birth; the famous Henry IV., late King of France, said there would prove no nation so resolute martial men as they, would they be ruly and not so headstrong; and Sir John Morris was wont to ascribe this in particular to that nation above others, that he never beheld so few of any country as the Irish that were idiots and cowards, which is very notable."

When a lean purse could lash down the price of this book and find it well spent, what should hinder anyone from possessing it? But I wish the spelling had not been modernized.—Yours, etc., "K."

COMPULSION NOT NEEDED.

FARMERS WILL TILL IF IT PAYS.

CANADIAN CATTLE MENACE.

At yesterday's sitting of the Commission on Agriculture in Dublin Professor Drew, Chairman, presiding, two witnesses gave evidence on behalf of the Irish Farmers' Union.

The first witness examined was Colonel O'Callaghan Westropp, President of the County Clare Farmers' Association and a member of the Council of Agriculture. He farms 400 Irish acres, 70 of which are arable, and 250 acres pasture incapable of tillage.

With regard to compulsory tillage, witness held that no compulsion was necessary as long as tillage paid. Some farmers were compelled to till land in order that the land should not go to loss and to complete a rotation. So far as his experience went, better results would be obtained by the present voluntary system than by compulsion. He strongly advocated occupying ownership as an incentive to improvement in the land.

Witness attached great importance to analysis of soils, and remarked that fully £5,000,000 a year were lost through the unscientific application of artificial manure. This could be reduced by having more soil analysis, by means of which farmers could ascertain what constitutes the soil required.

DAIRYING INDUSTRY.

The witness insisted that to the small man the dairying industry was absolutely necessary, especially in view of the menace of Canadian cattle. He favoured the use of Friesians on heavy land and of Kerries on poor land. Aberdeen Angus cattle were suited to the Western counties, because the breed was immune from tuberculosis and largely from murrain. The solvency of a small farmer, he said, was judged largely by the number of cows he had.

Referring to the Canadian cattle menace, the witness said that it would hit the small man most severely. A great deal of nonsense had been written about Canadian cattle. The great menace would come in August, September, October, and November of the present year. Canadian prairie cattle cost practically nothing to raise, and could be sold cheaply.

Mr. W. H. Cobbe, Portarlington, also speaking on behalf of the Farmers' Union, emphasised the importance of the drainage of the Barrow. The flooded area amounted to 50,000 acres, and there was a tremendous amount of labour wasted in cropping these lands. He also emphasised the importance of having the river drained from the public health point of view.

PRODUCTION COSTS.

Dealing with production costs, witness said that in 1922 it cost him £20 4s. 8d. to grow an Irish acre of barley. The yield was 17 barrels per acre, and the total value (including straw) was £19 6s., giving a loss of 18s. 8d. On 19 farms in the district the loss per acre averaged £7 16s.

Potatoes cost £37 per acre to produce. His yield was 17 tons to the acre, the market value being £38 5s. On the average of 21 farms a loss of over £11 per acre had been sustained. He had grown mangels at a profit, but on the average farmers had sustained a loss of £6 12s. per acre. There had also been a loss on meadow hay.

Witness did not think that committees of agriculture were at present properly constituted. The idea was good, but they had not the proper type of members on the committees. Witness also thought that agricultural instructors should be countrymen who would go amongst the farmers and tell them how to make the most of the means at their disposal with regard to tillage.

Irish farmers would have to change their methods of agriculture and take lessons from Denmark. He said that there was no necessity for compulsory tillage.

The Commission adjourned until next Wednesday.

ATHY FARMERS AT GLASNEVIN MODEL FARM.

Yesterday a deputation from the Athy Farmers' Union visited the Model Farm, Glasnevin, to study the methods followed at that institution. Professor Drew and Mr. Caffrey conducted the visitors around the farm, and Professor Drew explained in detail the working of the new silo installed by the Department of Agriculture. The plots where experiments are conducted with a view to the improvement of cereals excited much interest. Afterwards a conference was held in the Albert Agricultural College, when the question of adopting the silage system as an alternative to growing roots for feeding purposes was minutely discussed.

Amongst those on the deputation were:—Messrs. J. J. Bergin, Chairman, Athy Farmers' Union; P. P. Timmons, J. Flynn, M. Malone, D. Reeves, R. Anderson, J. Melrose, S. M. Telford, C. W. Taylor, D. Taylor, and A. L. Spiers.

AN AFTERNOON PARTY.

CHEEVERSTOWN CONVALESCENT HOME FOR LITTLE CHILDREN.

The unexpected break in the weather interfered somewhat unpropitiously with the afternoon party yesterday at Cheeverstown Convalescent Home, for which the President, Lady Albreda Bourke, and the Committee had issued a number of invitations, and though many availed themselves of the opportunity of inspecting the Home, some friends were unable to attend. Situated in the heart of the country, not far from Clondalkin, Cheeverstown is an ideal spot for the Home, where about thirty-four little children can be received and given a thorough change and happy time, which often proves the turning point of their lives, which have been spent in some wretched district in the slums. Only children able to walk and between the ages of three and eight years are taken, and they are most carefully looked after by Miss Love, the Matron, and her able assistant, Nurse O'Hanlon.

The guests on arrival yesterday were received by Lady Albreda Bourke and the following members of the Committee:—Mrs. Barrington Jellett, Mrs. Fetherstonhaugh, Miss Alcock, Miss Walsh, Miss Mangan, and the Matron. Tea was served in the dining-room, which, like the other apartments, was artistically decorated with flowers. Owing to the rain the children were unable to be seen at play on the lawn, but the guests watched them at tea in the commodious play-house, where rocking horses and various games are always available on wet days. A brighter and more cheery gathering could not be seen, and their enjoyment culminated when Mrs. Fetherstonhaugh distributed a number of crackers, each containing some little gift.

Amongst the visitors present were:—

The Rev. G. and Mrs. Chamberlain, Mrs. Tindale, Miss Young, Miss Elizabeth Walsh, Miss M. Tuthill, Miss Lang, Mrs. Coady, Mrs. Crowshaw, the Misses B. and N. Hamilton, Mrs. Dowd, Nurse Fincher and Nurse Russell, Queen's Jubilee Institute.

"NO MORE WAR" DEMONSTRATIONS.

To-day and to-morrow—the ninth anniversary of the outbreak of the European war in 1914—"No More War" demonstrations will be held, as they were on the same dates last year in the United States, Russia, Germany, Canada, Great Britain, France, Holland, Sweden, Spain, Denmark, Czecho-Slovakia, Austria, Hungary, Australia, and Switzerland.

In all these countries international and social organisations are co-operating to express the demand that the world shall not, by the continued arming of nation against nation, be kept in danger of another such calamity as befell it in 1914.

The specific demand of these demonstrations is for world disarmament. The resolution which will be put at the English central demonstration in Hyde Park, London, to-morrow, is as follows:—

"This mass meeting of citizens sends fraternal greetings to the similar gatherings now being held throughout the world to express abhorrence of war and militarism, joins with them in declaring that the time has come for the peoples to insist upon universal disarmament, and calls upon its own Government to take the initiative in making a definite proposal for immediate disarmament by land, sea, and air, by mutual agreement."

WHITE CITY CARNIVAL.

THE OPENING CEREMONY.

The White City Carnival, in aid of the City of Dublin Skin and Cancer Hospital, was opened yesterday at the Princes Park, Rathmines, Dublin, by the Right Hon. James MacMahon, who said that he felt proud of the privilege of opening the Carnival, by reason of his very great sympathy with the object for which it was organised.

The success of the Carnival would depend on the general public, and it might be necessary to put a few facts before the public to establish the outstanding claims of the City of Dublin Skin and Cancer Hospital upon the generosity of all who could in any way contribute to its support.

The scourge of cancer was very widespread. He did not suppose that there was anyone present who had not seen its terrible effects upon some relative or friend. This hospital was engaged in the noble work of stemming the ravages of the dreadful disease, saving lives where possible, and, where that was not possible, it endeavoured to assuage the pain and sufferings of those afflicted. Unfortunately, the resources of the hospital were insufficient to cope with the demands made upon it; and when they realised that patients had to be turned away then he was sure that there was not an individual in the community who would not make some sacrifice to remedy such a sad state of affairs.

A lady in England the other day recommended members of the public who were free from disease to give one penny per day for each day of good health they enjoyed to the support of hospitals for the sick. If that penny a day was given even by a small proportion of the population no suffering patients would be turned away from any hospital, much less from a cancer hospital. (Applause.)

He hoped that the assistants would not spare themselves, and that all would remember that each coin given by willing or unwilling hands would go to the relief of suffering and to the comfort of somebody sadly afflicted, and, perhaps, to the bringing of light into some home that would otherwise be filled with darkness. He then, amidst applause, declared the carnival open, and wished it every success.

Amongst those on the platform were:—Lady FitzGerald Arnott, the Hon. Mrs. Dewhurst, Lady Valentine Grace, Mrs. Gaussen, Miss Waring, Mrs. Donelly, Mrs. P. J. Stuart, Mrs. A. V. MacArthur, Mrs. Frances Brooke, Mrs. D. H. Charles, Miss Charles, etc., etc.

"Roumania" Stall.—President—Lady FitzGerald Arnott.

Hospital Stall.—President — Miss Elizabeth Charles.

The American Soda Fountain.—President—Miss Lillian Whittaker.

Commercial Stall.—President—Mrs. G. Arigo.

Candies, Cakes, Curios, and Ices Stall—Presidents—Mrs. A. Smith and Miss May M'Callum.

Cheap Jack Stall.—President—Mrs. Kavanagh.

Sport and Literature Stall.—Presidents—Mrs. Sullivan and Mrs. D. H. Charles.

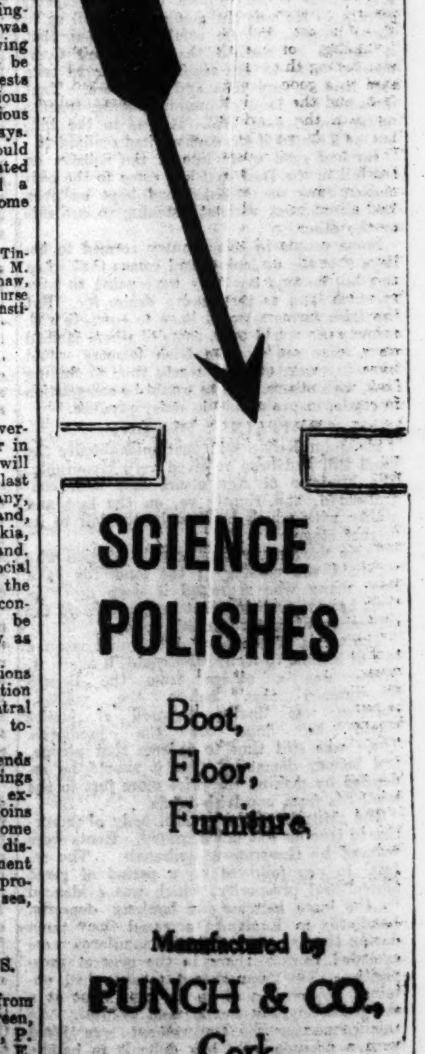
Everything and Anything Stall.—President—Mrs. O'Brien.

The American Bar.—President, Miss Margaret Barror.

The Palace Ballroom proved a source of great attraction, the music being supplied by Mr. J. Magowan's orchestra. The Palace Lounge, presided over by Mrs. T. Ennis, was also well patronised. A novel feature was the Egyptian Cave, and there were numerous visitors to "Tutankhamen's Tomb."

Other departments include a Cafe Chantant, under the direction of Mr. Chris. Bruton; the Briar Rose Tea Garden, presided over by Miss Donnelly and Miss Smith; a Toffee Lounge, presided over by Mrs. Percy Smith; and open-air whist drives. A Ceilidhe was organised by Mr. Edmund Johnston, and there was a constant round of attractions on the Fair Green.



PETROGRAD OF TO-DAY REVISITED.

Signs of Returning Life—Rule of the "Neps"—The Bolsheviks' Taxes.

(BY J. D. CLIFFORD.)

About four years ago, in company with a friend, I climbed to the top of the dome of St. Isaac's Cathedral in Petrograd, from which the whole city can be seen, and on a fine day, a view of the Finnish gulf. It was winter, and we looked down in silence at the huge desolate waste of St. Isaac's square, once the most aristocratic quarter in Petrograd. Occasionally we saw a few Red Army soldiers or a muffled up shivering man or woman, dragging the ever-lasting little carts with food or wood across the empty space. The streets looked deserted, as was only natural in a city where the population had dwindled from two and a half millions to six hundred thousand.

The only places with any sign of life were the bread queues or the offices where permission was obtained to leave the city. No traffic, no trains, and not a shop open from one end of the city to the other—"A dead city," we both said simultaneously. We were glad when the exquisite tinkle of the cathedral bells, immortalised by Tschaikovsky in his famous "1812" symphony, broke the general air of sadness and desolation.

A Revival.

To-day Petrograd is more alive, and shows signs of returning vitality. Shops are in full swing, and anything and everything can be had—for millions. St. Isaac's square, with the huge German Embassy once more occupied as a Consulate, and the hotels restored to their former use, looks quite cheerful and business-like. Troops are being trained in the large expanse in front of the cathedral, and many children are playing in the gardens. Troops of marines file past, and trade motors, private autos, and droshkies buzz cheerfully around. In the Nevsky Prospect, which is reached by passing through Gogol street, where the great writer was born, the bustle reminds one of Piccadilly or Oxford street at the busiest hour. At each corner traffic is controlled by military-looking policemen, expert and energetic gangs of scavengers keep the streets clean, sterilised water is provided free at regular intervals. The civic authorities must have become more efficient, because there is very little typhus or small-pox, both of which were annual visitors to Petrograd.

The contrasts met in the street are most conspicuous—riches and poverty flaunting side by side. In a luxurious restaurant I saw an old man begging, who, judging by the remains of his ragged uniform and his general appearance must have been at one time a high official; it was a pitiful sight! At a table inside, a bloated-looking peasant, who in former days might have been a servant, devoured the most expensive food and wine in a repulsive fashion. He insultingly refused the old man's timorous demand for help. A dainty coquette in magnificent furs draws her skirt aside lest it come in contact with the outstretched hand of a ragged and filthy beggar woman.

Not fifty yards from Nevsky Prospect, down the side streets, one sees the direst poverty. Many of the old wooden houses have disappeared, having been burned for firewood, and there is an acute shortage. There is no actual scarcity of houses; that could not be with a population reduced to a third, but, after the revolution, when all houses were commandeered by the Government, no repairs were done. Heating, draining, decorating, were neglected, and the Neva water, which periodically overflows and floods the cellars, was never pumped out, so that the foundations of many are unsafe, and altogether look in a deplorable condition.

Registration.

Every Petrograd citizen has, according to a decree issued by Zinoviev, the Petrograd People's Commissary, to pay the following taxes:—Income tax, the all citizen tax, Insurance tax, Fleet tax, Labour tax, Red Army tax, and, if he be the fortunate possessor of a piano—a piano tax (this last amounts to five hundred millions per annum). The whole population must be registered, and everyone is obliged to carry his passport with him—this is only made out for a half year, and costs at each renewal sixty million roubles.

Private industries, which have cropped up like mushrooms, are being strangled by the heavy taxation, and there is much unemployment. The unemployed, getting no support from the State, simply go out in broad daylight and rob. Naturally, the Bolshevik People's Tribunal is kept busy. The former intelligentsia, such as barristers, doctors, engineers, professors, who do not join the robber bands and who have no capital to go into business, are now, just as they were three or four years ago, suffering great privation. Many work at low wages in Soviet institutions.

The wonderful Kazan Cathedral, in the Nevsky Prospect, with its magnificent half-circle colonnade, has, for some reason or other, been closed by the Government; but I noticed a company of soldiers when passing crossed themselves in front of it.

The Nikolai Station, the largest in Petrograd, has now a busy and altered appearance. People are no longer lying around in hundreds waiting for the train that started any old time and arrived the Lord knows when. Everything now seems highly efficient, with well-stocked buffets and a general air of order and regularity. The fine statue of Alexander III. just outside the station, which was boarded up since the revolution, is now visible again, but with the following inscription:—"My father and my son have been executed. I stand here as a symbol that the Russian people will never again be ruled by a Czar."

Deproletarisation.

The Press in Petrograd is bitterly bemoaning what they call the "deproletarisation" of the people. They fiercely abuse the new rich, otherwise the "nep" (so called from three words Novaya, ekonomitcheskaya, politika, meaning "new economic policy"). They say that the revolution was made in order to destroy these very people, who are now getting stronger than ever. But the children of "Nep" are wiser in their generation than the children of Light, and they know that to all intents and purposes they are the people upon whom the Government has to depend. The present "neps" are made of sterner stuff than were the old bourgeois; so their women folk strut about Nevsky Prospect in gorgeous apparel studying the shop windows and spending their ill-gotten milliards in expensive restaurants and cabarets. They drive in their motor cars and generally enjoy life much in the same way as did their predecessors, quite conscious of the fact that their husbands and fathers have shaken the foundation of the unrealisable ideal of communism.

At home they have their maids, or, as they are nicknamed in Petrograd, marfutkee. When the revolution broke out the marfutkee were told that their mistresses had robbed them, so they turned on them and literally tore the very clothes off their backs. Now marfutka is back again, very glad to take service with "robbers. . . ." She dare not now address her mistress as tovaritch (comrade); it is now as of old, barinnya (gracious lady). She rises at six and retires at three a.m., because the "gracious lady" and her husband are out gallivanting at theatres, balls, or the much frequented "Hotel Europe." Her cheeks are red, and she is always smiling, because, she tells you, she is no longer hungry!

The Petrograd of 1923 is certainly an improvement on the Petrograd of 1919; but Petrograd of pre-war days—the proud capital of Russia, the city of intellect, education, music, art and joie de vivre—is dead. It is now a provincial town, with fine galleries and museums, no doubt; but as the premier city it exists no longer. Everything is now centred in Moscow.

SEA ANGLING.

(BY A. R. HORWOOD, F.L.S.)

Sport, as such, is followed to-day by an increasing number of people at the North Wales holiday resorts. It is well, indeed, that this is so, especially those forms of sport, such as fox-hunting and other strenuous forms of exercise that demand skill and courage, as well as tact and nerve. For the pursuit of such sports makes for manliness, and a nation made up of men and women on such forms of exercise is bound to excel. To-day, moreover, we have need for such excellence. But there are other sports, such as angling, which, though demanding skill, do not require so much powers of body or courage.

These appeal to many, and sea-angling in particular is a sport which, as it can be pursued so easily on every coast, is an extremely popular sport. It is moreover, essentially a holiday sport, and those who visit our seaside resorts, both young and old, usually engage in sea angling in one form or another. In this way it is an important and lucrative source of income to the fishermen on the coast who cater for this sport by providing bait, tackle, and boats.

It is not everyone who will care to risk the inconvenience, discomfort, or even danger of boat fishing, when they have not got their sea legs, so to speak. But, undoubtedly, some of the best sport is to be had from a boat, and one also gets bigger fish, and usually larger catches. One may fish with the boat anchored. This is usual when fishing for ground-feeding flat fish, and the line is then heavily leaded. When the boat is in motion one needs fewer or lighter leads, and when under sail the method pursued is railing or trailing the line. If sculls are used the method is called "whiffing," or one may use a drift line. In boat fishing the best plan is to use a hand line fixed to a good strong pike reel attached to a thob, and the oar is fixed in the stern, allowing both the hands to be free to work the line, which may be drawn up at intervals. The line is, of course, regulated to suit the depth at which the fish are feeding, as mackerel may be feeding at one time no more than a foot below the surface; at others on or near the bottom, or midway.

It is an undoubted fact that fishing from the pierhead has its attractions. There are many who do not relish the adventures of boat fishing, who are quite content to angle from the beach or pier. It is so little trouble and so easy. Moreover, one can get excellent sport as a rule. As many as 600 pout were taken by a couple of anglers in one day at Deal, for instance. It is the best plan in pier fishing to use a rod and line. The rod may be any length up to 10 feet, but it must be springy. The reel should be capable of carrying a hundred yards of line. It is also a good plan to have a landing net with a long collapsible handle.

The line may be fitted with a single hook for small-mouthed flat fish, or a paternoster with three hooks above each other alternately, or one may use a chopstick with two long wire arms and a hook at each end with a weight below, as in the case of the paternoster. In place of a rod a winder is sometimes used for the line, but this is more suitable for beach or shore fishing. When fishing in a boat in an estuary, or off rocks for bass or pollack, a rod may also be used. Good sport is to be had off the pier-head, where one may catch flounders, sea bream, pout, flat fish, whiting, and cod, and sometimes a conger. Tope, also, which scale over 30lbs., may be caught, too, this way off such piers as Southend and Deal, and elsewhere. Plaice, as much as three pounds each, have been taken at Brighton, and a little girl has been known to land a 3½lb. cod.

Baits and Tackle.

As I have said, the fishermen cater for visitors in the matter of all requirements, so one may well leave to them the provision of suitable bait which they are best to obtain. One must use the most suitable bait for the fish one is bent on taking, though some fish will take any bait, and pout and whiting, in particular, will often take bait intended for gamer fish. Flat fish may be caught with crabs taken out of the shell and crushed and softened, and a slice of fresh herring is also tempting to them. The same lure serves for bass, conger, and whiting. Cod can be caught with lugworms, which are, indeed, good baits for sea fish at all times. Cod also take kindly to whelks. Ragworms, experience shows, will serve as well as any bait for the grey mullet, which is a sporting fish, and with its sharp fin spines, requires a landing net. Congers are best caught with pilchards, which can be obtained most easily off the coast of Cornwall. A bit of mackerel serves to attract mackerel, which are the easiest fish to catch, though they give good sport, and the same bait does well for sea bream. Whiting are caught with mussels. Far the best bait for the conger, which should be caught at night, is a sand eel. Prawns and shrimps make the best ground bait for sea fish.

Enough has been said by the way as to tackle, and, indeed, no hard and fast lines can be laid down, as there are local methods which serve best at most places. One cannot do better than trust to a good old salt, who will, in his rough, honest way, do the best to provide you with good sport and amusement.

Where to Fish.

There are, of course, special places where particular types of seafish can be caught. Seafish are, in fact, of two types, flat fish and round fish. The former feed near the bottom, and are best caught by ground fishing, either out at sea with a heavy leaded line, or off the pier on sandy coasts. The bass, conger, pollack, mullets, are more general on rocky coasts, and flounders, like bass, can be caught in estuaries often far up a river. These, except flounders, are round fish, and round fish are more usually deep sea fish. The halibut and turbot, as well as skates and rays, however, are found in deep waters. Mackerel, whiting, haddock, hake, and cod, though they come inshore, are migratory, and feed also, with the herring, further out, where they can be had of larger size, and heavier, by boat fishing.

In summer one should start early or leave sea fishing till late. In the morning from 4 a.m. to 7 a.m. is the best time. In winter try 6 a.m. to 9 a.m. In the evening the best period is an hour before and an hour after sundown, but conger (the females over 6ft.) are best caught at night. The best tide for boat fishing is a high tide, and when a pierhead is not in deep water. The spring tides are not as good as the neap tides, the former being too strong. Tides vary locally, and the times must be studied. The best weather is a calm, sunny day, with little or no breeze, and a blue sky. But there are sea fishers who prefer a leaden sky and a good breeze. For whiffing indeed, one does need a bit of breeze. But whatever method one pursues, one always can be sure of some sport at most times.

GOUT.

The College of Heralds cannot produce stronger testimony of ancient lineage than the gout. There is a tradition, though I cannot vouch for it, that Adam died of hereditary gout, yet it is well known that in four out of five cases gout has been inherited. So proud and haughty is this ancient disease that it will bear no rival near its throne; and in this belief a bishop once vainly offered a thousand pounds to anyone who could put him in the way of having a fit.

I can only imagine what mysterious terrors must have overwhelmed that man who was the first to have gout. He probably imagined himself to be bewitched—possessed by the same tormenting demon, like the Ariel in The Tempest:

> Now on the beak,
> Now in the waist, the deck, in every cabin,
> He flamed amazement; sometimes he'd divide
> And burn in many places.

Gout to be a genuine disease demands a victim with ancestors, for nobody ever heard of a man without a grandfather having the gout. It is said that it may skip a generation and come indirectly in upon one, like the knight's move in chess, from one's mother's uncle. That the sins of our fathers should be visited upon their children down to many generations we humbly accept, but that the peccadilloes of our mother's uncles should come down upon us, zigzag as it were, and bear such bitter fruit, seems hard indeed.

COVENTRY PATMORE.

On the 23rd of July, 1823, Coventry Kersey Dighton Patmore was born at Woodford, in Essex. He had inherited the poetical faculty from his father, and he began to write poetry soon after leaving school. A slender volume of his poems was published in 1844. It is said that the verses, "though full of originality in style and thought," found little notice beyond the writer's friends, but they led Dante Gabriel Rossetti to introduce Patmore to the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood.

In 1846 he accepted an appointment as assistant librarian at the British Museum, a post that was most congenial to his tastes and in which he was highly efficient. Two years later he married Emily Augusta Andrews, the daughter of a Congregational minister, who taught John Ruskin Greek. Now that the youth of the world rebel against Greek, let us remember that the ten-year-old John tells in a letter at that time how delighted he was when each of the three Greek days in the week came round, and he relates how Dr. Andrews taught him. But when after six months' Greek the Doctor proposed to begin Hebrew also, Mrs. Ruskin called him "flighty."

Women are bothersome. Mrs. Patmore was gifted "of mental endowments and personal charms far above the common," and she was the inspiration and the subject of "The Angel in the House," which Ruskin called "the sweetest analysis we possess of quiet, modern, domestic feeling." It was written during the first years of their married life. Thackeray, Carlyle, Browning, Tennyson, and Aubrey de Vere praised it unstintedly. In "Time and Tide" Ruskin gives a passage from it, as exquisitely expressing the true and quiet purity of love in any simple lover's heart; and in "Sesame and Lilies" he wishes that "those lovely lines, 'Ah, wasteful woman!'" were learned by all youthful ladies of England, and adds, "You cannot read him too often or too carefully; as far as I know, he is the only living poet who always strengthens and purifies; the others sometimes darken, and nearly always depress and discourage, the imagination they deeply seize."

The earliest jottings of "In Memoriam," named then the "Elegies," and written in what Tennyson called "a long butcher-ledger-like book," were forgotten by the poet at a London lodging, and he asked Coventry Patmore to inquire about them. The landlady declared that no such book had been left, but Patmore insisted on looking for it himself, and found it.

Now in this hundredth anniversary of Coventry Patmore may we not at least spare time to read his poems and see how far we have travelled (backwards?) from his time, with its modesty, its gentle pieties, its sincerity? There are two of his poems that we should all know by heart; the one beginning, "My little son, who look'd from thoughtful eyes," and that other that should come home to us Irish—a people of hasty speech, to be repented of when it is too late: "'If I were dead, you'd sometimes say, Poor Child!'" and those to whom nature is their only joy will never "see the peach-bloom come in evening skies" without remembering Coventry Patmore.

The full significance of a line in "The Angel in the House" will not be understood nowadays, when, if we said that a lover merits not "To kiss the braid upon her skirt" it would mean some adornment thereon instead of being the lowest part of her attire, projecting very slightly beyond the uttermost hem for its protection.

Coventry Patmore became a Roman Catholic. He was thrice married, and died in 1896.

THE TUNNEL.

(BY "M.")

The train slid away from beside the platform of the busy English station, and, gathering speed, thundered through the quiet fields.

The little boy sat next to the window and gazed with wide-eyed interest at everything that was to be seen. Occasionally he stole a glance at the kind face of the lady who sat opposite, and sometimes he looked at his young father and mother, who, for the time being, seemed almost to have forgotten his very existence. For they were going back to Ireland, if only for a short time, and the dream of years was about to be realised.

How they had talked this over in the hearing of the little boy, to whom Ireland was but a name. How they had discussed ways and means, only, with the utmost reluctance, to abandon the idea, for one reason or another, until at last their dream was coming true.

All his life the little boy was familiar with the words, "when we go to Ireland," and in his mind they were connected with the rapt look of expectancy now to be seen on the faces of his parents as the train rushed on.

As he gazed through the window he wondered about Ireland, while vague memories came to his mind. He knew, of course, that there was no place like Ireland in all the world: that had been taught to him since his infancy. He knew that Irish people were light-hearted and gay, because he never had so much fun as when some fellow-countrymen of his father's came to the house, and everyone seemed to be laughing at the same time.

But the little boy remembered a time, not long since, when his father's face was stern and white and his mother's eyes were full of tears. It was something about Ireland, he knew; something that hurt and distressed them both. That look had been on his father's face every morning when he opened the newspaper, and one day the little boy had seen him sit with his head buried in his hands, while the paper slid unheeded to the floor—something about Ireland!

And when the long dreamed-of visit to the dear country had been abandoned the year before, at the very last moment, it was because of terrible things that were happening there. So much the little boy knew, as he sat in his corner near the window and wondered about Ireland.

He stole another glance at the kind-faced lady and thought she looked very happy: he had heard her tell his mother that she was Irish, and was going home to Ireland. Then he looked at his father and saw the light on his face, as his thoughts left the rushing train far behind, and, crossing the sea, wandered out over the stretching bog in sight of the smoke-blue mountains. Ireland must be a happy place, thought the little boy, in spite of the sorrowful things that had made his mother cry.

He shrank back nervously as, with a roar, the train rushed into a place of utter darkness. On and on it went, and the blackness remained. Suddenly his misgivings returned in full force: he thought of his father's bowed head and of the crumpled newspaper on the floor. With a shrill note of anxiety the little voice spoke through the darkness: "Daddy," he said, "are we in Ireland now?"

The young man held him close, and the lady with the kind face stretched out a hand, unseen. "Honey," she said tenderly, "there is no light in all the world as bright as the light in Ireland." And even as she spoke the darkness passed away.

GARDENING NOTES.

With an anxious eye the gardener watches the heavens now for coming showers. He is torn between two desires—one for fine weather for the ripening and picking of his small fruit, for the health of his crops under glass, and for the endless jobs of tidying which are his portion all through the summer. For the rain would spoil the raspberries; it would encourage mildew on the grapes and leaf-spot on the tomatoes; it would hurry the lawn grass into growth and keep him mowing when he had other fish to fry. But the celery is crying out for the good soaking that only rain can give; the fruit trees are threatening to drop their meagre crop; the raspberries are beginning to sulk. Above all, the rain would give a chance to plant out those all-important winter greens.

To the rash and uninitiated this may seem a simple job, and certainly not worth writing about; for surely anyone can plant a cabbage—they are hard enough to kill with harsh treatment. Nevertheless, some skill, some patience, and no little pains are needed before even a moderately good cabbage is brought to its prime; and what of the Brussels sprouts, the cauliflowers, the kales, the Savoys, and the other members of the tribe? Their name is legion, their likes and dislikes various; diseases descend upon them in many shapes and forms, and some member of the family is always with us in the garden, ready and anxious to hand on a caterpillar or a fungus to its young relations. When all these things are taken into account, it is only natural that a good bed of winter greens should bring pride to the heart of its raiser and envy to that of his less successful neighbour.

Those who have been able to raise their own plants from seed, and have had the good sense to thin the seedlings before they became overcrowded, or, better still, to pick them out into nursery beds, will have fine sturdy youngsters for setting out. When they must of necessity be bought from a nurseryman, it is wise to inspect beforehand, if possible. Plants that are suffering from club-root or gall weevil have swollen roots and scanty rootlets, and must at all costs be avoided. If bought plants are dry they must be soaked on arrival, and in dry weather home-grown plants should be soaked in the seed-bed the day before they are to be planted.

A real wet day is, of course, perfection for planting, but a cloudy day, a previous soaking, and careful planting are the next best thing, and often the only possible chance in the summer. Lift the plants with great care, so as to avoid breaking the fibrous roots, lift also a few at a time, especially if the wind is high or the sun hot. Make a good deep hole with a trowel, not with a dibber, except in loose light soil, bury the young plant to its first good leaves, and see that no long bare stalk is left rising sadly above the ground like the stem of a standard rose tree. Make the soil fairly firm, not too firm if it is wet, or the effect will be as of cement. Water it if necessary and continue to water whenever the weather is dry and hot, until the young plants show signs of growth and comfort. A gentle hoeing, with a Dutch hoe, at frequent intervals will be the only cultivation needed through the summer, and in winter the trouble will be repaid a thousand-fold. When hoeing is in process a sharp look-out can be kept for signs of attack by cabbage caterpillars, cabbage fly, white rust and all the enemies that the cabbage tribe is heir to. If checked at once and if all infected material is taken straight to the fire endless trouble and loss will be avoided.

Winter Greens.

The lack of space for winter greens is always a problem. Most gardens are full to repletion in July, hastily filled up in the busy and hopeful spring with every kind of summer vegetable. The time of clearing away is not yet. There are, however, rows of peas and beans, whose day of useful service is almost done. In their shade may be found a haven for a few rows of greens—the early potatoes are being dry and the second earlies have almost completed their growth. Greens may fill up the place of the earlies and may be planted between the rows of second earlies before they are dry. In any case, whether they follow a finished crop, or are planted between established ones, no deep digging is necessary or desirable, only a light forking where the ground has been trodden hard. Above all, anything in the nature of fresh or rank manure should be avoided, for the objective of plants that are to stand out through the winter is strong stocky growth. For this there is nothing better than ground that has been well dug and manured for the previous crop, always supposing that it contains sufficient lime. If the latter is lacking, it can be forked in before planting in the form of slaked lime, a handful to the square yard. Only when the soil is really poor should manure be used, and then care must be taken to use only very old decayed stuff, or artificials.

All winter greens are alike in their choice of ground, the cauliflower, their cousin, alone differs and thrives best in a rich loose soil with any amount of good luscious manure and copious soakings of manure water, for it is out for quick summer growth. The broccoli, which resembles it so closely in appearance, must stand the winter, and must needs form a wiry stalk and tough leaves—that accounts for its choice of firm ground innocent of fresh manure, and with plenty of lime.

The various kinds of sprouting broccoli are a most welcome change from the inevitable round of kale, Brussels sprouts, broccoli and cabbage. Wherever it has been introduced it has become an immediate and general favourite. The purple sprouting in early and late varieties is best of all, but the white sprouting and green sprouting are nearly as good, and if all three kinds are grown they make a good succession through the winter and spring, and once grown are always grown again, generally in increasing quantities.

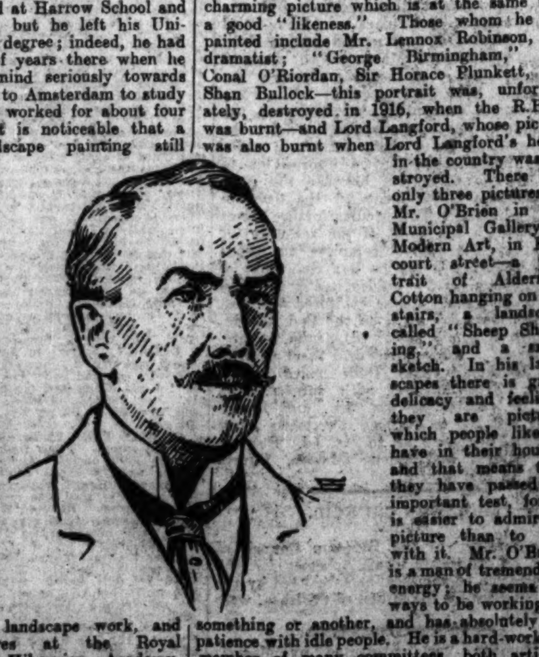
XVIII.—Mr. Dermod O'Brien.

(BY BRUYERE.)

Mr. Dermod O'Brien, the President of the Royal Hibernian Academy, is a Limerick man, and is a grandson of William Smith O'Brien. He was born in 1865, and was educated at Harrow School and Cambridge University, but he left his University before taking a degree; indeed, he had only spent a couple of years there when he decided to turn his mind seriously towards Art. In 1887 he went to Amsterdam to study painting, and there he worked for about four years under Verlat—it is noticeable that a good deal of his landscape painting still shows this early Dutch influence. At the end of that time he went for a short while to Paris, and finally he completed his training at the Slade School in London. After spending eight or nine years in study at these three different centres of art, Mr. O'Brien set up on his own account in London, where he had a studio for a long period. It is interesting to note that his first actual commission was for a portrait of Aubrey de Vere, the poet. This portrait was afterwards mezzotinted by Mr. Strang. In London Mr. O'Brien practised simple fare and hard work; he did a good deal of portrait painting and landscape work, and he exhibited pictures at the Royal Academy, the Royal Hibernian Academy, and at Liverpool and other exhibitions. In 1905 he was elected an associate member of the R.H.A., becoming a member in 1907, and succeeding Sir Thomas Drew as President of that body in 1910. A year later he was made an honorary member of the Royal Academy.



During his career Mr. O'Brien has painted many excellent portraits of distinguished men and women; he is perhaps best known in artistic circles as a portrait painter. He does not possess the almost uncanny skill of Sir William Orpen, but he is a first-rate draughtsman, and he always contrives to paint a charming picture which is at the same time a good "likeness." Those whom he has painted include Mr. Lennox Robinson, the dramatist; "George Birmingham," Mr. Conal O'Riordan, Sir Horace Plunkett, Mr. Shan Bullock—this portrait was, unfortunately, destroyed in 1916, when the R.H.A. was burnt—and Lord Langford, whose picture was also burnt when Lord Langford's house in the country was destroyed. There are only three pictures by Mr. O'Brien in the Municipal Gallery of Modern Art, in Harcourt street—a portrait of Alderman Cotton hanging on the stairs, a landscape called "Sheep Shearing," and a small sketch. In his landscapes there is great delicacy and feeling; they are pictures which people like to have in their houses, and that means that they have passed an important test, for it is easier to admire a picture than to live with it. Mr. O'Brien is a man of tremendous energy; he seems always to be working at something or another, and has absolutely no patience with idle people. He is a hard-working member of many committees, both artistic and otherwise; and he is a splendid organiser and "man of affairs." He is one of those artists who have a very genuine love for pictures, and this love of the work of others has, curiously enough, tended to interfere with his own art, for he is always ready to give his energy and his time to the encouragement of the younger artists. He is, too, a Governor of the National Gallery of Ireland, and on that board he does admirable work.

POST OFFICE TECHNICAL EXAMINATION RESULTS.

The results of the annual examinations in magnetism and electricity, telegraphy and telephony, conducted by the Technical Section of the Post Office and the Technological Department of the City and Guilds of London Institute, have recently been announced, and are remarkable, as showing the large number of certificates awarded to Dublin candidates. The percentage of successes from the Irish capital is much higher than the average in Great Britain. This is a very hopeful feature in the initial stage of a native Administration.

The results are appended:—

Post Office Departmental Technical Examination (Theoretical and Practical)—Messrs. P. Brady, F. Cleary, M. Kehoe, J. F. Keefe, J. McLoughlin, F. McCarthy, M. McDonnell, T. Maloney, W. Maybury, G. There was much more business passing on 'Change, and the tendency and trend of prices was almost without exception favourable. The Funds were busy, and higher prices were general. Rails were idle most of the day, but closed firm. Trams were quietly firm. Parent Tyres were dull. Tobaccos and Textiles were better, and Shells closed at a recovery.

LONDON STOCKS QUIET BUT CHEERFUL.

RISE IN GILT-EDGED.

On the Stock markets yesterday business was extremely quiet, there being little disposition to extend commitments over the week-end in view of political possibilities. The tone, however, was cheerful, and there was an inclination on the part of values to harden. The close was quite firm. In British Funds changes were few, but the 5 per cent. War Loan rose ⅛ to 100⅞, the Conversion Loan ⅛ to 78¼, and Local Loans ⅛ to 67.

FOREIGN GOVERNMENT SECURITIES closed without change. French Loans at one time were inclined to droop, but they recovered, and showed no alteration on the day.

HOME RAILS were inactive, and changes were few. Metropolitan rose ½ to 70, and Districts ⅛ to 48¼.

COLONIAL AND FOREIGN RAILS were little dealt in, and the only change was a gain of a point to 25½ in Grand Trunk Pacific Debs. Americans closed unaltered.

OIL SHARES QUIET.

SHELLS A LITTLE BETTER.

Oil Shares finished the week in extremely quiet fashion, transactions for the most part being in small lines of shares. Public interest was almost non-existent, business consisting mainly of evening-up of books over the week-end. Prices moved within narrow limits, and had an irregular appearance at the close. Among the leaders, Shells once more commanded the bulk of attention, but, as was the case with other descriptions, dealings were mainly in small lines of shares. At one time they had a very heavy appearance, but met with little support at the reduced level, and finished slightly higher on balance. Royal Dutch received very little attention, but maintained a steady tone, and, in fact, registered a small improvement. A tendency was noticeable to pick up Mexican Eagles, but the business failed to influence the quotation. Anglo-Persians were on the dull side, lower prices being quoted for both the old and new, and a shrinkage occurred in Burmahs. V.O.C. Holdings were looking a better market than of late, particularly towards the close, a demand being reported from usually well-informed quarters. British Controlled Common also met with a moderate amount of attention and hardened, but any demand for the Pref. was easily satisfied. The Agwi issues remained steady, with attention directed mainly to the Pref. Shares. Roumanians received very little attention, and generally finished without alteration. Trinidad issues continued to suffer from neglect, Centrals further weakening and Apex slipping back in the absence of demand. Transactions in other directions were unimportant, and had little influence upon quotations. Closing prices:—

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

A reader asks (says the Evening Standard) upon what system the quotations in the official list are arrived at, and proceeds to state a case. Certain debentures are quoted at 79½-80½, and he gives an order to buy at the higher figure. His broker informs him there are none on offer. Accordingly, he raised his bid to 81½, but the result is the same. Yet the quotation remains in the official list at 79½-80½. Should not the fact that buyers exist above the quoted price be indicated in the Stock List, as the enhanced offer would quite likely bring out sellers? asks our correspondent. We quite agree, but the aim of the dealer seems to be to keep off sellers rather than encourage buyers.

In some quarters there is a tendency to interpret too literally the comparative statements of the home railway traffics. This, we think, is a mistake. As published, the figures do not really represent the actual position, even when a generous allowance is made for adjustments and the difference in the scale of freight and passenger charges ruling. It is a pity that comparisons should be given at all, because they are apt to be misleading in themselves, and there is no reliable data relating to expenditure, which is equally as important in any attempt to get down to realities.

A formal meeting of the new London, Midland and Scottish Railway Co. was held at Euston to elect a board of directors. The first London, Midland and Scottish Railway Co. ceased to exist on June 30, when the North Staffordshire Railway Co. and the Caledonian Railway Co. came into the "group." The new company came into being on July 1, and at the first meeting the directors of the old company were elected to the new board without alteration.

Sir William Peat, C.V.O., who retired from the firm of Messrs. W. B. Peat and Co. on June 30 last, and resigned his position as one of the auditors of the National, Provincial and Union Bank of England Ltd., has been elected to a seat on the Board of that bank.

Following the men taking over the Swansea Docks, the Great Western Railway Company have sent out cheques in payment of four years' interest due to the Swansea Harbour Trust Bond and Mortgage holders. This interest, which had been in default by the Swansea Harbour Trust, amounted to £736,000.

LONDON MINING MARKET INACTIVE.

MINING CORPORATION OF CANADA RISING.

There was a painful absence of public demand at any rate for Mining Shares, and once more the Kaffir section could boast no outstanding features. However, the low level to which many of the leaders had fallen evidently attracted purchasers, and although the turnover was of only modest proportions, several Far Easterns displayed a hardening tendency. Central Mining were wanted, and New State Areas, Modderfontein, Brakpan, and Crown Mines were better. Generals further receded, but "Johnnies," Union Corporation, and Rand Mines maintained firmness. In the Rhodesian department Chartered were a very quiet market, and the life seems to have gone out of them since the meeting. There was, however, some inquiry for Tanganyika, Lonely, and Willoughby. Cam and Motor were unaltered, but Selukwe were rather offered, and lost the turn. Apart from De Beers Def., which put on a half-crown in response to a little demand, Diamonds were dullish. The price of tin was slightly harder at £184 9s. 3d. per ton, and there was a disposition to pick up some of the leading shares, but the dealings were of only a half-hearted character, and the changes on balance were few in number and irregular in character. Australians were left to themselves, and in the Copper section a bout of profit-taking caused a sharp set-back in Rio Tinto. Russians remained idle, but in the Miscellaneous department there was again a good demand for Mining Corporation of Canada, which further advanced. Closing prices:—

MARCONI PROFIT.

NOT LESS THAN LAST YEAR; MEETING DEFERRED.

The Secretary of Marconis Wireless Telegraph Company, Ltd., is circulating the following letter to the shareholders of the company:—

"You will have seen in the present statement made to the House of Commons by His Majesty's Postmaster-General in regard to the agreement now under negotiation between His Majesty's Government and the company for the provision of an Empire wireless telegraph service, and the granting of a general licence for a world wireless telegraph service. Your directors consider it highly important that when they meet the shareholders in annual meeting they should be in a position to give them detailed information in regard to the agreement. In these circumstances they have decided to defer the annual meeting for the short period which will be necessary to enable them to make a definite announcement.

"Meanwhile, although the audit of the accounts for the past year is not yet complete, the directors are in a position to state that the profit for the period will not be less than that of the preceding year."

Mr. Alfred Claud Hollis, C.M.G., C.B.E., Chief Secretary to the Administration of the Tanganyika Territory, has been appointed British Resident in Zanzibar, in succession to Mr. John Houston Sinclair, C.M.G., C.B.E., who will shortly retire from the Colonial Service on the ground of age.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LOWER PRICE FOR TREASURY BILLS.

Contrary to general anticipations, this week's Treasury bills were sold at a lower price, the average being under 3 1/16 discount, and this had the effect of weakening bill rates. Bills dated Monday to Friday offered at £99 4s. 8d. receive 40 per cent., and Saturday's at £99 4s. 10d., and above, were allotted in full. Again no Treasury 4 per cent. Bonds have been sold by tender.

Bank Rate (Discount changed July 5, 1923) 4%.

Only a slight demand was experienced for money, and supplies were comparatively large, balances for the night being offered down to 1½-1¾ per cent. An easier tendency developed in discounts, with fine three months' bank bills closing scarcely better than 3⅛.

Gold remained unchanged at 89s. 8d. per ounce. Silver fell 1/16d. per ounce for both spot and forward delivery to 30 11/16d. and 30½d., respectively.

So far as the spectacular was concerned, German marks remained the feature in the market for foreign exchange, the rate breaking from 3,500,000 to 4,500,000. French francs were easy at 77.35-77.40, and Belgium cheapened also to 94.15-94.25, Italy being 104⅛-104⅜. Sterling was quite firm on New York at 4.59⅛-4.59⅜ dollars, and Dutch florins at 11.67-11.68, Switzerland being 25.65-25.70. Argentine dollars were comparatively steady at 40 1/16-40 3/16. INDUSTRIALS QUIET.

IMPORTANT MARCONI STATEMENT.

PROFITS NOT LESS THAN LAST YEAR.

The week closed as quietly as it opened in the Miscellaneous and Industrial markets yesterday. Business remained on a very small scale, and where movements occurred they revealed a sagging tendency, purely as the result of continued lack of interest. United Tobaccos met with renewed support, and a further advance was seen, while B.A.T. were wanted, and registered an improvement. Imperials showed no change. Apart from the weakness of Dent Alcroft Prefs., little of interest transpired in the Miscellaneous trading group, and very few changes occurred in Textiles. Coats came into demand, and closed higher, but Courtaulds gave way. Cellulose issues kept firm. Stores descriptions showed no decided tendency. Among Caterers, J. Lyons were a trifle better, though Liptons relapsed. In the Iron and Steel group, Workman Clark Debs. were quoted ex div. Bengals further receded, but one or two advances took place. Among Coal stocks, Powell Duffryns moved up on dividend anticipations. Marconi Ord. finished fractionally lower on balance, though the other issues held their ground. The company issued a statement after hours to the effect that it has been decided to defer the annual meeting for a short period, in order to give shareholders detailed information in regard to the agreement between the company and the Government for the development of wireless. The circular further states that, although the audit of the accounts for the past year is not yet complete, the profit for the period will not be less than that of the preceding year. Cables had a dull appearance, but Land shares exhibited firmness. Apart from a fall of 1/16 in the Ord. to 2 11/16, the Marconi group remained steady at previous levels. Among Iron and Steel descriptions, Workman Clark Debs. ruled at 60, ex div. Babcocks met with support, and closed 6d. better at 44s. 6d., and Mond-Nickels rose 9d. to 37s., ex div, while Pease and Partners moved up to 26s. 3d. Dunlops eased to 8s., and among Motors, Rovers receded to 21s.

DIOCESAN COUNCIL.

At a meeting of the Diocesan Council of Dublin on Thursday draft schemes for the amalgamation of parishes, as submitted by the Commissioners for the Union of Parishes, were considered.

A Humber car, presented by Messrs. Humber, Ltd., was recently balloted for in connection with the building of two special lifeboats for Barry and the Mumbles. The winner proved to be Miss Sylvia Evans, of Newquay, Cardiganshire. Over 30,000 people purchased tickets for the draw.

PRODUCE AND FOOD.

CATTLE.

BIRKENHEAD, Friday.—There was a fair supply of Irish cattle on offer to-day, notwithstanding the fact that the Free State ports are closed owing to the continued strike. Trade was slow, bullocks and heifers making from 10½d. to 10⅞d. A large supply of lambs met a worse trade at 1/4 to 1/5 per lb., sinking the offal for the beef. On offer 628 cattle and 2,840 lambs.

GRAIN.

DUBLIN CORN EXCHANGE REPORT, Friday.—The sparse attendance of the trade here and few samples about leaves business of uninteresting dimensions. A few small oddments of barley and rye recently appeared, but prices did not transpire. Oats continue to average around previous rates.

MARK LANE, Friday.—Trade remains more or less at a standstill, as deliveries from the docks are still held up by strike conditions, and prices are largely nominal. WHEAT—English mostly out of supply, and nominally quoted at 11/6 to 12/- per 112lbs. f.o.r. as to sample. Imported dull and easier for arrival; No. 1 Northern Manitobs quoted 46/-, No. 2 mixed Durum 44/-, Rosafe 63½lbs. 46/-, choice white Karachi 45/-, red ditto 4/- all per 496lbs. ex ship. FLOUR firmly held, owing to scarcity of spot wheat. London standard straight run quoted 40/-, patents 42/- to 43/-. Town Households 38/- per sack delivered in Metropolitan area. Imported in small supply, and largely nominal. Manitoba patents range from 35/6 to 39/-, Minneapolis good patents 38/6 to 39/-, Australian 35/6 to 37/- all per 280lbs. ex store. LIVERPOOL, Friday.—Influenced by the weakness in America and the Argentine speculative positions of WHEAT here gave way considerably during the early trading for distant months, although a fair recovery afterwards took place under a natural reaction. Values again receded and fluctuated moderately, finishing slightly over the worst point, afternoon cables having little effect; July showed a liberal advance. C.i.f. parcels of No. 1 Manitoba sold at 44/3, just sailed 44/-, No. 2 hard winter July 40/-, July-August 39/3, choice white Karachi afloat 42/-, Rosario-Santa Fe early August 39/10½, Baril August and Barusso same position 39/3 per quarter. C.i.f. parcels of MAIZE River Plate June-July sold 33/6, July-August and August-September 33/3 per quarter. Wheat on the spot irregular with prices 1d. dearer to 2½d. per cental lower than Tuesday. Maize spot parcels scarce and considerably dearer at 8/5 to 8/7 for American mixed, but River Plate 1d. per cental lower than Tuesday at 8/1½ to 8/2 per cental. FLOUR showed no change, but a slightly better inquiry reported in some quarters. Graded red wheat futures opened 1½d. to 1½d. per cental lower for distant months, lost a further ½d. to ¾d., but afterwards recovered ½d. to ¾d. of the decline, closing steady. Then prices fluctuated somewhat, closing steady at 1½d. under last night; July, however, was 1d. per cental dearer. Sales—100 loads at 9/10½ to 9/11 for July, 8/5½, 8/5½, 8/6, 8/5½, 8/5½ October, and 8/6, 8/5½, 8/6½, 8/4½, 8/4½ December delivery. Maize options nominal.

WAKEFIELD, Friday.—Light supplies of all kinds. English wheat in good demand, at 11/- to 11/6 cwt.; English oats 10/- to 11/- per cwt.; beans 10/- to 10/3 per cwt. Other feeding stuffs easier.

PROVISIONS.

LONDON, Friday.—BUTTER—Difficulty was again experienced during the week in the matter of obtaining delivery owing to the strike, and for anything available there was a good demand, while as a consequence prices disclose a further advance for all descriptions. New Zealand finest salted quoted 170/- to 172/-, fine ditto 166/- to 168/-, unsalted 170/- to 174/-. Australian finest unsalted 160/- to 164/-, interior down to 130/-, finest salted 160/- to 164/-, good to fine 146/- to 156/-, inferior 130/- to 140/-; Argentine ranges from 140/ to 156/-, as to quality; Irish creamery 162/-, Danish 174/-, Paris baskets 148/- to 151/-, ditto salted 154/- to 154 per cwt.; French rolls 15/- to 17/- per doz. lb. Dutch descriptions out of supply. CHEESE—Prices for English remained unaltered, and with sustained inquiries business during the week proceeded with fair freedom. Canadian nominal. Only moderate quantities of Dutch are available. New Zealand further moved up in price owing to marked paucity of offers on the part of sellers. English finest farmers 112/- to 114/-, fine 95/- to 105/-, loaf 110/- to 114/-, factory 80/- to 90/-, New Zealand white, also coloured, 106/- to 112/-, Dutch Edam 40 per cent. quoted 66/- to 70/-, 30 per cent. 56/- to 60/-, 20 per cent. 48/- to 50/-, Goudas 20 per cent. 48/- to 50/- per cwt. BACON—Moderate inquiries were in circulation this week, mostly centred upon lean selections. Certain quantities of Danish coming to market show signs of taint owing to delay arising in transit. No Irish available owing to the strike at Irish ports. Danish quoted 98/- to 108/-, Swedish 90/- to 102/-. A small quantity of Dutch reached the market, and is quoted 95/-, Canadian nominally 90/- to 98/- per cwt. HAMS—Good steady inquiries imparted a very firm tone to the market. English quoted 170/- to 210/-, as to weight; American long cut green 108/- to 118/-, short cuts 110/- to 120/-, picnics 78/- to 84/- per cwt. LARD—A quiet tone again characterised this week and trend of values proved favourable to the buyer. American tails quoted 66/3, cartons 67/- to 68/-, boxes 63/- to 64/- per cwt. EGGS—There is a fair demand for English at 13/- to 15/- per 120. With regard to most imported descriptions the market is very erratic, and actual quotations difficult to define.

LIVERPOOL, Friday.—Irish BACON continues more or less nominal. Danish in fair demand, and prices raised to 104/- to 108/- per cwt. Canadian Wiltshires firm on scarcity, and held for extreme prices. There is little new feature in American selections of bacon here, which meet a moderate demand, especially for Cumberlands and bellies, heavy weights of former being raised to 72/- to 79/-, and latter 70/- to 75/-, while long clears are dearer at 76/- to 82/-, and backs 72/- to 78/- per cwt. HAMS remain firm, with a good demand, and prices continue to tend upwards, short cut being now 115/- to 120/- per cwt. Shoulders steady at the recent advance, picnics being in small supply. Lard on the spot is dearer at 61/- to 61/6 per cwt. for prime steam, but American refined shows no quotable change, the demand generally being of a moderate character. CHEESE in very small compass, and prices more or less nominal, with sellers difficult to approach. BUTTER also very scarce owing to the labour troubles, and prices very erratic, with business in Danish reported round about 170/- to 180/-; Irish creameries 160/- to 168/- per cwt. EGGS—Supplies almost exhausted, and prices nominal owing to the strike in Ireland, though Irish hen have made 13/- to 14/- per 120.

REFINED LARD "FUTURES," Liverpool, Friday.—Chicago cables finished better than expected, and with a fair demand prices improved 6d. to 9d. per cwt. during the early afternoon, but this level was not maintained, though 3d. per cwt. advance was shown at the close of morning session. July realised 62/- 62/3 to 62/-, Oct. 62/9 to 62/6, Nov. 62/6 to 62/3, with August quoted 61/6 to 62/3 per cwt. Afternoon cables were colourless, and prices closed 3d. to 6d. dearer on the day. Closing prices:—July being 61/9 to 62/-, Sept. 62/3 sellers, Oct. 62/6 to 62/9, Nov. 63/- sellers, and cash ex store 61/9 bid.

MANCHESTER, Friday.—Butter.—The Danish butter quotation showed an advance of 29 kroner. Spot supplies have been cleared, and a firm feeling prevails. Choicest Danish 182/- to 184/-. Finnish nominal at 162/- to 165/- per cwt. Bacon was in moderate request, with Irish nominal, and other descriptions steadily upheld at recent values. Lard lower; English refined boxes quoted 66/- per cwt. wholesale. Cheese in slow request, the quality and condition being very variable. Eggs very firm owing to acute scarcity. Irish prices nominal. Danish 13/6 to 15/8 per 120.

DUBLIN FRUIT AND VEGETABLE, Friday.—Imported fruit still scarce, owing to strike hold-up, and what little is dribbling in comes to land in very bad order. Home bush and other seasonable fruits in fair supply, and good request. Gooseberries, however, cheaper and easier. Selected peaches, 9d. to 1/2 each; others, 1/4 to 4/3 and 6/- per dozen; strawberries, 5d. to 10d., and special 1/- to 1/3 per punnet; raspberries, 10d. to 1/- and 1/3 ditto; cherries, 1/8 to 1/10 per lb.; black grapes, 3/6 to 3/8 per lb.; loganberries, 10d. to 1/3; plums, 18/- to 18/- per half-sieve; pears, 15/- to 16/-; gooseberries, 3/6 to 5/- per tray, and 6/6 to 8/- per half-bushel; red currants, 2/6 to 3/3 and 3/6 per tray, or 4d. to 6d. per lb.; black currants, 3/6 to 4/3 and 4/6 per tray, or 10d. to 1/- per lb.; Irish tomatoes, 1/6 to 2/- per lb. Vegetables in good supply, and sales well supported for everything unless cabbage, which went disappointingly. Rhubarb, sale off, owing to plentiful supplies of gooseberries, etc. Average auction currencies—Cauliflowers, 3/6 to 4/6; special, 5/- to 5/9; others, 1/- to 2/9 per dozen; York cabbage, 8/6 to 15/-, 25/-, and 30/-; special loads up to 40/- to 50/-; rhubarb, 1/3 to 3/6 and 4/3 per dozen bunches; peas, 6/6 to 18/- per bag, 1/6 to 2/- per tray, etc.; broad beans, 1/6 to 2/- per float; parsley, 8d. to 1/- per tray, etc., and 2/3 per bag; cucumbers, 6/- to 12/- and 14/- per doz.; carrots, 6d. to 1/6 per dozen bunches; white turnips, 4d. to 6d. and 1/- per bundle; thyme, 1d. to 3d. and 4d. per bunch; scallions, 9d. to 1/- per bundle; Tripoli onions, 10d. to 1/6 ditto; lettuce, 8d. to 1/- and 1/6 per doz.; spinach, 8d. to 1/- per kish, etc.; raddishes, 1/- per dozen bunches.

DUBLIN WHOLESALE POTATO, Friday.—Supplies of potatoes were, perhaps, slightly on an increased scale this morning. Queens were readily disposed of at 10/- per cwt., but only nicely handled lots of Epicures went up to factors' maximum level of 9/- per cwt. Rough and mixed sorts 1/- or so less generally.

DUBLIN POULTRY, Friday.—Chickens in fair supply, and good request. Old fowl very plentiful and rather irregular in price in pressure to keep cleared; live birds command a preferential sale, and only plump, tender, properly cooled and handled dead consignments can be cashed to full advantage. Ducks much as before. Prime fresh rabbits in request. Chickens all sizes 1/3 to 1/6 per lb. dead; extra or crammed 1/6 per lb.; pullets, 2/- to 2/6; old fowl, dead, 1/6 to 2/-; prime live heavy fat hens, 2/- to 2/6; prime young ducks, 4/- to 5/-; seconds, 2/- to 3/6; old ducks, 1/- to 1/6; fat, 2/-; young fat pigeons, 6d. to 8d.; old, 4d.; rabbits, 8d. to 10d. each; graziers, 3/- to 8/- per dozen.

DUBLIN BUTTER AND EGG, Friday.—Supplies on our farm produce market are moderate. The cross-Channel position is reflecting a very stiff tone in butter here, and it appears that Irish creamery producers are getting liberal quantities shipped at encouraging prices, but Dublin distributing merchants find it difficult to do business on parity values. Of course, the chief leverage on values is the advance in Danish, whilst the difficulty of landing it, and also of handling New Zealand butter in London docks, leaves markets very bare. However, altogether it seems as if prices are settling to a fairly seasonable level, and it is not anticipated that on the settlement of Labour troubles great reductions will be established. Irish creams rate from 1/4½ to 1/5, and in some hands 1/5½ is quoted; best farmers' cools from 1/1 to 1/2; occasional parcels of separators make ½d. or so more, but are very scarce. Coarse butter and lumps coming to hand in heated condition have to be negotiated at cheap rates, say 8d. to 1/- per lb. With regard to the egg position, reliable fresh qualities are very scarce, but stale consignments are still coming in freely, and causing considerable disorganisation in the trade. Many merchants now find it necessary to return these to consignors, and somebody must lose heavily, consequently it is near time that more careful attention should be given to the sorting and packing of eggs. For best lots of fresh hen eggs prices go from, say, 11/6 to 12/6 per 120; other descriptions 8/9 to 10/6, according to character. Duck eggs, as usual at this season, are very cautiously dealt in.

CORK BUTTER, Friday.—The market has assumed a firmer tone, and values of choicest brands are advancing. Creameries 162/- per cwt., choicest mild cured 180/- upwards, farmers' fresh packages 80/-.

LURGAN, Friday.—In Lurgan weekly market yesterday pork fell 2/- from the previous week to 81/- per cwt.; eggs and butter increased in price—the former to 1/4 per dozen, and the latter to 1/6 and 1/8 per lb. New Potatoes, of which there was a good supply, sold from 8/- to 9/- per cwt., and old do. 1/6 to 2/- per cwt.

DUBLIN FISH, Friday.—Market, except of herrings, of small nature. Prime fresh arrivals cleared freely at average rates quoted. Among deliveries 10 vanloads salmon, and 14 chests lobsters featured. Herrings, chiefly from Howth boats, embraced about 120 crans, and mostly of good size and quality, well suitable to curers' purposes. However, in present unsettled shipping position values were at an unusually cheap level. Some early sales averaged 10/- and 12/- per cran, but subsequently 6/- to 7/- was accepted to clear. Salmon, 1/6 to 1/9 and 1/10 per lb.; grilse, 1/3 to 1/6 per lb.; best live lobsters, 12/6 to 15/- and 17/6 per 13; seconds around 7/6 to 10/-; others, 3/6 to 5/- per 13; turbot, 2/6 to 15/-; brill, 2/- to 5/- and 6/- each; best soles, 30/- to 50/- per 9 pairs; mediums, 20/- to 27/6; slips, 5/- to 7/6 per 9 pairs; large plaice, 8/- to 10/- per 4; others, 6/-, 8/- and 10/- per 6 and 8; half-boxes plaice, 40/- to 75/- ray, 12/- to 20/-.

GRIMSBY FISH, Friday.—41 North Sea, 1 Iceland, and 6 Faroe trawlers landed moderate supply. Demand fair. Plaice 10/6, lemon soles 15/-, whitings 3/6, halibut 18/-, cod 6/-, skate 6/- to 7/-, small haddocks 4/-, kit 5/-, gibbed 6/6, dabs 7/6, codlings 4/- per stone; soles 2/10 per lb.

CLYDE CRUSHED SUGAR, Friday.—Market quiet; moderate business doing.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DUBLIN HAY AND STRAW (Smithfield), Friday.—Hay supplies on market were not near so heavy as on Tuesday, and this about saved the price situation for new qualities. Old hay, however, experienced a sharp drop in value, perhaps 1/- to 1/6 or 2/- per cwt., although offered in greatly reduced quantity. A few leading dairymen put in an appearance and were helpful in contributing to a clearance of new hay, although their purchases so far were very moderate. Old hay went from 5/- to 6/6 and 7/- per cwt.; strong qualities new hay 3/6 to 4/-, and occasional fancy loads of County Dublin first crop 4/3 and 4/6 per cwt.; this season's old meadow classes of hay 2/9 to 3/6. Wheaten straw scarce and went 4/3 to 4/6 and 4/9 per cwt. Oaten fair supply; early prices 3/6 to 4/-, closing 3/- to 3/3 per cwt.

MANCHESTER TRADE, Friday.—Inquiries this morning reveal no strikingly new feature of interest in any department of our market. Practicable cloth business for both India and China comes forward tardily, and only isolated and unprofitable transactions recorded. Moderate inquiry for secondary outlets frequently spoiled by inadequate limits and difficult conditions attached. American yarns easier again, and pressure for orders continues.

YESTERDAY'S CASES IN THE COURTS

THE GALTEEMORE CLUB.

SEIZURE BY CIVIC GUARDS.

The adjourned case of Mansergh and others v. Torpay and others came on for hearing yesterday. An application in the case was made on behalf of the plaintiffs—Messrs. George Mansergh, landowner, of Grenane, Tipperary; John O'Dwyer, solicitor, Tipperary, and Robert B. Heuston, solicitor, Tipperary—for an interlocutory injunction restraining the defendants—Inspector E. Torpay, Civic Guard, and Sergeants Armstrong, Keogh and Millar, and several members of the same body—pending the trial of the action, from trespassing and entering upon the premises known as "The Galteemore Club," Tipperary. The club premises, it was alleged, had been forcibly seized by the defendants, and possession of them still retained.

Mr. Price, K.C., and Mr. Connolly (instructed by Mr. R. B. Heuston) appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. T. Sullivan, K.C., and Mr. John O'Byrne (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) for the defendants.

Mr. Price, in opening the case, said that the Civic Guard still remained in possession of the premises, and claimed the right to hold and to alter them and turn them into police barracks, without any offer of fair compensation or any apology for the inconvenience which they had caused.

Reading the affidavit of Mr. R. B. Heuston, solicitor, hon. secretary of the club, on which the application was grounded, he explained that the first three plaintiffs mentioned were the trustees of the club, and that the premises were held under a lease which contained very stringent covenants, including covenants to keep in repair, not to sub-let, and, in particular, not to allow them to be used as a police barracks.

FORCIBLE POSSESSION.

In the affidavit it was stated that on 29th March a number of persons in the uniform of Civic Guards, in charge of a sergeant, took forcible possession of the club premises, furniture and effects, and summarily ejected some of the members of the club then having their meals, and compelled two other members who were residing in the club to leave and hurriedly seek lodgings elsewhere. No previous or subsequent notice had been given of the intention to take possession and use the premises for quarters for the Civic Guard force.

The defendant, Inspector Torpay, in charge of the Civic Guards, informed Mr. Heuston that unless the steward and his wife and furniture were out of the club by that evening he would have them thrown out on the street. In a subsequent interview, Inspector Torpay informed him that he intended to have the necessary alterations made to convert the billiard-room into an office for his use.

On Tuesday last Mr. Price said that an affidavit by General O'Duffy, Commissioner in charge of the Civic Guard Depôt, Phœnix Park, had been received in reply to Mr. Heuston's affidavit, which, if anything, added to the indignity with which the plaintiffs and members of the club were treated. One would have reason to believe that, having regard to the utterly lawless manner in which the defendants had acted, something in the nature of an apology or reasonable explanation would have been given as to the acquisition of the premises; but the position taken up by the authorities in charge was to express their intention of remaining there, without taking any legal steps whatever.

GENERAL O'DUFFY'S CASE.

General O'Duffy, in his affidavit, stated that the Galteemore Club was considered the only premises in the town suitable for the requirements of the Guard, and the one which could be taken with the minimum of inconvenience. It was accordingly taken over.

"The Board of Works did report that the old jail or Bridewell could be made habitable, but this would have necessitated considerable alterations and repairs, and would have taken very considerable time. In all the circumstances, it was considered desirable, in the public interest, that the club premises should be taken over and a party of the Civic Guard installed there. And accordingly, on the 29th March last, the premises were taken over, but not by persons in the uniform of the Civic Guard, as mentioned in the affidavit of Mr. Heuston. The premises were, in fact, taken over by the military authorities some time before any of the Civic Guard arrived in the town, and were then handed over to the Civic Guard. It was considered at the time that it was essential for the restoration of law and order in the district that a police force should be installed in the town."

General O'Duffy, in his affidavit, further stated that he was informed that it was inaccurate to state that the club was used to any considerable extent. At the time the premises were taken over the only persons living there were the steward and his wife. There had been two bank clerks living there, but he was informed that they were away on holidays at the time. With the exception of the bank clerks, the persons using the club were persons living in the vicinity, and the closing of the club could not have caused any considerable inconvenience to them. In view of the difficulty in acquiring suitable premises for the Civic Guard in this and other localities, it was considered necessary to introduce a bill authorising the Minister for Home Affairs to acquire premises compulsorily for the use of the Civic Guard, which was passed on the 16th inst.

Mr. Price submitted that these people ought not to be allowed to remain in possession of the premises under the circumstances. No apology had been made on behalf of the defendant, and no undertaking had been given to pay for the damage done.

"A SERIOUS CASE."

Mr. Sullivan, K.C., said that the authorities quite realised that this was a serious case, but he submitted that, having regard to the state of affairs that existed in the district and the difficulty of getting suitable premises, it was not a case in which the Court in its discretion would grant an interlocutory injunction. It was clear from General O'Duffy's affidavit that the authorities had acted bona fide and honestly in taking the course they had adopted, and with the desire of causing the least possible inconvenience to the inhabitants of the town. There was no evidence of any substantial damage being done to the premises.

With reference to the state of the district, it was admitted that up till the end of last month, at any rate, a state of war existed in the country. He pointed out that even if an interlocutory injunction were granted and the Civic Guard turned out, they could be restored to possession of the premises again almost immediately under the operation of the Act which had been recently passed.

In reply to his lordship, he said that he had no objection to having General O'Duffy added as a defendant in the action in view of the question of damages.

Mr. Connolly replied, referring to the manner in which the authorities had endeavoured to regularise their position in the matter.

THE JUDGMENT.

The Master of the Rolls, giving judgment and allowing the application for an interlocutory injunction to stand, under the circumstances, till the trial of the action, said that he noticed that in this case the defendants had abstained from making the case that there was a state of war in the town of Tipperary at the time these premises were taken, and that it was a military necessity which induced them to take the premises. In every case where a state of war was relied upon previously the fact was expressly stated on affidavit.

There was no legal justification whatever for the action of the Civic Guard in this matter, though what they had done was done, no doubt, with the best possible intention. Possession of the premises had been taken in the most illegal and high-handed way, no matter how great the necessity for taking them; and no previous notice had been given. The plaintiffs were clearly entitled to an injunction under the circumstances; but he saw no necessity for granting an injunction, because the injunction would prove nugatory in the course of a week or two or three weeks; and if the plaintiffs and the members of the club were restored to possession of the premises they would be obliged to put them in a habitable condition again.

He did not think that he ought to grant an injunction, in the exercise of his discretion, when he was convinced that the injunction would prove useless and nugatory. As Mr. Sullivan had agreed to allow General O'Duffy to be joined as a defendant, he would allow this application to stand over until the hearing of the action; but he thought that the plaintiffs were entitled to the costs of the motion.

On the suggestion of Mr. Sullivan, his lordship reserved the costs pending the result of the action.

BOHAN v. MALONEY.

We are asked to say that in the case of Bohan v. Maloney, reported on Thursday, the solicitors for the defendant were Messrs. Reddy, and not Mr. Michael Gleeson.

BANK AS PURCHASER OF CARS

(Chancery Division, before Mr. Justice Powell.)

Mr. Justice Powell delivered judgment in the matter of J. Pullar Phibbs, Limited, in liquidation, and in the matter of the Companies Acts.

The case had come before the Court on a summons taken out by the liquidator, John Sedgwick, who applied for an order declaring that a sale of certain motors and stock-in-trade for £1,769 1s. 6d. by J. Pullar Phibbs, Limited, to the National Land Bank, Limited, College Green, Dublin, on or about the 23rd June, 1922, and the lodgment of that sum to the account of J. Pullar Phibbs, Limited, at that bank was a fraudulent preference, and that it should be set aside, and for an order that the bank should repay to the liquidator that sum, with interest from the 27th June, 1922, together with costs of application. The company, by resolution of the 7th July, 1922, went into voluntary liquidation. It had been incorporated for the purpose of dealing in motor cars, etc., at North Strand, Dublin, and elsewhere.

In February, 1920, debentures were created by the company to secure a loan from the Munster and Leinster Bank, and in December, 1921, the company required a further advance; but, as the Munster and Leinster Bank was unwilling to accord this accommodation, the company approached the National Land Bank, and represented to that bank that the business of the company at 40 Dawson street would be carried on as a separate branch. The business banking account in connection with that bank was opened at the National Land Bank, Limited. The company's affairs becoming more involved, on the 22nd June, 1922, Mr. John Sedgwick was about to be appointed receiver by the debenture holders, and he so informed Mr. Hope Johnstone, one of the directors, whose whole time was spent at this branch. Mr. Hope-Johnstone informed Mr. Lionel Smith Gordon, secretary of the National Land Bank.

An arrangement was come to whereby the National Land Bank was to purchase motor cars and stock-in-trade at 40 Dawson street at wholesale price, and the National Land Bank paid for them by its cheques, which the company lodged to the credit of the account in the National Land Bank, thereby reducing the indebtedness of the company to the bank. Mr. MacFarlane, another director, with whom Mr. Hope Johnstone discussed the matter, objected to the transaction, but Mr. Hope Johnstone stated that the case should go and that he took full responsibility. Mr. Smyth Gordon considered it his duty to secure the National Land Bank by the transaction on the ground that the cars had been purchased in the first instance with money advanced by the National Land Bank, and that he was entitled to have the money recouped. The liquidator, Mr. Sedgwick, contended that the sale of the cars was not in the ordinary course of business, but that the payment of the money received for them to the National Land Bank was fraudulent preference.

Mr. Justice Powell, having referred to the affidavit which had been opened before him, said that Mr. Smyth Gordon's object was to secure, as far as possible, the National Land Bank against loss, but, in fact, the bank was being secured at the expense of unsecured creditors. There was not a particle of evidence to show that Mr. Hope Johnstone was acting in the belief that he was bound by contract to return the money. In his (Mr. Justice Powell's) opinion there was fraudulent preference, and he made an order that the National Land Bank should return the money. He declared the liquidator entitled to his costs.

Mr. FitzGibbon, K.C., and Mr. J. Murnaghan (instructed by Messrs. Maxwell, Weldon and Co.) appeared for the liquidator; and Mr. Herbert Wilson, K.C., and Mr. T. J. Marnan (instructed by Messrs. T. F. O'Connell and Son) for the National Land Bank, Ltd.

SALE OF A RESIDENCE.

After a hearing of three days, the evidence and arguments in the action of Byrne v. Murray concluded yesterday. The plaintiff is Mr. James Byrne, of 21 West street, Drogheda, merchant; and the defendants are Messrs. Frederick C. Murray and Edward J. Murray, of Mill street, Newry, boot merchants.

The plaintiff claimed an order that the contract, dated the 22nd May, 1922, entered into between the plaintiff and the defendants, for the sale to the plaintiff of the residue of a term of 25 years in the premises, 65 Clanbrassil street, Dundalk, be rescinded, and that it be delivered up to be cancelled, and that the defendants be directed to return to the plaintiff the deposit of £262 10s. on foot of the contract, with interest.

Mr. Justice Powell reserved judgment.

Mr. Lynch, K.C.; Mr. MacLoone, K.C., and Mr. Martin Maguire (instructed by Messrs. Ward and Hamill) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Battersby, K.C., and Mr. C. S. Campbell (instructed by Messrs. O'Hare and O'Hagan) for the defendants.

PROBATE ACTION SETTLED.

(Probate Court, before Mr. Justice Dodd.)

In the case of the Representative Church Body v. Brownlow,

Mr. T. J. Smith (instructed by Mr. T. Y. Chambers, Bailieborough), who appeared for the plaintiff, stated that the action had been brought by the Representative Church Body, who were legatees of the will of Margaret Jane Brownlow, deceased, whereby she left her farm in Enagh, which constituted her whole assets, to the Representative Church Body, in trust for her sister, who predeceased her, and afterwards to the parish. The action was brought to establish the will, the son of the deceased, who was residing in Chicago, being named as defendant. The parties had come together and settled the case on the terms that the farm should be sold and the proceeds divided equally between them. He applied to have the consent made a rule of Court.

Mr. J. M. Fitzgerald (instructed by Mr. Charles Murphy, Cootehill) appeared for the defendant.

The judge received the consent and made it a rule of Court.

THE HIRE OF FILMS.

(Court of Appeal, before Lord Justice Ronan and Lord Justice O'Connor.)

The case of the Fox Film Company came before the Court on a motion for a new trial on behalf of the Irish Kinematograph Company, who are the proprietors of the Grand Central Cinema in Sackville street, Dublin, and the Mary street Picture House. The Fox Film Company had sued them to recover £516 10s. for the hire of films to be shown in their cinemas. The defendants had lodged £136 10s. in court with their defence, pleading that this sum was sufficient to meet the plaintiffs' claim.

The case was tried by Mr. Justice Dodd without a jury. He gave judgment for the plaintiffs for £226 10s. (the £136 10s. lodged in court, plus £90), with costs; and he gave judgment for the defendants for £290 (the balance of £516 10s.), with costs. The defendants, under these circumstances, sought a new trial.

The defendants' case was that they had cancelled the contracts in respect of all the films except those in respect of which they had lodged the £136 10s.

It appeared that the defendants had cancelled the picture called "The Lost Trail" because the words "Approval of Dublin Censors" did not accompany it. The picture passed the Censors in Dublin the day after that on which the defendants said that they had cancelled the contract for it.

Mr. Carrigan, K.C., and Mr. Vincent Rice (instructed by Messrs. James L. Burke and Co.) appeared for the appellants (the defendants); and Mr. Serjeant Hanna, Mr. Lynch, K.C., and Mr. Dockrell (instructed by Messrs. Taylor, Robinson and Son) for the respondents (the plaintiffs).

It was stated by Mr. Carrigan that it was an express condition of these hiring contracts that the films should pass the Censor in Dublin.

Lord Justice Ronan said that he was of opinion that the appeal should be dismissed.

Lord Justice O'Connor said that he doubted the correctness of the decision of the Court below, but, sitting with only one colleague, he was not prepared to dissent from his view. If he did, it would only leave the case where it was.

The Court dismissed the appeal, with costs.

HOWARD v. DONNELLY.

In the report of the case of Howard v. Donnelly, in the Court of Appeal, published in our issue of yesterday, it was stated that the "Court dismissed the appeal, with costs, agreeing unanimously with Mr. Carrigan (counsel for defendant) that the money could not be recovered" under the provisions of the Increase of Rent Acts.

What the Court really did was to dismiss the appeal, with costs, holding that it was not a case for final judgment, but one that should go to trial.

SOLICITOR STRUCK OFF THE ROLLS.

In the matter of the Solicitors (Ireland) Act, Mr. Blood, K.C. (instructed by Mr. Wakeley), said that he appeared on behalf of the Incorporated Law Society to bring this matter before his lordship, and to ask him to make such order as he might think proper, on the report of the Statutory Committee, made on the 6th July, to consider the complaint of a Mrs. Clara Donnelly.

The facts of the case were that Mrs. Donnelly was the owner of a house at Ranelagh, Dublin, and in January last she decided to dispose of it, together with the furniture in it. The carrying out of this sale was put into the hands of the solicitor complained of. The house realised £900 and the furniture and effects £300. The solicitor received the £900 directly from the purchaser, but Mrs. Donnelly appeared to have received the £300 for the furniture and effects. At the request, however, of the solicitor, who suggested that the £300 might be handed to him for safe keeping, she paid him the £300 and obtained a receipt. The solicitor thus got the entire proceeds of the sale—£1,200—into his possession. Mrs. Donnelly required the proceeds of the sale to enable her to complete the purchase of a house in Bournemouth, where she went to reside, and applied by letter to the solicitor for her £1,200. On the 19th May he wrote stating that on the 22nd May he would pay the £1,200, with 6 per cent. interest, and on the 22nd May he sent £150 only, leaving a balance due to this lady of £1,050, which was still wholly unpaid.

The Statutory Committee came to the conclusion that this was a case of professional misconduct. He (counsel) understood that Mr. Plunket Dillon, who represented the solicitor at the inquiry, asked the Committee to stay their hand, as it was possible that payment of the whole amount would be obtained; but the Committee had no power to stay their hand.

Mr. Lardner, K.C. (instructed by Mr. Plunket Dillon), who appeared for the solicitor, said that this was the case of a young solicitor who, unfortunately for himself, made a mistake at the hands of older and more clever men than he was. He was induced to make investments of a really safe description, but it turned out that the people to whom he gave his money were not what they ought to have been. It would be a very grave misfortune to this man if the drastic and final penalty was enforced by his lordship. Some of his friends were willing to come to his rescue, if there was a possibility of his being allowed to carry on. They would put up £500 within a month, £300 of which would be paid that day, and an arrangement would be made whereby the balance due would be paid before the end of the year, and he (counsel) asked his lordship to give the solicitor this opportunity, and said that he would never have any cause for regret.

The Lord Chief Justice said that to his mind it would be difficult to conceive a worse case than this. He read the following letter, in the course of his comments, which Mrs. Donnelly received:—

"Dear Mrs. Donnelly,—I will have £1,200 for you on Tuesday morning, the 22nd inst., at 10.30, together with interest thereon at 6 per cent., and I also agree to pay your expenses from Bournemouth to Dublin.

"Yours, faithfully,

"William P. Triston."

He was not there, said the Lord Chief Justice, to condone offences, but to exercise the punitive power entrusted to him; to preserve the purity and honesty of the solicitors' profession, and to see that no person should remain in that profession who had abused his trust and misappropriated money belonging to a client. In the circumstances, the only thing he had to do was to order that the name of William P. Triston be removed from the roll of solicitors, and to order him to pay the costs incurred in this matter.

Mrs. Donnelly (who was present during the proceedings)—May I ask your lordship to hear me? If I get the £300 now and £200 at the end of the month——

The Lord Chief Justice said that he was very sorry, but he had to regard the sanctity of the solicitors' profession, and that was the only interest he had in the matter. He had to exercise his jurisdiction, and he could do no more.

MULLINGAR BANKRUPTCY CASE.

(Bankruptcy Court, before Mr. Justice Pim.)

Patrick J. Weymes, of Mullingar, a bankrupt, was examined as to his connection with the Midland Counties Wool, Skin and Hide Company.

Mr. Lardner, K.C. (instructed by Mr. Eugene F. Collins) appeared for the assignee, and asked the bankrupt who bought the business of the company from a Mr. Gaunt, of Bradford.

The bankrupt said that he understood that it was Mr. Thomas F. McDonnell, a merchant in Mullingar. He (Weymes) did not buy the concern, as he had no money. He signed bills and went security to the bank for Mr. McDonnell, but his (Weymes's) was the first name on the bills.

Did you sign a proposal to Mr. Gaunt to purchase the business? I did, with Mr. McDonnell.

Counsel—I put it to you that Mr. McDonnell was merely a cloak and a tool in your hands to enable you to acquire the business when you were an arranging debtor? No; Mr. McDonnell was trying to help me.

Who managed the business and drew the salary of £10 a week as manager? I did.

Who owns the business at the present moment? Mr. McDonnell owns it at present. I don't think anybody owns it.

Had Mr. McDonnell ever had the keys of the premises? Never.

Who signed the cheques? I did.

The bankrupt, in further examination, said that part of the company's premises was burned out last week—that part where the account books were kept. Although he was manager of the place, he did not go to see it after the fire, as he thought it was no use going there.

Do you know that Mr. McDonnell has been stuck for £9,000 in connection with the business? I don't think he is stuck to that amount.

Mr. Lardner—I charge you openly with trying to avoid giving information to the Court. In May, 1922, you returned your assets at £15,861, when you were trying to arrange with your creditors, and by your own account, in July, 1923, your assets are returned at £6,563. Where did the difference between the two sums go?—There should be a reduced value put on the furniture and stock, which were greatly depreciated.

Your first balance sheet was a false one?—I would not say so.

Was it not incorrect?—It was.

Do you know that there is unaccounted for, inside of twelve months, between £60,000 and £70,000?—There is nothing extraordinary in that.

The bankrupt further admitted that he had become surety to the bank for a Mr. Beatty, of Dublin, who was a motor car dealer, for about £20,000, and of that sum about £8,000 was still due to the bank.

How do you explain your deficiency of £146,000?—I think the statement you have before you explains it.

Where is it gone?—I have not any of it.

Mr. Justice Pim said that an absolutely false balance sheet had been prepared. The case was a very bad one.

Mr. Thomas F. McDonnell, who was examined, stated that his name was put in the agreement when the place was purchased from Mr. Gaunt, to be manager, nominally, as Mr. Weyms could not then act. It was Mr. Weyms who suggested it. He took no part, directly or indirectly, in the management, and although he was put down as drawing a salary of £10, it was Mr. Weyms who drew it.

Mr. Justice Pim made an order for the immediate realisation of the assets.

Mr. Blood, K.C., and Mr. Wood, K.C., appeared for other persons.

STREET TRADERS.

Over fifty street traders were summoned in the Northern Police Court, Dublin, yesterday, for causing obstruction at Parnell street and elsewhere in the city. In the majority of cases there were several summonses against each of the defendants, but the magistrate imposed a nominal fine on one summons in each case, and adjourned the others for fourteen days.

In the Southern Police Court, when the first of a large number of cases was called, the magistrate said that he understood that an attempt was being made to get a market for George's street traders which, he thought, would also apply to those in the habit of using Camden street.

Mr. Burke, Assistant Law Agent to the Corporation, said that he had seen a draft of the proposed regulations drawn up by the Chief Commissioner of the Dublin Metropolitan Police, which he (Mr. Burke) believed would nearly meet all the requirements in the case of the street traders. So long as the regulations were complied with the police would not take action.

TOWN TENANTS.

GENERAL ELECTION POLICY OUTLINED.

At a meeting under the auspices of the All-Ireland Town Tenants' League, in the Mansion House, Dublin, on Thursday, Mr. William Field, presiding, said that town tenants had a right to protection against injury at the hands of unscrupulous landlords and house speculators. The present meeting was convened to deal with the Rent Acts, and to make arrangements for sending direct representatives to the new Dail.

The same principle as had been established for agricultural tenants should, he declared, be established as far as possible for urban residents. The most powerful indictment of present-day society was the absence of ownership with occupation of the home. No rights of property should be so extended as to conflict with the general interest. The rights of private property were sanctioned in so far as they tended to the well-being of the community.

Mr. Coghlan Briscoe said that if there had been in the Dail a number of Town Tenants' representatives the Rent Act would never have been passed in its present form.

The following resolution, on the motion of Mr. Shanahan, Cork, seconded by Mr. Fearon, Belfast, was passed unanimously:—

That this conference, representing the cities and towns of Ireland, regrets the passing of the Rents Act for the following reasons:

(a) It places behind unscrupulous landlords and house speculators the sanction of the Irish Parliament to raise rents, and do other things that hitherto have been successfully resisted by combination among Town Tenants.

(b) The new powers given under the Rents Act to owners to evict tenants, without providing alternative accommodation, creates a dangerous position, which calls for widespread combination among towns, on the lines of the old National League.

(c) The most immediate and effective means to counteract the danger thus created is for the towns in the various Parliamentary divisions to at once meet in conference, select candidates of their own for the coming general election, wherever the urban population warrants such a course, and to provide ways and means to return the candidates so selected. In places where the urban population is insufficient to warrant this course, Town Tenants to support only those who adopt their programme.

Mr. Sean Lyons, T.D., said that their organisation was representative of the North as well as of the South. They had to make it plain that they demanded the right to their own homes, and where they could not put forward a candidate of their own they should compel those who sought their votes to pledge themselves to support the town tenants. It was in the power of the tenants to put in power representatives pledged to do them justice.

Mr. Briscoe said that for the great majority of the towns in Ireland there was no necessity for the Rents Acts. They should not blame the Labour Party, but blame themselves, for not looking after their own interests. They should see that the Dail candidates for whom they voted were pledged to their interests as town tenants.

It was agreed "to call upon the Irish Government to stay all evictions until the new Government would have an opportunity to consider the effects of the passing of the Rent Act. If decrees, hundreds of which were hanging over the heads of tenants, were carried out, it would create further trouble and ill-feeling."

SCHOOL FRIENDSHIPS.

NORTHERN JUDGE'S ADVICE TO BOYS.

Mr. Justice Brown, distributing the prizes at Campbell College, Belfast, on Thursday, congratulated the prize-winners, and said that those for whom there were no prizes should not feel ashamed on that account, provided they could honestly say they had done their best. It was only the boy who could have won a prize if he tried, and did not try, that need feel ashamed.

No doubt, many were looking forward to the time when they would leave school, for, no matter how much they might enjoy themselves there, they all wanted to be out in the world and doing bigger things. Some were anxious to go to the University; some to enter the professions of medicine and law, and most of them would want to enter the greatest profession of all, the profession of business.

Looking back upon his own school-days, Mr. Justice Brown said the most important thing for him were the friendships which he then made. "I would say to you," he proceeded, "to cherish your school friends. Make friends of the boys you meet. Find out all about them. Get to know what is best in them, and cultivate what is best in them, and if you do you will find they will stick to you, not only as friends all your lives, but you will have in your minds very pleasant memories of your friendships during the time that you were at school."

THE GALTEEMORE CLUB.

SEIZURE BY CIVIC GUARDS.

The adjourned case of Mansergh and others v. Torpay and others came on for hearing yesterday. An application in the case was made on behalf of the plaintiffs—Messrs. George Mansergh, landowner, of Grenane, Tipperary; John O'Dwyer, solicitor, Tipperary, and Robert B. Heuston, solicitor, Tipperary—for an interlocutory injunction restraining the defendants—Inspector E. The club premises, it was alleged, had been forcibly seized by the defendants, and possession of them still retained.

Mr. Price, K.C., and Mr. Connolly (instructed by Mr. R. B. Heuston) appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. T. Sullivan, K.C., and Mr. John O'Byrne (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) for the defendants.

Mr. Price, in opening the case, said that the Civic Guard still remained in possession of the premises, and claimed the right to hold and to alter them and turn them into police barracks, without any offer of fair compensation or any apology for the inconvenience which they had caused.

Reading the affidavit of Mr. R. B. Heuston, solicitor, hon. secretary of the club, on which the application was grounded, he explained that the first three plaintiffs mentioned were the trustees of the club, and that the premises were held under a lease which contained very stringent covenants, including covenants to keep in repair, not to sub-let, and, in particular, not to allow them to be used as a police barracks.

FORCIBLE POSSESSION.

In the affidavit it was stated that on 29th March a number of persons in the uniform of Civic Guards, in charge of a sergeant, took forcible possession of the club premises, furniture and effects, and summarily ejected some of the members of the club then having their meals, and compelled two other members who were residing in the club to leave and hurriedly seek lodgings elsewhere. No previous or subsequent notice had been given of the intention to take possession and use the premises for quarters for the Civic Guard force.

The defendant, Inspector Torpay, in charge of the Civic Guards, informed Mr. Heuston that unless the steward and his wife and furniture were out of the club by that evening he would have them thrown out on the street. In a subsequent interview, Inspector Torpay informed him that he intended to have the necessary alterations made to convert the billiard-room into an office for his use.

On Tuesday last Mr. Price said that an affidavit by General O'Duffy, Commissioner in charge of the Civic Guard Dépôt, Phœnix Park, had been received in reply to Mr. Heuston's affidavit, which, if anything, added to the indignity with which the plaintiffs and members of the club were treated. One would have reason to believe that, having regard to the utterly lawless manner in which the defendants had acted, something in the nature of an apology or reasonable explanation would have been given as to the acquisition of the premises; but the position taken up by the authorities in charge was to express their intention of remaining there, without taking any legal steps whatever.

GENERAL O'DUFFY'S CASE.

General O'Duffy, in his affidavit, stated that the Galteemore Club was considered the only premises in the town suitable for the requirements of the Guard, and the one which could be taken with the minimum of inconvenience. It was accordingly taken over.

"The Board of Works did report that the old jail or Bridewell could be made habitable, but this would have necessitated considerable alterations and repairs, and would have taken very considerable time. In all the circumstances, it was considered desirable, in the public interest, that the club premises should be taken over and a party of the Civic Guard installed there. And accordingly, on the 29th March last, the premises were taken over, but not by persons in the uniform of the Civic Guard, as mentioned in the affidavit of Mr. Heuston. The premises were, in fact, taken over by the military authorities some time before any of the Civic Guard arrived in the town, and were then handed over to the Civic Guard. It was considered at the time that it was essential for the restoration of law and order in the district that a police force should be installed in the town."

General O'Duffy, in his affidavit, further stated that he was informed that it was inaccurate to state that the club was used to any considerable extent. At the time the premises were taken over the only persons living there were the steward and his wife. There had been two bank clerks living there, but he was informed that they were away on holidays at the time. With the exception of the bank clerks, the persons using the club were persons living in the vicinity, and the closing of the club could not have caused any considerable inconvenience to them. In view of the difficulty in acquiring suitable premises for the Civic Guard in this and other localities, it was considered necessary to introduce a bill authorising the Minister for Home Affairs to acquire premises compulsorily for the use of the Civic Guard, which was passed on the 16th inst.

Mr. Price submitted that these people ought not to be allowed to remain in possession of the premises under the circumstances. No apology had been made on behalf of the defendant, and no undertaking had been given to pay for the damage done.

"A SERIOUS CASE."

Mr. Sullivan, K.C., said that the authorities quite realised that this was a serious case, but he submitted that, having regard to the state of affairs that existed in the district and the difficulty of getting suitable premises, it was not a case in which the Court in its discretion would grant an interlocutory injunction. It was clear from General O'Duffy's affidavit that the authorities had acted bona fide and honestly in taking the course they had adopted, and with the desire of causing the least possible inconvenience to the inhabitants of the town. There was no evidence of any substantial damage being done to the premises.

With reference to the state of the district, it was admitted that up till the end of last month, at any rate, a state of war existed in the country. He pointed out that even if an interlocutory injunction were granted and the Civic Guard turned out, they could be restored to possession of the premises again almost immediately under the operation of the Act which had been recently passed.

In reply to his lordship, he said that he had no objection to having General O'Duffy added as a defendant in the action in view of the question of damages.

Mr. Connolly replied, referring to the manner in which the authorities had endeavoured to regularise their position in the matter.

THE JUDGMENT.

The Master of the Rolls, giving judgment and allowing the application for an interlocutory injunction to stand, under the circumstances, till the trial of the action, said that he noticed that in this case the defendants had abstained from making the case that there was a state of war in the town of Tipperary at the time these premises were taken, and that it was a military necessity which induced them to take the premises. In every case where a state of war was relied upon previously the fact was expressly stated on affidavit.

There was no legal justification whatever for the action of the Civic Guard in this matter, though what they had done was done, no doubt, with the best possible intention. Possession of the premises had been taken in the most illegal and high-handed way, no matter how great the necessity for taking them; and no previous notice had been given. The plaintiffs were clearly entitled to an injunction under the circumstances; but he saw no necessity for granting an injunction, because the injunction would prove nugatory in the course of a week or two or three weeks; and if the plaintiffs and the members of the club were restored to possession of the premises they would be obliged to put them in a habitable condition again.

He did not think that he ought to grant an injunction, in the exercise of his discretion, when he was convinced that the injunction would prove useless and nugatory. As Mr. Sullivan had agreed to allow General O'Duffy to be joined as a defendant, he would allow this application to stand over until the hearing of the action; but he thought that the plaintiffs were entitled to the costs of the motion.

On the suggestion of Mr. Sullivan, his lordship reserved the costs pending the result of the action.

BOHAN v. MALONEY.

We are asked to say that in the case of Bohan v. Maloney, reported on Thursday, the solicitors for the defendant were Messrs. Reddy, and not Mr. Michael Gleeson.

BANK AS PURCHASER OF CARS

(Chancery Division, before Mr. Justice Powell.)

Mr. Justice Powell delivered judgment in the matter of J. Pullar Phibbs, Limited, in liquidation, and in the matter of the Companies Acts.

The case had come before the Court on a summons taken out by the liquidator, John Sedgwick, who applied for an order declaring that a sale of certain motors and stock-in-trade for £1,769 1s. 6d. by J. Pullar Phibbs, Limited, to the National Land Bank, Limited, College Green, Dublin, on or about the 23rd June, 1922, and the lodgment of that sum to the account of J. Pullar Phibbs, Limited, at that bank was a fradulent preference, and that it should be set aside, and for an order that the bank should repay to the liquidator that sum, with interest from the 27th June, 1922, together with costs of application. The company, by resolution of the 7th July, 1922, went into voluntary liquidation. It had been incorporated for the purpose of dealing in motor cars, etc., at North Strand, Dublin, and elsewhere.

In February, 1920, debentures were created by the company to secure a loan from the Munster and Leinster Bank, and in December, 1921, the company required a further advance; but, as the Munster and Leinster Bank was unwilling to accord this accommodation, the company approached the National Land Bank, and represented to that bank that the business of the company at 40 Dawson street would be carried on as a separate branch. The business banking account in connection with that bank was opened at the National Land Bnk, Limited. The company's affairs becoming more involved, on the 22nd June, 1922, Mr. John Sedgwick was about to be appointed receiver by the debenture holders, and he so informed Mr. Hope Johnstone, one of the directors, whose whole time was spent at this branch. Mr. Hope-Johnstone informed Mr. Lionel Smith Gordon, secretary of the National Land Bank.

An arrangement was come to whereby the National Land Bank was to purchase motor cars and stock-in-trade at 40 Dawson street at wholesale price, and the National Land Bank paid for them by its cheques, which the company lodged to the credit of the account in the National Land Bank, thereby reducing the indebtedness of the company to the bank. Mr. MacFarlane, another director, with whom Mr. Hope Johnstone discussed the matter, objected to the transaction, but Mr. Hope Johnstone stated that the case should go and that he took full responsibility. Mr. Smyth Gordon considered it his duty to secure the National Land Bank by the transaction on the ground that the cars had been purchased in the first instance with money advanced by the National Land Bank, and that he was entitled to have the money recouped. The liquidator, Mr. Sedgwick, contended that the sale of the cars was not in the ordinary course of business, but that the payment of the money received for them to the National Land Bank was fraudulent preference.

Mr. Justice Powell, having referred to the affidavit which had been opened before him, said that Mr. Smyth Gordon's object was to secure, as far as possible, the National Land Bank against loss, but, in fact, the bank was being secured at the expense of unsecured creditors. There was not a particle of evidence to show that Mr. Hope Johnstone was acting in the belief that he was bound by contract to return the money. In his (Mr. Justice Powell's) opinion there was fraudulent preference, and he made an order that the National Land Bank should return the money. He declared the liquidator entitled to his costs.

Mr. FitzGibbon, K.C., and Mr. J. Murnaghan (instructed by Messrs. Maxwell, Weldon and Co.) appeared for the liquidator; and Mr. Herbert Wilson, K.C., and Mr. T. J. Marnan (instructed by Messrs. T. F. O'Connell and Son) for the National Land Bank, Ltd.

SALE OF A RESIDENCE.

After a hearing of three days, the evidence and arguments in the action of Byrne v. Murray concluded yesterday. The plaintiff is Mr. James Byrne, of 21 West street, Drogheda, merchant; and the defendants are Messrs. Frederick C. Murray and Edward J. Murray, of Mill street, Newry, boot merchants.

The plaintiff claimed an order that the contract, dated the 22nd May, 1922, entered into between the plaintiff and the defendants, for the sale to the plaintiff of the residue of a term of 25 years in the premises, 65 Clanbrassil street, Dundalk, be rescinded, and that it be delivered up to be cancelled, and that the defendants be directed to return to the plaintiff the deposit of £262 10s. on foot of the contract, with interest.

Mr. Justice Powell reserved judgment.

Mr. Lynch, K.C.; Mr. MacLoone, K.C., and Mr. Martin Maguire (instructed by Messrs. Ward and Hamill) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Battersby, K.C., and Mr. C. S. Campbell (instructed by Messrs. O'Hare and O'Hagan) for the defendants.

PROBATE ACTION SETTLED.

(Probate Court, before Mr. Justice Dodd.)

In the case of the Representative Church Body v. Brownlow,

Mr. T. J. Smith (instructed by Mr. T. Y. Chambers, Bailieborough), who appeared for the plaintiff, stated that the action had been brought by the Representative Church Body, who were legatees of the will of Margaret Jane Brownlow, deceased, whereby she left her farm in Enagh, which constituted her whole assets, to the Representative Church Body, in trust for her sister, who predeceased her, and afterwards to the parish. The action was brought to establish the will, the son of the deceased, who was residing in Chicago, being named as defendant. The parties had come together and settled the case on the terms that the farm should be sold and the proceeds divided equally between them. He applied to have the consent made a rule of Court.

Mr. J. M. Fitzgerald (instructed by Mr. Charles Murphy, Cootehill) appeared for the defendant.

THE HIRE OF FILMS.

(Court of Appeal, before Lord Justice Ronan and Lord Justice O'Connor.)

The case of the Fox Film Company came before the Court on a motion for a new trial on behalf of the Irish Kinematograph Company, who are the proprietors of the Grand Central Cinema in Sackville street, Dublin, and the Mary street Picture House. The Fox Film Company had sued them to recover £516 10s. for the hire of films to be shown in their cinemas. The defendants had lodged £136 10s. in court with their defence, pleading that this sum was sufficient to meet the plaintiffs' claim.

The case was tried by Mr. Justice Dodd without a jury. He gave judgment for the plaintiffs for £226 10s. (the £136 10s. lodged in court, plus £90), with costs; and he gave judgment for the defendants for £290 (the balance of £516 10s.), with costs. The defendants, under these circumstances, sought a new trial.

The defendants' case was that they had cancelled the contracts in respect of all the films except those in respect of which they had lodged the £136 10s.

It appeared that the defendants had cancelled the picture called "The Lost Trail" because the words "Approval of Dublin Censors" did not accompany it. The picture passed the Censors in Dublin the day after that on which the defendants said that they had cancelled the contract for it.

Mr. Carrigan, K.C., and Mr. Vincent Rice (instructed by Messrs. James L. Burke and Co.) appeared for the appellants (the defendants); and Mr. Serjeant Hanna, Mr. Lynch, K.C., and Mr. Dockrell (instructed by Messrs. Taylor, Robinson and Son) for the respondents (the plaintiffs).

It was stated by Mr. Carrigan that it was an express condition of these hiring contracts that the films should pass the Censor in Dublin.

Lord Justice Ronan said that he was of opinion that the appeal should be dismissed.

Lord Justice O'Connor said that he doubted the correctness of the decision of the Court below, but, sitting with only one colleague, he was not prepared to dissent from his view. If he did, it would only leave the case where it was.

The Court dismissed the appeal, with costs.

HOWARD v. DONNELLY.

In the report of the case of Howard v. Donnelly, in the Court of Appeal, published in our issue of yesterday, it was stated that the "Court dismissed the appeal, with costs, agreeing unanimously with Mr. Carrigan (counsel for defendant) that the money could not be recovered" under the provisions of the Increase of Rent Acts.

What the Court really did was to dismiss the appeal, with costs, holding that it was not a case for final judgment, but one that should go to trial.

SOLICITOR STRUCK OFF THE ROLLS.

In the matter of the Solicitors (Ireland) Act, Mr. Blood, K.C. (instructed by Mr. Wakeley), said that he appeared on behalf of the Incorporated Law Society to bring this matter before his lordship, and to ask him to make such order as he might think proper, on the report of the Statutory Committee, made on the 6th July, to consider the complaint of a Mrs. Clara Donnelly.

The facts of the case were that Mrs. Donnelly was the owner of a house at Ranelagh, Dublin, and in January last she decided to dispose of it, together with the furniture in it. The carrying out of this sale was put into the hands of the solicitor complained of. The house realised £900 and the furniture and effects £300. The solicitor received the £900 directly from the purchaser, but Mrs. Donnelly appeared to have received the £300 for the furniture and effects. At the request, however, of the solicitor, who suggested that the £300 might be handed to him for safe keeping, she paid him the £300 and obtained a receipt. The solicitor thus got the entire proceeds of the sale—£1,200—into his possession. Mrs. Donnelly required the proceeds of the sale to enable her to complete the purchase of a house in Bournemouth, where she went to reside, and applied by letter to the solicitor for her £1,200. On the 19th May he wrote stating that on the 22nd May he would pay the £1,200, with 6 per cent. interest, and on the 22nd May he sent £150 only, leaving a balance due to this lady of £1,050, which was still wholly unpaid.

The Statutory Committee came to the conclusion that this was a case of professional misconduct. He (counsel) understood that Mr. Plunket Dillon, who represented the solicitor at the inquiry, asked the Committee to stay their hand, as it was possible that payment of the whole amount would be obtained; but the Committee had no power to stay their hand.

Mr. Lardner, K.C. (instructed by Mr. Plunket Dillon), who appeared for the solicitor, said that this was the case of a young solicitor who, unfortunately for himself, made a mistake at the hands of older and more clever men than he was. He was induced to make investments of a really safe description, but it turned out that the people to whom he gave his money were not what they ought to have been. It would be a very grave misfortune to this man if the drastic and final penalty was enforced by his lordship. Some of his friends were willing to come to his rescue, if there was a possibility of his being allowed to carry on. They would put up £500 within a month, £300 of which would be paid that day, and an arrangement would be made whereby the balance due would be paid before the end of the year, and he (counsel) asked his lordship to give the solicitor this opportunity, and said that he would never have any cause for regret.

The Lord Chief Justice said that to his mind it would be difficult to conceive a worse case than this. He read the following letter, in the course of his comments, which Mrs. Donnelly received:—

"Dear Mrs. Donnelly,—I will have £1,200 for you on Tuesday morning, the 22nd inst., at 10.30, together with interest thereon at 6 per cent., and I also agree to pay your expenses from Bournemouth to Dublin.

"Yours, faithfully,

"William P. Triston."

He was not there, said the Lord Chief Justice, to condone offences, but to exercise the punitive power entrusted to him; to preserve the purity and honesty of the solicitors' profession, and to see that no person should remain in that profession who had abused his trust and misappropriated money belonging to a client. In the circumstances, the only thing he had to do was to order that the name of William P. Triston be removed from the roll of solicitors, and to order him to pay the costs incurred in this matter.

Mrs. Donnelly (who was present during the proceedings)—May I ask your lordship to hear me? If I get the £300 now and £200 at the end of the month——

The Lord Chief Justice said that he was very sorry, but he had to regard the sanctity of the solicitors' profession, and that was the only interest he had in the matter. He had to exercise his jurisdiction, and he could do no more.

(Bankruptcy Court, before Mr. Justice Pim.)

Patrick J. Weymes, of Mullingar, a bankrupt, was examined as to his connection with the Midland Counties Wool, Skin and Hide Company.

Mr. Lardner, K.C. (instructed by Mr. Eugene F. Collins) appeared for the assignee, and asked the bankrupt who bought the business of the company from a Mr. Gaunt, of Bradford.

The bankrupt said that he understood that it was Mr. Thomas F. McDonnell, a merchant in Mullingar. He (Weymes) did not buy the concern, as he had no money. He signed bills and went security to the bank for Mr. McDonnell, but his (Weymes's) was the first name on the bills.

Did you sign a proposal to Mr. Gaunt to purchase the business? I did, with Mr. McDonnell.

Counsel—I put it to you that Mr. McDonnell was merely a cloak and a tool in your hands to enable you to acquire the business when you were an arranging debtor? No; Mr. McDonnell was trying to help me.

Who managed the business and drew the salary of £10 a week as manager? I did.

Who owns the business at the present moment? Mr. McDonnell owns it at present. I don't think anybody owns it.

The bankrupt, in further examination, said that part of the company's premises was burned out last week—that part where the account books were kept. Although he was manager of the place, he did not go to see it after the fire, as he thought it was no use going there.

Do you know that Mr. McDonnell has been stuck for £9,000 in connection with the business? I don't think he is stuck to that amount.

Mr. Lardner—I charge you openly with trying to avoid giving information to the Court. In May, 1922, you returned your assets at £15,861, when you were trying to arrange with your creditors, and by your own account, in July, 1923, your assets are returned at £6,563. Where did the difference between the two sums go?—There should be a reduced value put on the furniture and stock, which were greatly depreciated.

Your first balance sheet was a false one?—I would not say so.

Was it not incorrect?—It was.

Do you know that there is unaccounted for, inside of twelve months, between £60,000 and £70,000?—There is nothing extraordinary in that.

The bankrupt further admitted that he had become surety to the bank for a Mr. Beatty, of Dublin, who was a motor car dealer, for about £20,000, and of that sum about £8,000 was still due to the bank.

How do you explain your deficiency of £146,000?—I think the statement you have before you explains it.

Where is it gone?—I have not any of it.

Mr. Justice Pim said that an absolutely false balance sheet had been prepared. The case was a very bad one.

Mr. Thomas F. McDonnell, who was examined, stated that his name was put in the agreement when the place was purchased from Mr. Gaunt, to be manager, nominally, as Mr. Weymes could not then act. It was Mr. Weymes who suggested it. He took no part, directly or indirectly, in the management, and although he was put down as drawing a salary of £10, it was Mr. Weymes who drew it.

Mr. Justice Pim made an order for the immediate realisation of the assets.

Mr. Blood, K.C., and Mr. Wood, K.C., appeared for other persons.

STREET TRADERS.

Over fifty street traders were summoned in the Northern Police Court, Dublin, yesterday, for causing obstruction at Parnell street and elsewhere in the city. In the majority of cases there were several summonses against each of the defendants, but the magistrate imposed a nominal fine on one summons in each case, and adjourned the others for fourteen days.

In the Southern Police Court, when the first of a large number of cases was called, the magistrate said that he understood that an attempt was being made to get a market for George's street traders which, he thought, would also apply to those in the habit of using Camden street.

Mr. Burke, Assistant Law Agent to the Corporation, said that he had seen a draft of the proposed regulations drawn up by the Chief Commissioner of the Dublin Metropolitan Police, which he (Mr. Burke) believed would nearly meet all the requirements in the case of the street traders. So long as the regulations were complied with the police would not take action.

TOWN TENANTS.

GENERAL ELECTION POLICY OUTLINED.

At a meeting under the auspices of the All-Ireland Town Tenants' League, in the Mansion House, Dublin, on Thursday, Mr. William Field, presiding, said that town tenants had a right to protection against injury at the hands of unscrupulous landlords and house speculators. The present meeting was convened to deal with the Rent Acts, and to make arrangements for sending direct representatives to the new Dail.

The same principle as had been established for agricultural tenants should, he declared, be established as far as possible for urban residents. The most powerful indictment of present-day society was the absence of ownership with occupation of the home. No rights of property should be so extended as to conflict with the general interest. The rights of private property were sanctioned in so far as they tended to the well-being of the community.

Mr. Coghlan Briscoe said that if there had been in the Dail a number of Town Tenants' representatives the Rent Act would never have been passed in its present form.

The following resolution, on the motion of Mr. Shanahan, Cork, seconded by Mr. Fearon, Belfast, was passed unanimously:—

That this conference, representing the cities and towns of Ireland, regrets the passing of the Rents Act for the following reasons:

(a) It places behind unscrupulous landlords and house speculators the sanction of the Irish Parliament to raise rents, and do other things that hitherto have been successfully resisted by combination among Town Tenants.

(b) The new powers given under the Rents Act to owners to evict tenants, without providing alternative accommodation, creates a dangerous position, which calls for widespread combination among towns, on the lines of the old National League.

(c) The most immediate and effective means to counteract the danger thus created is for the towns in the various Parliamentary divisions to at once meet in conference, select candidates of their own for the coming general election, wherever the urban population warrants such a course, and to provide ways and means to return the candidates so selected. In places where the urban population is insufficient to warrant this course, Town Tenants to support only those who adopt their programme.

Mr. Sean Lyons, T.D., said that their organisation was representative of the North as well as of the South. They had to make it plain that they demanded the right to their own homes, and where they could not put forward a candidate of their own they should compel those who sought their votes to pledge themselves to support the town tenants. It was in the power of the tenants to put in power representatives pledged to do them justice.

Mr. Briscoe said that for the great majority of the towns in Ireland there was no necessity for the Rents Acts. They should not blame the Labour Party, but blame themselves, for not looking after their own interests. They should see that the Dail candidates for whom they voted were pledged to their interests as town tenants.

It was agreed "to call upon the Irish Government to stay all evictions until the new Government would have an opportunity to consider the effects of the passing of the Rent Act. If decrees, hundreds of which were hanging over the heads of tenants, were carried out, it would create further trouble and ill-feeling."

NORTHERN JUDGE'S ADVICE TO BOYS.

Mr. Justice Brown, distributing the prizes at Campbell College, Belfast, on Thursday, congratulated the prize-winners, and said that those for whom there were no prizes should not feel ashamed on that account, provided they could honestly say they had done their best. It was only the boy who could have won a prize if he tried, and did not try, that need feel ashamed.

No doubt, many were looking forward to the time when they would leave school, for, no matter how much they might enjoy themselves there, they all wanted to be out in the world and doing bigger things. Some were anxious to go to the University; some to enter the professions of medicine and law, and most of them would want to enter the greatest profession of all, the profession of business.

Looking back upon his own school-days, Mr. Justice Brown said the most important thing for him were the friendships which he then made. "I would say to you," he proceeded, "to cherish your school friends. Make friends of the boys you meet. Find out all about them. Get to know what is best in them, and cultivate what is best in them, and if you do you will find they will stick to you, not only as friends all your lives, but you will have in your minds very pleasant memories of your friendships during the time that you were at school."
